Foodsaver gamesaver deluxe plus manual

Use this free printable of the small letters to help build letter awareness through alphabet activities, matching games, and more. A few summers ago, the little guy started showing interest in letters and shapes, so I put together a learning activities binder to store some laminated writables as I did. Since then, there have been lots of comments and requests for a printable that contained lowercase letters. Well, I'm happy to announce that it's finally here! This time, not only did I bring a colorful printable with all of the lowercase letters, but also a black line copy that can also be used for lots of activities, too! Plus making these new lowercase printables gave me an excuse to use my laminator, which I absolutely love for projects like this. Just make sure to stock up on lamination bags because once you start, you will want to laminate all things! And something cool that I found out after laminating all of the printables, is that you can actually cut apart the letters and both sides stay laminated! So many times when I've used a different type of laminator and cut things out, a side peeling off ends. Definitely didn't happen with this machine! One of the activities we did was lowercase letter matching. I cut apart the black line alphabet printable and they became matching pieces. An easy way to start by learning the small letters, their names, how they look, etc. You can also do a similar task, but use capital letters as matching bits to start building that connection between the two types of letters. And another fun idea for the black line letters is to play a kind of bingo game. Since these sheets are laminated, it is easy to use dry erase markers on them and then wipe clean. You can call out letters for kiddos to dye in. Or to make it more of an independent activity, kids can choose a letter card and color in matching letters on the sheet. To make it even more challenging for your small students, you can make a mix of lowercase and uppercase letters. Children can also practice writing the letters by tracking each one using a dry erase marker. Then just wipe it clean with a paper towel or baby wipe. 1 To open any of the printable files above, click the image or link below the image.
