The current AGHS is located in george town, five miles south of Uniontown. In 2012, 549 students were eligible for a free or reduced federal lunch due to family poverty. Albert Gallatin High School was originally established in 1951,[3] promoting Masontown and Marion Point High Schools on the present-day AG South middle school campus, near Point Marion. It was not until 1986 that the current building (former Verchans George High School) was used as the only high school for the district, combining all three high schools (at that time) in the area and establishing two intermediate schools. The name was briefly changed to Tree Valley High School, which represents the changes. Finally, in 1993, the school's board of directors renamed the school to its current name, reflecting the founding father of the district, Albert Gallatin. During 1993 and now, the school was a complete renovation and addition process, as well as technological improvements, and a new sports complex,[4] including a new field. AYP history in 2012, Albert Gallatin High School dropped to the level of first corrective work due to continued low student achievement. [5] Under federal law, the child was not left behind, and the school administration was required to notify parents of poor school outcomes, and to provide an opportunity for the parent to move to a successful school within the district. In addition, the school administration was required by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to develop a plan to improve schools to address low school achievement. Under Pennsylvania's accountability system, the school must pay for additional private lessons for struggling students. [6] In 2011, a high school at school level improvement II case remained. [7] The Albert Gallatin District High School decreased to school improvement [2] case in 2010 due to a continuing low student achievement academy. The school has achieved one of 8 academics Evaluation criteria. [7] The high school was at The Improvement School I in 2009. In 2011, the 11th grade of high school ranked 105th out of 123 high schools in western Pennsylvania based on five years of pssas results on: reading and writing mathematics and three years of science. State - 39% 2009 - 27%, state - 40% 2008 - 15%, state - 39% [30] college reform according to a Pennsylvania Department of Education study released in January 2009, 23% of school district graduates required math and/or reading treatment before they are ready to take college-level courses in the Pennsylvania system of higher education schools or community colleges. [31] Fewer than 66% of Pennsylvania high school graduates, who enroll in a four-year college in Pennsylvania, will get a bachelor's degree within six years. Among Pennsylvania high school graduates seeking an associate degree, only one in three graduated in three years. [32] According to the Pennsylvania Department of Education, one in three high school graduates who attended pennsylvania's public and community colleges take at least one course in mathematics, reading or English. Double enrollment offers a high school double registration program. This government program allows high school students to take courses in institutions Local higher, for university credits. Students are still enrolled in secondary school. Courses count towards high school graduation requirements and towards obtaining a university degree. The Continue to get full of activities and programs in high school. Total credits are provided at a very reduced price. The State provides a small grant to help students with tuition, fees and books. [33] Under the Pennsylvania Transfer and Drafting Agreement, many Pennsylvania colleges and universities accept these credits for students who move to their institutions. [34] In 2009-10, the school district received a government grant of $16,103 for the program. SAT grades from January to June 2011, 134 Albert Gallatin students took sat exams. The average verbal score for the region was 454. The average score of mathematics was 471. The average writing score was 442. [35] Pennsylvania ranked 40th among states with SAT scores: Verbal - 493, Mathematics - 501, Writing - 479. [36] In the United States, 1.65 million students took the 2011 exam. The average number of accounts was 497 (out of 800), verbally, 514 mathematics and 489 in writing. [37] The School Improvement Grant granted Albert Gallatin High School a school improvement grant, or sig grant. He was eligible for funding because of chronic and low achievements in high school. [38] In 2010, Pennsylvania received $141 million from the U.S. Federal Department of Education to turn the worst-performing schools. The funds were disbursed through a competitive grant programme. [39] The Pennsylvania Department of Education has identified 200 schools in Pennsylvania as the lowest level of consistent achievement, making them eligible for this private funding. [40] Pennsylvania requires low-performing schools to apply or provide documentation on why they are not applied. The funds must be used, by the district, to convert schools in one of four ways: close the school, restart- close the school and reopen it as a rented school. The other two options involve the dismissal of the director. At least half of the faculty members of a chronically poorly functioning school are required to be dismissed. The second involves intensive teacher training as well as a strong curriculum review or a longer school day. [41] Imethodology and athletics are a large number of sports sports programs and extracurricular activities are available at AG.
