Apr 20, 2020 Version 2.2.20 This app is simply a website, which would be convenient enough to quickly get into the (god-aweful) game piece of codes, but the site/app has been completely broken this year. Log-in is never saved, site freezes/are repellent much more often than it actually works, and if you can get as far as the QR scanner, it doesn't seem to work unless you have great, natural light (Seems to have problems if an overhead light is casting glare on the game piece). Terrible. Not worth playing this year if they don't solve their many problems. The alternative - the physical game board - has its own significant issues where I don't think there was any quality control involved. I think their policy is if it's broke, don't fix it because they've used their completely non-sensual 5-digit codes with zero actual references to Monopoly for years! Don't waste your customers' time on this waste. I remember when I moved to the Bay Area my housemate and I played monopoly that year and we thought it was funny but got frustrated with the great effort involved in figuring it out and keeping track of the little pieces of paper. So I've been ignoring it for years. But this year I opened some and realized there was an app. I had a little trouble with login, but I made an account on their website and then I was able to scan in my tickets and it was quite painless. I could imagine kids and parents having a lot of fun with it, getting to scan barcodes like a checkout person, which frankly is still like a little magic trick that happens every day in the supermarket. Thanks for making this app and I hope you keep working on bugs, but it has real promise and is now a fun little addition to shopping. Last year I downloaded this app and there were a few things that were annoying about it. First thing was I had to log in every single time I opened the app which was fine until one day I tried to log in and it said my account didn't. So I thought well maybe I'm stupid and write it in right-trying some more times-searched for my name and stuff.... didn't find me. I created the same profile, same number, everything. Lost all my tokens (62 tokens! I was saving...) And of course I threw those papers away. So I stopped playing games... heck I stopped going Safeway because I didn't even deal with it (yes I was becoming a baby about it.) So this year seems to be good, I don't have to log in every time and nothing weird seems to be wrong. I thought I would write a somewhat good review because I noticed that there were a lot of bad ones. Developer Website App Support Privacy Policy Many years ago, I played McDonald's Monopoly game. I don't eat at McDonald's much (or ever? I haven't been to one in at least 10 years), but as part of a marketing ploy for my last blog, we bought a hundred hash browns just for game pieces. It was kinda gross, so much oil, but we managed to win a few decent prizes out of the whole process. One of the things we learned about many of these games is that the odds of the prizes are controlled by the rarity of pieces. For McDonald's Monopoly game, there was only ever a Boardwalk printed. That's how they checked how many winners there were (and also led to famous McDonald's Monopoly scams!). When I heard about Albertson's/Safeway's Monopoly game, I figured they had to operate in much the same way. So let's dive in to see how this Monopoly game works!
