Area code 516 scams

Irs crooks are up to their old tricks again! One of the most common phone scams every year happens when someone impersonating the IRS calls and starts asking for money. Although Irs will not contact you by phone to request immediate payment, this scam continues to spread. IRS Phone Scam Alert: What you need to know about Hiya, a smartphone app that protects users from phone spam and cheating calls, says there was a 49% increase in IRS scams at the time of this writing (August 2020) compared to 2019. When they call a copycat of the IRS, they'll say you owe them money and that you can threaten legal action or even arrest. Don't get any fool of him. Scammers will often use the caller's id to spoofing to make their number appear as IRS, but that is not always the case. Hiya says these are the top zonal codes where the tax scam calls seem to originate: 202: Washington, D.C. 512: Austin, Texas 214 & 972: Dallas 312: Chicago 410: Baltimore 210: San Antonio, Texas 213: Los Angeles 405: Oklahoma City 212 & 917: New York City 305: Miami Here's a tip from money expert Clark Howard : Never answer phone calls from someone you don't know! If it's a family member or friend trying to get hold of you, they can leave a voicemail and you'll call them back. Remember, Irs won't threaten or ask for payment over the phone. The first contact is usually via regular email. If you've been getting a lot of scam calls lately, now is the time to take action and protect yourself. The Clark team has put together a guide with free and low-cost tools to stop robocalls! More content from Clark.com: Photo of jeshootsPhone call scams have become so common that most of us don't even bother picking up when we don't recognize the number. However, as we grow more warier, scammers get savvier and find ways to get our attention. Inc.com lists some zonal codes that you might want to be careful about. The scam is called 473 Scam. The caller either lets the phone ring once, sends a painful text, or leaves a pre-recorded message that makes the recipient think someone is in danger. Idea? To get you to call back. Inc.com reports: The name scam 473 comes from the fact that criminals were known to use caller IDs with the area code 473-which seems to be domestic, but is actually the area code for the island of Grenada and several other islands outside the United States which, like the U.S., the country code of use +1... Also, criminals who commit 473 scams often set premium numbers-equivalent to 900 numbers that were popular The United States in the pre-internet era. Calls to such numbers can sometimes cost more than $20 for the first minute! In addition to 473, here are some other common area codes use conartists.242 - Bahamas441 - Bermuda784 - St Vincent and Grenadines246 - Barbados809, 829, and 849 - Dominican Republic264 - Anguilla649 - - and Caicos868 — Trinidad and Tobago268 — Antigua664 — MontserratFor more details and the full list, go to the links below. Do not return calls or texts from these zonal codes-It can be a scam | Inc.com through ConsumeristG/O Media can get a commission A scam that seems to reappear periodically is back and help criminals steal people's money. Protecting yourself is simple - if you know phishing works. So here is what you need to know to protect yourself from the three scam variants:1. In the first version of the scam, the criminals target their victims simply by calling them (usually from a robocall autodialer who provides information id the caller that the victim will not recognize) - and hanging before anyone answers, thus awakening the natural curiosity of the recipient of the call. Criminals sometimes do this several times in a row - so victims see a call coming repetitively from a number they don't recognize, further increasing their chances that their curiosity will cause them to call back.2 In another variant of the scam, criminals do not quickly close, but rather wait for the victim intended to answer the call, at which point roboller plays a recording of someone crying for help or sounds of someone in need of medical attention or under attack - and then hangs up. Obviously, many good-hearted people are likely to call back in such a situation. Some criminals can do the same, claiming to be a collection agency, a law enforcement official, or a doctor treating a close relative.3. In the third version of the scam, a criminal sends a text message similar to the voice recording in version 2 - explaining that he or she is in danger and needs help - often causing it to appear as if the message was sent by accident to the wrong recipient. The killer may ask you to call or send messages. In all these cases, the killer wants you to call or send messages. These calls are likely part of what is known as Scam 473, Ring and Run Scam, or One Ring Scam, and the numbers displayed on the caller ID or sent in a text message are likely premium numbers. You will be charged - sometimes quite a package - for any calls you make, or text messages that you send, to them. It's pretty easy to protect yourself: Don't call or send text messages back. The name 473 scam comes from the fact that criminals were known to use caller IDs with area code 473 - which appears to be internal, but is actually the area code for the island of Grenada and several other islands outside the United States which, like the U.S., use the country code +1. placed at 473 numbers are international calls, which are not usually included in dialing plans, and can run up quite a bill. Also, criminals who commit 473 scams often set premium numbers - the equivalent of 900 numbers that were popular in the United States in the pre-internet era. Calls to Numbers can sometimes cost more than $20 for the first minute! (In fact, a few decades ago, similar scams used to be broadcast from inside the United States - criminals would send messages to people's pagers (remember those?) paging them from premium numbers, with the hope that recipients would call back and be charged for calls.) Of course, scam 473 runs from zonal codes other than 473 - at the bottom of this story is a list of zonal codes that appear internal (because they use the country code +1), but are in fact international. In addition to the list of international numbers that look American, note that Canada and various U.S. territories are also part of the +1 country code - and while scammers don't typically run 473 scams from Canada or U.S. territories, some domestic phone plans don't consider calls to these areas to be an internal or free call. For this reason, we have included lists of U.S. territory and the Canadian area codes below as well. The history of scam 473 reveals an important point that you need to know to stay safe. After most Americans became aware that 900 numbers were premium numbers, criminals began to use other domain codes - often 809 (Caribbean islands) - that led to this scam even being known as an 809 scam. After enough media coverage educated people not to turn calls to zonal code 809, criminals moved to other domains codes - assisted by the implementation of many new zonal codes over the past two decades - making it much more difficult for people to recognize which numbers are internal and which are not. Of course, the fact that today's phones allow people to respond quickly to text messages and missed calls means that people are less likely than during the pager era to reconsider whether it's a good idea to respond before calling or texting back. Also, psychologically speaking, people are more likely to become alarmed when they hear another man's voice crying for help than when they see a text message - giving today's crooks another advantage over their counterparts two decades ago. Scammers adapt their techniques as technologies and awareness levels change. As for the lessons, here is the bottom line: If you miss a call, anyone named can send you a text message (or leave a voice message). If they didn't do any, and you don't know who called, don't worry. Also, remember that someone you don't know who is in distress in a location you're not familiar with is unlikely to dial a random number in another country and ask you to would call the police.784 -- St. Vincent and the Grenadines473 -- Grenada, Carriacou, and Petite Martinique809, 829, and 849 -- Dominican Republic868 -- Trinidad and Tobago284 -- British Virgin Islands869 -- St. Kitts and NevisNorthern Mariana Islands -- 670Puerto Rico -- 787 and 939U.S. Virgin Islands -- 340Alberia -- 403, 587 and Colombia -- 236, 250, 604, and 778Newfoundland -- 709 (879 is added in 2011)Northwest Territories -- 867Ontario -- 226, 249, 289, 343, 365, 416, 437, 519, 613, 647, 705, 807, and 905Quebec -- 418, 438, 450, 514, 579, 581, 819 and 873Saskatchewan -- 306 and 639Nation nationally -- 6 000 (and possibly 622, 633, 644, 655, 677 and 688)Also -- Canadian numbers that start 976 by area code (These can be like 900 numbers. The U.S. used to have such numbers as well. Numbers starting with 540 in New York were also premium numbers, but they should no longer be in service.) These days, phone scammers become smarter and more difficult. And if you're not careful, you could make a lot of money out of yourself, the incredulous caller. Aside from hanging up if you hear this four-word phrase, there's something else you can do to avoid becoming a victim. Some area codes may warn potential targets that the call is unsafe, according to Joseph Steinberg, CEO of SecureMySocial. Although the scam callers once used a 900 number, they've changed their methods as the general public has caught on. Now many scam phone numbers have the zonal code 809, which originates in the Caribbean.Still, to keep the public on their trail, scammers hiding behind other numbers as well. Criminals are known to use caller ids with prefix 473, which appears to be internal, but it is actually the area code for the island of Grenada, Steinberg says. Watch out for these phone call scams that could steal your money, too. By the way, those calls are piling up fast. You may be charged at least $5 per minute to take a call from any of these foreign countries, according to AARP. In addition, scammers can scam you out of money through fake timeshares, cruises, or fake stories about danger or money issues. iPhone and Uber scams are also on the rise, making Apple fans and Uber users more aberrate. These are the Uber scams you need to be careful about. To be safe, Steinberg recommends that you don't answer or answer a call from a number you don't recognize. If you actually know the person, they can always leave a voice message. Remember that someone you don't know is unlikely - who is in distress in a location you're not familiar with - to dial a random number in another country and ask you to help them, he says. He'd call the police. Although zone codes 473, 809, and 900 are the biggest culprits for scams, it cannot hurt to be wary of calls from numbers with the following international zone codes.
