Jack johnson breakdown live

Jack Johnson & Friends - Best of kokua Live Album Festival from April 17 album returns for the Kokua Hawaii Foundation Thursday, February 23, 2012 (Toronto, ON) - just in time for Earth Day, Brushfire Records/Universal Music Canada will release Jack Johnson and Friends - best of the Cocoa Festival on April 17. The album features a compilation of 13 tracks of live performances from Jack Johnson's benefit concert for the Hawaii Coco Foundation. Proceeds from Jack Johnson and Friends - The best of the Cocoa Festival will benefit the Cocoa Hawaii Foundation (www.kokuahawaiifoundation.org). Jack Johnson & Friends - Best of the Kokua Festival is Johnson's follow-up to his fifth studio album To the Sea, which debuted in #1 on the Nielsen Soundscan album chart when it was released in June 2010. The execution of six years of his eco-minded music festival, Jack Johnson and Friends - the best of Kokua Festival highlights collaborations on stage with legendary musicians such as Willie Nelson, Jackson Browne, Eddie Vedder, Ben Harper, Dave Matthews, Ziggy and Damien Jr. Gong Marley and more. Johnson and his band teamed up with more than a dozen guest artists to perform both original works and spirited covers of classic songs. The album features many popular Johnson gems of rock-solid, including Horoscope (with Eddie Vedder), Mudfootball (with Ozomatli and G. Love), Breakdown (with talented ukulele Jake Shimabukuro), and best together (with Hawaiian singer Paula Voga). Elsewhere on Jack Johnson & Friends - Better than kokua festival, Johnson joins his guests to strip down the delivery of their songs: The Taj Mahal offers him more blues on the road, Jackson Browne reconsiders take it easy with the help of singer/guitarist John Crews (who also shares his Hawaiian island style anthem), and the Marley brothers bring reggae with Ziggy Cry, Cry, Cry and Damien Banger Dance Welcome to Jamrock. Rounding out the record is a select set of covers, including Bob Marley's High Tide or Low Tide (featuring Ben Harper), Bob Dylan I'll be released (featuring Eddie Feder) and Jimmy Bovet the pirate looks at forty (featuring Dave Matthews and Tim Reynolds). Willie Nelson, meanwhile, delivers Harper with the help of taking on blue eyes crying in the rain, and Fred Rose Bennett's classic he's popular. The Kokua Earth Day Weekend has been held in Waikiki Shell, Honolulu, since its inception in 2004, and is a community-focused celebration of music and environmental awareness and as a major fundraiser for the CocoA Hawaii Foundation (a nonprofit organization founded by Johnson and his wife Kim in 2003 to support environmental education in Hawaiian schools and communities). Like the festival itself, Jack Johnson and Friends - The Best of Kokua Festival Lights Who share the mission of the KukuA Hawaii Foundation to protect the planet and cultivate environmental awareness. As a leader in the production of low-impact concerts, the KukuA Festival also reduces energy use and reduces waste through a number of green measures, including: • Cycling row service • Biodegradable concessions - recyclable waste stations, compost waste, food waste • Free water refill stations • Free refill stations • Reusable water bottles • Festival generators and biodiesel vehicles from local sources more, Cocoa Festival compensates for any carbon emissions by financing the development of clean energy in Hawaii. Brushfire released his first fairytale album in 2001, and in the past ten years, it has released 5 more albums that have sold more than 20 million copies worldwide. With his success, Johnson always tried to take the spotlight and shine on issues that were important to him. In 2003, Jack and his wife Kim founded the Kokwa Hawaii Foundation and the Cocoa

Festival to support environmental education in Hawaii schools and communities. Johnson, his Brushfire Records label, and his touring crew were pioneers in greening the music industry in all areas of tour production and album mobilization. In 2004, Jack became the 50th member of 1% for Planet and Johnson's 2005 release in Between Dreams became the first album to carry the label 1%. In 2008, Jack donated 100% of the sleep tour's profits through Thabet to the Johnson Ohana Foundation, a endowment founded by Jack and Kim Johnson to support environmental, artistic and music education around the world. 100% of Jack Johnson's recent tour to the sea has also been donated to charity. These earnings tour donations, along with Johnson's personal charitable activities, have resulted in more than $25 million donated to charity since 2001.
