As ridiculous as the initial hypothesis might sound, it turns out the findings were both unexpected and, frankly, a little disturbing. The upshot was that bearded men hide a significantly higher burden of germs and more human-pathogenic strains than dogs. Another finding showed that those human-pathogenic microorganisms (those that could make us sick, that is) are more common in human beards (in seven out of 18 men tested). Meaning - your beard - is a hell much wider than your dog's fur. And it's just... Disturbing. And conclusions do not appear. Let's just say the rest of the study might reveal your wife or girlfriend curled up with Fido tonight, while you, John Bunyan, sleep on the couch. So, keep things clean with both our loved ones and man's best friend, keeping these beards washed out and pathogenic with one of our best beard washes as described below. Wahl Beard Wash Wahl - known for his experience in hairdressing and care tools - is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. And the brand brings all this experience to bear on a brand new beard care line that includes this beard wash, as well as a beard softener, balm, and butter. Since facial hair is hairy and coarse (while the skin at the bottom is more sensitive than your scalp) the usual shampoo just won't do the trick and, in fact, it can do more damage by stripping off moisture. It's washing to keep things clean and fresh... Gently. Beard Brand Old Money Beard Wash Course, with a name like Beard Brand, you better keep a real focus on hirsute pursuit. The brand's website doesn't disappoint, including everything from conditioning balms to mustachioed wax. The old butt includes notes of aged oak, oak, pepper and amber. Detergents are tender on the face, but tough enough to handle coarse, curly hair beards. Beard brand recommends using only once or twice a week. Scotch Porter Moisturising Flushing Beard Scotch Porter identifies this product as part of one of four steps of the process for a happy, healthy beard. Follow the cleaning with a &amp; Nourishing beard conditioner and balm beard to keep everything hydrated and hydrated (you know how we get about cleaning and moisturizing). Watch out for smoothing the serum beard, sealing moisture when eliminating frizz. Stub down and 'Stache face and beard wash outside just cleaning, Stubna & 'Stache activates your morning routine with aromatherapist mixture of aloe, zhengsensg, menthol, eucalyptus, rosemary, sage and black pepper oil; all natural botanicals, vitamins, antioxidants and detergents. And speaking of science, Stubble says washing provides essential nutrients to the cell's bioenergy metabolism. No, no, no, Okay. Perhaps best of all, the brand donates some of the profits to support the wounded heroes as they travel the road to recovery. Climber Beard Wash Mountaineer Brand was founded by Eric Young in 2013 when he grows his traditional Fall beard and began exploring beard care options so he can keep it without irritation and itching (holler!). As a father of three to below average salary, the economically conscious Eric decided he would learn to do on his own. Now with his sister and CEO Meredith, the company has gone on to develop an entire collection of personal care products from its West Virginia headquarters. Since we are on a scientific tip, beard wash climbers are made from saponified coconut nucifera oil (coconut) oil, olea europaea (olive) oil, simmondsia chinensis (jojoba) seed oil and helianthus annuus (sunflower) seed oil, and more, but since we didn't get to take Latin in high school, we'll leave it right there. The art of shaving Peppermint Beard Wash so, yes, we thought the whole idea of growing a beard is about not shaving, but we tend to trust experts in the art of shaving to keep on top of our generous needs. This mint beard Wash not only leaves the beard's hair clean and soft, its rich latera removes dirt, oil and impurities, as well as conditioning and softening. The bright aroma of mint oil will brighten up your morning... and can keep you focused on these mint juleps waiting for you at the end of the workday. Rockwell Razors Barbershop Beard & Body Soap Honestly, we're not the biggest fans of using the same soap on your face (and beards) that you do on your body. Being dumb? We know where it was. And, after all, isn't that how we started this whole piece? However, recognizing that bar soap is just easier to keep around than another bottle or tube, we like it the solution offers moisturizing jobob oil and shea oil, as well as activated charcoal for detoxification and exfoliation. Brooklyn grooming beard soaps Coming to you from both the Vermont slums (where they know something or two about farm fresh ingredients) and Brooklyn (where they know anything or two about... Well, all but especially about beards), Brooklyn Grooming combines family milk goats, coconut oil, cocoa butter, and pure olive oil to create this easy-to-use, organic product that cleans, not stripping natural oils. Just for men to control GX just as we may want our beard to project a certain level of courage, credibility and experience, sometimes that can come off as too much of a good thing. If you feel like you're not quite ready to go into full Daddy mode (or is it Grandpa?), Just For Men offers a product that not only cleanses and rejuvenates, it also washes in colour to maintain a youthful glow. Combine with Just For Men's Grey-Reducing Shampoo or Anti-Dandruff Shampoo to make sure the carpet matches drapery as it were. And now that you've adequately de-de-esited your beard, it's time to take the journey into the world of beard conditioners. Because you have to keep this one recently cleared of it.
