Date of experience: August 2020Veronica A wrote a review May 20201 contributionResable Site / NAME TO BUY TICKETS throughout the weekend!!! It is very unfortunate that the only way to visit this park is to buy an online parking card and register on their website. A whole invasion of privacy asking questions about his head Information. I called the number listed and the park employee said this was the only option to visit. The website is impossible and never allowed me to register properly. My kids really wanted to visit and sad to say that I didn't even have this hard time getting into the Disney world. I really hope the park department addresses the issues because it is not user friendly and very difficult to navigate through.... They open at 10 so we got there early around 930 to get in line for entry. Worth the $20 a carload entry fee. Arriving early we snagged a big spot, a picnic table under a large shade tree in the grassy area. We unloaded our car, blew up our rafts, grabbed our pool noodles and went for a nice swim. There is a huge sand beach that extends out into the water. We all had swimming shoes because it's always a good idea. There's a swimming float moored outside for people to climb up and jump off. Very popular with our crowd. The water was a great temperature to enjoy and we had a lovely day. There's a Kona ice stand. We all had an ice shave and then splashed around to rinse the sticky. Great great fun for 30 minutes drive. Date of experience: July 2019Bianca wrote a review Jul 2019Fort Worth, Texas129 contributions37 useful votesNo worth the move or the $20 feeThe coast was rocky. I would definitely recommend swimming shoes. It was very crowded on Saturday, which I expected, but all the shaded areas were taken, so bring a dome or just umbrella in case or reserve a bench. Most of the grassy areas had grass stickers that are painful to step on. So it was very annoying to find a spot to put your chairs down. The water was dirty. The only nice thing was a/c in the toilets. I've found better swimming holes compared to this. I wouldn't recommend it. ... Its keeps all the tweakers out of the park and those people who think everyone wants to listen to their music. Pay and rules create more than a safe place for families to gather.
