This section focuses on laws that deal with sex 10 Table 1 summary, if any, individual states: the age of consent. This is the age of consent. This is a lower age that a person cannot consent to sex in any case, age difference, if the victim exceeds the minimum age of the age of consent, the age difference is the maximum difference between the victim and the defendant to prosecuted for engaging in sexual activity with a minor. The table records those states that this law applies only if the victim is older than a certain age, according to the first column in Table 1, showing the age of consent varies by state. In most states (34) are 16 years old. A common misconception about statutory rape is that the state code determines the same age that a person can consent to by law. Only 12 states have consent, the only age in which a person can not consent to sex in any circumstances, and above all, it is legal to engage in sexual intercourse with another person older than consent. In Massachusetts, for example, the age of the victim, and the minimum age of the defendant. Each is described below. The minimum age requirement in 27 states with no age of consent, the law specifies under age that a person cannot engage in statutory sexual intercourse regardless of the age of 13 can engage in sexual activity legally if the defendant is 4 years younger than the victim, age differences in 27 states The legality of engaging in sexual intercourse with a minor, at least in certain circumstances, depends on the difference between the ages between the parties (see third column in Table 1). In the District of Columbia, for example, it is illegal to engage in sexual intercourse with a person under the age of consent (16) if the defendant is 4 years older than the victim, although it is less common, but age differences in some states vary depending on the age of the victim. In Washington, sex with people aged at least 14 and under 16 is illegal if the defendant is 4 years older than the victim is under the age of 14 (3 years) further decreases if the victim is under the age of 12 (2 years). Minimum age of the defendant to prosecute Sixteen states set the age threshold for the defendant below, where a person cannot be prosecuted for engaging in sexual intercourse with a minor (see the last column in Table 1) in Nevada, the age of consent is 16; however, sexual intercourse with a minor (see the last column in Table 1) in Nevada, the age of consent is 16; however, sexual intercourse with a person under the age of 16 is illegal only if the defendant is at least 18 years old (the age at which the defendant can be prosecuted). States that set the minimum age of the defendant are also likely to have a minimum age requirement. In Ohio, having sex with a person under the age of 13 is Regardless of the defendant, However, if the victim is older than this minimum age requirement (13) and below the consent age (16), it is illegal to engage in sexual intercourse with that person if the defendant is at least 18 years old.
