

Blue exorcist fanfiction rin sword

Rin, you've lost your confidence. Uh-uh... Not.. No, Rin's panicked stammer only confirmed my conclusions. Don't wait a second now. Would that stop me from drawing my sword? Seeing him this frantic just made me sad, so I sat and looked at Yukio instead. He looked disappointed in the Rhine. Rin, he said, give back the sword. Rin's panic became even more frenetic; His stutters came more often and he began to pant between each sound. But there was no one there. That's when I noticed the little white dog standing next to our feet. As soon as we were alerted to his presence, the dog turned into the only Mephisto Pheles. Howdy!, he said. Shura's voice instantly turned defensively. What do I want? He was as every valid question. I was wondering the same thing. What do I want? He was as every valid question. Meghisto started snapping his fingers and counting, Eins... Zwei... Drei! On Drei, a large metal cage door appeared and grabbed him, striking the sword directly from his hand and directly into Mephisto's. The Vatican headquarters just sent word, Mephisto said with a trace of evil, his eyebrow shaking at a corner. Due to the recent incident involving Rin's indiscipline, the majority of Grigori's commission of inquiry voted to put The Rhine to his death. I felt my stomach fall. People threatened to turn around me. Both Shura and Yukio froze next to me. The terror gripped my body and my gaze instantly searched for The Body of The Rhine. The last thing I saw was with his desperate, fearful eves, before the claw pulled him into the cage and slammed him locked up with a disgusting thud. The that was fast! Yukio was the first to break his silence, his statement referring to Grigory's decision. Seriously? Mephisto washed his cape back and smelled Yukio, I'm not bored enough to come here just to tell lies. Yukio didn't say anything, he just looked at the floor. I tried to take my shock out to comfort my friend. It worked, but it still felt like an out-ofbody experience. Yukio, I put a hand on his shoulder. Are you okay? He didn't get a chance to answer me, though, like Mephisto interiected, but what's important now is taking down King Impur. He went to say something else, but he stopped when the sneezing destroyed his body. He pulled a napkin out of Yurikara to me, then proceeded to odious blow his nose. How do you know about The Impure King? Shura accused him, but he simply continued to blow his nose. Now she was angry. If you know so much, why don't you help? he growled. I? Mephisto pointed innocently at himself, but continued to wipe his nose. That's out of the question. I can't stand the uncleanness. have allergies, my nose is already... I tuned his words and tried to tune in his thoughts. I didn't normally like doing that, but Mephisto avoided this fight for a reason. His thoughts, however, were incredibly empty. The only one I could take was his thought that he had to take softer tissues. I focused back on his words in time to hear him say, King Impure will grow rapidly, and once he matures, Kyoto will become a city of death. Well, that wasn't good. The defeat of King Impor will have a lot of material appeared out of nowhere and landed in my arms, almost making me drop the sword. I looked at Mephisto, but he just winked and said, I hope it helps. With an end Good luck! and a pink puff of smoke, he was gone with no further explanation. I looked at the material in my hands. These were... My eyes widened when I realized what they were. What did Mephisto want me to do with these? I counted them and felt the tools start to turn into my head. Mephisto was too smart for his own good. I went back to Yukio and Shura, my mind settled on my friend and exchanged my plan, but Yukio's face was emotionless and he was all out of business. For now, let's do the best we can, he said. They will call us to suppress the Impure King. Then he followed down the hall without even a look back to see if we were following him. Shura turned to me. It's bad, isn't it? I nodded, worried about Yukio. I don't need to be a mind reader to know how upset he really was. What are those?, she pointed out to the bundles of fabric. I explained to him what they were and what I thought Mephisto meant to them. I expected her to instantly try to stop me, but she just shook her head. You're crazy, you know that, right? I'm the Order's dog, so I can't help you. And neither should you. I nodded to her, I don't care. I care about the Rhine. Even if he hates me. I've abandoned him once before, I won't. Even if it means losing my Knight Arh status. I'll save Rin. Whatever happens. --The temple's encounters were in chaos as news of the Impure King passed through him. Exorcists were everywhere, taking orders, collecting weapons and preparing for battle. However, it did not take me to find the group we were looking for. Boys! I yelled at the exwires. Come here! Mrs. Luma?, said Suguro. I need your help, I said, deciding to go straight to business. Rin has been given a death sentence for using his flame, and Vatican orders cannot be rescinded. I felt that everyone's shock was going through me, but I continued anyway, Suguro, I'll give you this. I gave him Yurikara. He seemed surprised, but he didn't say anything. I also gave him the ticket. And here's a letter your father wrote to Rin. He says we need the power of Rin to defeat King Impure. Rin wants to help... So I want you to help him escape. He's going to have to prove if he wants to get rid of the execution. I threw Meghisto's gift in the middle of our group. Take these camo ponchos; they'll hide you, so you can go to solitary without the guards noticing. Do you really expect us to be able to do this on our own?, Shima said. Not. I resisted. I'm coming with you. Won't that put you in serious trouble with the Vatican?, asked Suguro. Most likely, I shrugged. But Rin is my friend. I'll do anything to protect him. I thought you'd do the same. It's your decision, but I'm going with or without you. I took a poncho out of the pile, turned to solitary. I started planning i'm going to do this on my own when I hear footsteps behind me. I turned around and was surprised to see Suguro right behind me, Yurikara and poncho in my hand. stopped and waited for you to join me, but soon everyone was coming around the corner. Konekomaru... Izumo... Shiemi... and finally Shima. Everyone decided to come and rescue Rin! Okay, I addressed them. Let's go get our friend. ---Once we approached isolation. we instructed everyone to slip on their ponchos. As the material slipped over their heads, they disappeared; Even my demon eyes couldn't locate them. Before I put mine on, I showed where The Rhine was, and then I pressed a finger on my lips. We (not that we could see them) started down the hall. I held my breath as I walked past the two guards, praying they wouldn't detect us. Suddenly, I heard a sharp breathing in take of me. I came back, but the guards seemed confused. He was one of us! I prayed whoever made the noise would be guiet and continued creeping towards Rin's cell. The guards began arguing, but they did not seem alarmed. At least that was good. I kept moving, hoping the rest were right behind me. Once I got out of the guard line, I slipped off my hood, making myself visible again. Koneko stepped on my foot! I heard a voice without a body. A moment later, Shima's pink hair appeared. Then came Konekomaru's bald head. I'm sorry, Shima. Soon everyone was visible. The whole party has been accounted for. Bon is looking at Das Stärkste Gefängnis. Is that it? Almost as, in response, the door of the giant cell began to speak! Good... More like singing. Toodle dee doo! Wee hee hee! I'm Das Stärkste Gefängnis! Unlock from the outside, but not from the inside! I destroyed my brain trying to remember to defeat this late. Everyone froze in their place. Damn it! I said, out loud. I was going to do this by myself? I destroyed my brain trying to think of a plan when a provisional voice asked me, Miss Luma? What's going on? It was Shiemi! At that moment I could have jumped with joy; I wasn't the only one who didn't freeze. Mrs. Luma? What's going on? It was Shiemi! The answer is because I can freeze anyone who comes near me like an enemy! That's why they call me the strongest! Mwah ha ha! But then... Shiemi addressed the demon. Why didn't I freeze? He laughed in his face. You're not an enemy! You're weak and unarmed! Wee hee hee! The moment I saw her cheeks turned red and her eyes were teary, I pulled her aside, away from her cell. Shiemi, I consoled her. Don't listen to that thing. He's trying to get inside your head. He didn't think of you as an enemy the same way he didn't think I was an enemy. Because we both had no malicious intent on her when she told us we had to fight. Not because you're weak. You're actually one of the most powerful people I know. Because you're kind. You support your friends in ways I just hope to do. Don't let a stupid demon let you think you're not helping. Despite my adversity to her, I was surprised that I really meant it. Maybe Shiemi wasn't so bad after all. He smelled it, but he smiled at me anyway. Are you really serious, Miss Luma? I smiled back. Of course I do. And please, call me Shikito. He nodded and looked back at the cell. So, what are we going to do? I've been thinking about it a little bit. Well, I said, Das Stärkste Gefängnis is unlocked from the outside, but not from the inside. I'm going to try and find Rin. I want you to wait here 15 minutes, then open the door again. You think you can do that? He nodded vigorously. Rin is my friend, she said. I wasn't there for him in weather weather I want to make it up to him. I felt my heart constricting to her words. And I, Shiemi. So am I. --Das Stärkste Gefängnis was a pile of garbage. The minute I walked past the cell door, it was like I was standing in the middle of a dump. Could I find the Rhine in 15 minutes? Maybe I could tell Shiemi to wait a little longer when he opens the door again? I climbed the mountains of garbage, looking for any sign of human life. My demon eyes scanned the horizon... There, there! Rin was on his knees in the middle of one of the larger piles of garbage. Rhine! I called his name and started running towards him. It took a few calls for him to hear me, but when he did he raised his head slowly, as he was tired.

He looked at me, but no animosity came from his direction. Just... I'm patine rolated slowly, the et away from him. He didn't answer me, so I key tog came from his direction. Just... I'm patine rolated slowly, and the with a fight. Why do you carely go, let's go, le you all come to help us? I wouldn't like it if you died, Koneko said, shamelessly. I know you're not dangerous, so let's be friends. Rin's eyes were torn again at the monk's fine words, but Miwa wasn't the only person who had something to say. Just so you know, I'm just following fillss Luma's orders, Shima added. Izumo murmured, I didn't want to come, so be grateful I did. All the words were negative, but Rin and I knew they were all happy to see him. The warmest welcome came from Suguro, who literally hit the Rhine. I lost my head, he apologized. Priest. Friest. Fight early. You were right. But only about my falme for us! So please, trust mel Bon didn't come back to work. I'm taking you to Kongo-Shizan. That was the mountain. That's where King Impur was supposed to be. Then you can do whatever you want. I'll fight on my own. He turned around and started walking back down the corridor when Rin stopped him. Suguro. You have to trust me. I can't help being Statin's child, but I'm going to use my flame for us! So please, trust mel Bon didn't come back, ut he statred talking. Who carees about that?! What I can't forgive is the way you take it all on yourself. You're the one who pushed us way! Why should I trust a guy like that? I'm the only one who thought we were friends!? We were all shocked by his passionate words. It was Rin who gave in first. Not! That's not what I meant! But Ryuji continued. Anyway, is that you mere yorup of exwires who came to help me in my time of need. I looked at the Rhine and felt the heat fill my chest when he smiled at me. There was hope for us after all. Okay, I ordered. It's about time. We're heading to caree a full fanction, would be chapters and all. It will basically be the story of the Blue Exorcist, but toid by an invented character of my own creation. I should be posting chapter updates every or every other Friday! I HOPE YOU'LL LIKE ITI -phanofblueexorcist Shikito Luma. Arch Knight of the Knights of th best for you and Rin I finished my explanation of the events that have occurred in the last three months. Yukio has been silent through the ordeal. When I met him, he just asked me why. Now he sighed, pushing his glasses in his nose. Well, that makes it clear. And it all makes more sense now. I'm not mad at you, Shikito, if that's what you think. I looked at him and I smiled, really? yes, he half laughed. If anything I'm glad to have a friend around. My heart swelled with emotion. Thank you, Yukio. I sat and pulled me into a hug. At least you're not mad at me, I smelled it. You mean Rin?, he asked. I nodded unfortunately, the tears are already coming back to my eyes. I wouldn't worry, he consoled. It won't stay that long. Believe? I Of course you're wondering what's going on. I was now back in my disguise standing in front of the rest of the exwires. It was time for them to know who I was. Yukio explained mostly, Kamiki movered. Well, there's another part of the story, I told him. Does any of you know who Shikito Luma is? You mean the super hot exorcist?! Shima made a pitchfork. Bon hit him, but he continued: She is the Knight Arch. And she's a demon part; she inherited her power from an temptress since she was young. But what does she have to do with Rin? Well, I sighed. That's when I took off my disguise. All the exwires eyes almost got them out of their heads. Y-are you ...? It was all Ryuji could get out. Let me explain, I started.---The exions took my story extremely well. But now the time has come when I was afraid. Rin's first training session. I was alone in the gym, organizing the materials I'd brought. We discussed training methods with Shura the night before, and we had both agreed on the candle method. We were going to get Rin to master his flame by giving him light the two at once, without touching the one in the middle. Not being disguised was more of a blessing than I remembered. Now, I could actually wear the clothes I wanted them to and that were more ideal for my situation. I was in my training gear, which involved a sports top, black spandex leggings, and sneakers. My hair was pulled back into a ponytail and my tail was loose behind me. I felt my phone buzz; It was a call from Meghisto. I walked out of the room and answered him. Hello? Yuujin, please! My son! How are you? I groaned and rubbed my temples. Mephisto, give up the action. Everyone knows who I am now. Okay, but you know I still consider you my baby. I giggled, yes, I know. But why did you call me? Mephisto got serious. You're starting to train Rin today. It was a statement, not a question. Don't let the way you feel for him get in the way of your training. If I suspect anything, I'll get you off the mission. If you take it easy, it will fail and they will kill it. My first reaction was to be insulted, but I knew he was right. Don't worry, I finally answered. It won't be a problem. -He came from us into the training room to find the Okumura brothers who were waiting for me. Yukio was standing outside, but Rin was in one of the training simulators. My heart jumped when I saw the Rhine, but I removed the feeling. Hey, guys. Are you ready? I said hello. Yukio smiled and up, but Rin just slinked out of the simulator, barely take a look at me. I got distracted around when I realized, wait, where's Shura? Talk about the Devil and he will appear, Shura came walking into the room, showing that she was just rolling out of bed. You all certainly look chipper today. Ha! looked at me and rin in turn. With your tails out, and you look like monkeys. I think it was the first time Rin looked at me. He turned and his eves widened when he saw my tail. He seemed to tell me something, but he thought about it and came back. I've got an hour till the next class, Yukio broke his silence. Do you mind if I look? No problem, I told him right at the time Shura said, are you worried? Well, in a way, Yukio replied to Shura. What we're going to do, Rin and Cura addressed, but she made a gesture to me. I took a deep breath and started, first, you have to master your flame. Shura brought these candles... She swayed the bag around precariously. Align three, then light the two outers simultaneously leaving the center untouched. You don't need the sword, do you? Shura walked behind him and snatched him from his hands. Rin nodded, ok, I get it. He sat down and lined up the candles. On the first attempt, The Rhine burst into flames, completely melting the candles. She said the light doesn't melt, shot Shura. Try again, I added. Rin looked at me, but nodded and tried again.---After many (and I mean many) several attempts Rin still failed to complete the task. Urgh!, kept his head in frustration. It's too heavy! It's about control, I explained. Shura chimed in, make three sets every day until you can do this and choose your nose at the same time. I nodded Shura's ridiculousness, but I kept going, when you don't, you're going to train your muscles and study. Rin looked at me with surprise. Seriously, is that it? What about my sword? Don't we have much time? Shura continued to hold The Sword of Rin, but I replied: Do you know why your flame dominates you when you draw your sword? Because you're scared, so it overwhelms you. You need to build your confidence in using the flame, then you can learn to use your sword. That's when I did something I promised myself I wouldn't do. Now that everyone knew who I was, I didn't want to be that who read everyone's mind. Nobody likes to invade their privacy. I've only done it before for the sake of my mission, but now that it's been over, I've sworn off reading my friend's mind. But I was so tempted, that in moment, I decided to read Rin's mind. When I looked into his mind, the first thing I felt was the acceptance to tell me that I was right. But what I still felt brought tears to my eyes. Underneath was hatred, pure and hot, directed at me. I felt like i washes over myself like I was mine, turning my view into red. I couldn't look into his emotions any further; I looked the other way as fast as I could, trying to catch my breath. Shikito? Yukio was instantly on my side. What's that? I took a few more breaths, then I turned to look at him. I'm fine, I'm suddenly numb. He's fine now. He seemed skeptical, but he didn't press on the subject. Shura sent Rin back to light candles, and now he's getting close to me and Yukio. Hey, pigeons. It's been a while, you took her to a game? He's back to the training simulators. Yukio. Shura, and I used to compete in them all the time during our earlier vears. Shura and I always won, but she was doing her best to give Yukio a hard time. I smiled fondly and agreed. Yukio refused at first, but I her arm. Come on, Yuki, or he won't stop ringing with four eves. Finally, he smiled and let me drag him into simulators. I just want you two to know, he said while you start the system. I'm better than I was before you knew it. Then this should be fun, I laughed as he drew his guns, Shura grabbed a wooden sword, and I settled for Tsukiakari. I heard Rin protesting behind us, but Shura yelled at him to play with the candles. Special unlimited way. The game will start in 10 seconds, the automatic voice sounded. I sat down as the balls started to launch. The simulator became easier just after all my years of experience, but this was just what I needed. I heard Yukio and Shura arguing next to me, but I didn't pay attention to them and focused on the simulator. It's been a while since I've been in a real fight. The flex of my muscles while wielding my sword was a feeling I didn't stop him from burning all three of our clothes. Shura and Yukio were only left in underwear, while I stayed with my boys and sports bra. Rhine? Yukio was the one who murmured the question. What are you doing? Rin burst into a sweat. Oh, I'm sorry. Ha! But look, I burned your clothes, but not you or your panties! Pretty good control, isn't it?! I don't think so. Yukio growled, leaving his temper free a little, Right, of course not! laughed, then ran to the fire extinguisher, I folded my sword while Yukio and Shura, Shura, Shura, Rin returned, giving Shura Yukio his shirt and pants, leaving him in ties and boxers. I did my best not to stare. It was an emergency summons. Coal tars have infested an old housing complex in North True Cross. There are injuries; one fell to tempted, and dozens of others were carried out. What's the cause? Shura asked. Unknown, I replied. All the doctors are gathering. That means the three of us are going. What about Rin? We should follow him, said Yukio. This went against my instincts, but I did it anyway. Rhine! I've been calling you. He looked at me. Get ready, we're going on a mission. I looked in dismay as I watched the Rhine and Amaimon continue fighting through the trees. I got tense when I felt a hand on my shoulder, but when I came back to look it was just Yukio. Are you okay?, he asked, worried. I nodded yes; My demon healing has already established most of the damage. We need to get everyone out of here, I said, standing up and brushing me off. Yukio looked at me for a moment. There's more to you than you say, he said, actually. I smiled grimly. If you knew. ---Yukio and I gathered them all together and started to turn to campus. Everyone followed my orders without a doubt. After they saw me fight, they probably realized I wasn't an ordinary student. We finally returned to the city where we found Shura waiting for us. Yukio stormed up to her furiously. You lured me knowing this was going to happen! Is it true? I walked forward in front of my best friend. Don't blow a safety, four eyes, she blew us off. Or should I say eight eyes. I ripped off my glasses, not wanting to disguise. Yukio, Yuujin. Shiemi took a step forward. What's going on with The Rhine? Please explain. Yukio sighed and tried to start, but was cut off from a voice behind us saying, All that blue fire... It puts me in mind that night. We both went back to see a figure in white on top of a peak. Two men were sitting under him at the base. I instantly recognized the annoving voice. It belonged to the only person waiting for me in terms of exorcism. The paladin: Arthur Auguste Angel. He was already locking him out. Despite my high level of skill and demonic powers, Arthur still managed to downplay me. The man never saw me as his equal, which was enough to shake my feathers. I was brought back to the attention when I two figures suddenly appeared in the sky. I muffled the noise that grew inside me when I two figures suddenly appeared in the sky. We haven't seen each other in a long time, he said hello to Arthur. Congratulations on becoming Paladin. If what you found had anything to do with Satan, you would exterminate him immediately, said Arthur calmly. Shura, wouldn't you say this blue flame had something to do with Satan? Everyone remained silent as Mephisto, you finally showed your tail, accused Arthur. The news of your disloyality has even reached Grigori. And this incident proves it. I don't show a tail, Mephisto smiled. What a rude thing to say to a gentleman. Wake up!, shook The Rhine. I missed what he said next when I saw Arthur drawing his sword. . I knew what that meant. Before I blinked, his sword was at Rin's throat. Grigori ordered the death of Satan's bastard! To hell with my secret identity. I activated my sword and headed for Arthur. Not today, Arthur! I shouted. He was gone when I got to the Rhine. However, my demon senses got his movement, and I came back in time to block his attack. Our swords stuck to each other. And who are you? He smiled sickly at me. However, recognition soon flooded his eyes. I recognize that sword. Not now, Arthur, I'm gone. Do I detect nepotism? He pushed me forward. Shut up! I pushed back. Suddenly, Arthur retreated, putting his finger to his ear. It was a message from Grigori. Mephisto will be subjected to immediate interrogation. The boy will serve as proof. Shura, you're a witness. He came back to me. And you... Boy. I went to watch Arthur when I felt a grip on my arm. It was Yukio. Yuujin, he asked. Why are you...? I smiled at him, unfortunately. Oh, Yuki, I thought you'd guessed it by now. His hand left my arm while his jaw fell off. Sh-Shikto? I smiled at him again, then I turned around and followed Arthur and the others.

I waited for Afthur to open the Vatican door when I heard my name. I came back to see The Rhine. Y uujin? he said. Why are you coming with us? They'll use me as a witness, I told hint? To tell Yue, in the Rhine, twas a whole different story. Oh, good. Are you okay? His face showed real concern, and I felt that my heart was tightening. Are you asking me if I'm okay? I half laughed. I was worried about you! I? Ihs went wide. I was worried about you! Where did you learn to fight like tha? De you, Yuujin. Tears came to my eyes as I tried to think of something to say. However, we were soon inaugurated in the Grigori rooms and our conversation was left there.
I entered the royal chamber; it was round with five floors where many exorcists sat muttering to themselves. A raised dais was placed in the middle, under the large, shiny chandelier. Grigori sat on the second level right in front of the dais. When I entered, Arthur pushed The Rhine to the ground and put the sword in Rin's ankle. Rin's cry of pain awakened something in my body; I launched myself to Arthur just so Shura could hold me back. Not now, she did, the current haus way to dais. The court will now hear the case of Mephisto Pheles, head of the Japan Branch of the Krights of the True Cross. Your investigators will be me, Timothee Timowan, chief judge of the Court of Law of the Order, and Haut the hell was Meepisto say. How exist our investigators will be me, Timothee Timowan, chief judge of the Court preceded despite the interruption, but we lost some of what was said. When he finally calmed down, I heard Mephisto say. How were all of the flort awas the dig for invit True. Was filled with a he hurd. Was filled with a hell was Meegine and Sau. What?? That's what it is. I'm not going to hide it anymore. The court brocke out when people heard the truth. The court preceded despite the interruption, but we lost some of what was said. under indictment. However, thanks to 200 years of service, we owe him a measure of trust. Let's submit by a majority of votes if we make this bet. --What appear to be hours past while Grigori silently murmured to each other. Eventually, the order was called back together Grigori stood up and announced: We have decided to accept this bet. I let her breathe because I didn't know I was holding her. I came and put my hand on Rin's shoulder. It happened Rin. You'll be fine. Rin smiled at me, turned around and pulled me into a hug. Thank you, Yuujin. However, Grigori continued. We have a few conditions to set. First, it is that Rin Okumura must pass the exorcist exam in six months. Secondly, to prepare him for the exam, he will be trained by one of us. Knight Arch, the one who possesses demonic powers. She will help him learn to master his powers and teach him common exorcism tasks. Mrs. Luma, will you please show up? I got stuck as my body went numb. Rin noticed and looked at me. Who's that?, he asked. I turned my face, I couldn't bear to look at him. I'm sorry, Rin. I felt his confusion when I started walking towards dais. There was no turning back now. As I walked, I took off my glasses and my contact. When I got to the center of the room, I also took out the beaine and left my hair cascading around my shoulders. Shikito Luma, Knight of the Knights of the True Cross, reports for duty. Can I be of use to you? I'M NOT A DEMON! The table flew all over the room as the 4-year-old threw it away with all his might. I'M NOT! Shikito, get behind me! My mother pushed to be behind her and stood in front of me. Shiro, put that boy in check! I looked to see who my mom was talking to. He was talking to. He was good friends with my parents. Patience, Nami, he told my mother. He leaned in front of the boy and murmured a few words. I've been strained up here, but my mom pulled me out of the room. When I got out of school, he leaned in front of me. Shikito, I want you to stay away from that boy's going to do is going to hurt you, you understand me? Stay away from him, Shikito, and you'll never get hurt. ---Deep down, I knew that my mother was right, but I couldn't stand to see that boy alone without friends. But he wasn't at school the next day. So I listened to my mom and went looking for him. I finally found him, sitting alone on the swing. I approached him guietly, and it was only when I cleaned my neck that he looked at me. Hello! I smiled loudly, keeping my surprise behind my back. My face fell off as he turned around and murmured, what do you want? If you're going to laugh at me and call me a demon's kid, you might as well leave. I was about to accept his offer, and then I realized it was just sad. He expected me to do these things to him. And that made me want to be his friend even more. Here. I made her my surprise, a chocolate cake my mom made. He looked at me in shock. Is this for me? I nodded. I've decided I'm going to be your friend. He kept staring at me with his eyes wide open. R-Really? Wow, thanks! I've never had a boyfriend before. I'm Rin Okumura! I smiled and I said, I know. I'm Shikito Luma and I promise you we'll be best friends forever. --I've come back from the monastery. Shiro found me with Rin a week after we became friends. At first, he wanted to tell my mother, but after some conviction, he let me stay. Rin and I had become inseparable; We were like two peas in a pod. I also became close friends with Rin's brother, Yukio. I even gave him a nickname, Yuki! I lived in a small neighborhood where everyone was friends with everyone. It was a nice place and I enjoyed it There. I rounded the corner leading to my house and almost turned around and ran in the opposite direction. My mother stood in front of the door, with her arms crossed, with your endangered gaze that I knew so well. Go and sit at the kitchen table, she told me, as I climbed the steps. I did what she told me and waited for hell to break loose. My mother stood and put her hands in front of her. Arido (our neighbor) says he saw you when you entered Fujimoto's monastery today. Is that true? There was no point in lying to my mother, so I nodded. I told you to stay away from that boy! He shouted. I sat in silence while she was complaining. That boy's no good! He'll do nothing but hurt you! Sometimes I think he really is the child of a demon! I lost him on that. Of my time with him, Rin was the best person I've ever met. Yes, he had his moments, but deep down he was really thoughtful. Shut up! My mother looked at me in shock. I've never raised my voice before, not once. Don't talk about him like that! He's my friend, not a demon! He never hurt me, and he never will! She's a sweet and caring person! Don't talk about him like my mother put her hand on my face. She looked at me and then at her hand, terrified that she had just slapped her 4-year-old daughter. That's when I heard the screams. It started very poorly until the village was alive with her. My father came into the house and shouted, Demons! They're attacking our village! Take Shikito and get out of here! My mother nodded firmly and took my hand, pulling me out of the house. Stay! What's going on? I fought against my mother's adhesion, but she was too strong. I walked out of the house through the back door and my eyes widened with horror. The village was engulfed in a blue fire that stretched as far as I could see. The screams could be heard from a mile away, I'd learn after. Come on Shikito, we have to get out of here! I was still mad at her, and that's all I could think about. Not! I jerked my hand out of her grip. I'm going to find Rin! I ran as fast as I could away from her, in the direction of the monastery. Not! Shikito come back! It's not safe! arm in the process. The smell of blood filled the air and then the night got worse. I could see them all of a sudden. The demons that caused this horror. And the greatest of them all stood right above me. He was almost 3 metres tall and had stinted teeth. I tried to run, but I twisted my ankle when I fell. I tried to back off, but the thing was too fast. As I was suing, my teeth sank in. Shikito! I turned my head, my eyesight blurred my pain to see my mother. Mom, I whispered to them as the world faded black.— ——-The pain was unimaginable. The whole right side of my body felt like it was on fire. I opened my groggily eyes and looked down at my body. I almost threw up at the sight of so much blood. Through all the pain, the only thing I could think of was the Rhine. All I knew was that I had to find him; I knew he could make this pain go away. Then I started crawling, crawling with one arm. This was going to take a while. --- I hadn't even made it halfway. 8 times; how many times I fainted from the pain. But I kept going. Shikito? I could hear my name. At first I thought it was my imagination, but then I realized it was real. My arms lifted me slightly from the ground. Mom, what's wrong? - the pain eventually stopped, but I felt different. I felt a presence over my shoulder, but every time I looked there was no one there. I opened my eyes to see Shiro looking at Mom, is that you? Those were the only words I could manage and then for the 9th time, I fainted. me. Shikito? Are you okay? I sat down slowly, then regretted it as my hand began to ache. Shiro noticed and puffed my pillow, so I could lie down and talk to him. Shikito, you probably have a lot of questions, and hopefully I'm going to answer them right now. I sat there in silence waiting for him to start. He sighed and started, your village was attacked a week ago by an overwhelming number of high-ranking demons. Unfortunately, everyone was killed, including your parents. You're the only survivor. The reason your village was attacked was because very powerful exorcists lived there. And yes, they were your parents. Almost everyone you knew was exorcists. We tried to get there as fast as we could, but the damage was done before we got close. yes, and I'm an exorcist. Now, you. You were attacked by the most powerful demon out there. He was unknown to us, but he was very, very strong. He gave you an ugly stain, which is a wound caused by a demon that allows you to see them. This covered the entire right side of the body. When I found you on the streets, you were already half dead. Shikito, that temptress should have killed you as soon as you got it. But for some reason, you survived. I've been able to exorcise most of you, but... But... But... But... But... But... But... But for some of the demon has possessed you permanently. Which means you now have the powers of a. We don't know what they are or you can use them, but you have them. Grigori, who is the leader of the exorcists, send you to the Vatican, which is the seat of the exorcists, to examine you and consider whether you are a good or a duty. I took all this in silence. It was a lot to take, but all of a sudden it all made sense to me. I was perfectly fine until Shiro broke the final news. Because of that, you won't be able to see The Rhine. I pulled out of bed, ignoring the dizziness that came with her. What am I supposed to do? I blew up. I mean, I won't be able to see The Rhine!? Shiro sighed: You're not stable. We don't know if you're dangerous or not. You could hurt The Rhine if you see him, is that what you want? I've calmed down. What if I hurt The Rhine? I couldn't live with myself. Shiro, seeing as We're done, continued. We will wait until your wounds are completely healed and then taken to the Vatican. I'm sorry it ended like this, Shikito. I really am. With that, he stood up and let me think about it. Only then did I let the tears come off. ---- That was 11 years ago. I was 4 years old and 15 years ago. A few weeks after I arrived at the Vatican, I was considered safe to be around. Grigori decided to train me in the ways of an exorcist, and I am now the Honorable Knight (it is the one under Arch Knight) and the youngest exorcist ever. I've mastered all five meisters. But now I have a tail (that's really fun to play with when I'm bored). I also have the power to see people's memories and read their thoughts and I have the power to evoke red ice. A few months after my exorcist training, Shiro tied my ice powers to a bow. It's only when I pull the strings that my powers activate. I don't have arrows; they appear automatically when I pull back and shoot. My bow is my main weapon, but I also possess two pistols, a *K'rik, and a katana. I learned the true legacy of Rin and Yukio a week after I started my training. I saw Yukio again when he started his exorcist training, but I haven't seen the Rhine since that day. So far. I've been assigned to keep an eye on him from Shiro, it looks like Rin's powers have acted. After 11 long years, I was finally going to see him again. Too bad this was the day all hell broke loose. a weapon similar to that of Shima and the Renzo family. I'm proud to announce that we're going to start removing these demands as soon as possible. Thank you to everyone who staved with us and continued to ask for things. I'll see you soon! What That? Ryuji asked again. Both The Rhine and I looked at him in silence. How much did he see? Instead of asking the same question for the third time, he asked: Is Moriyama okay? This broke the Rhine and I went back to our senses. Rin explained that Shiemi was fine and Bon told Rin to turn off his flashlight. So I tended to Moriyama, Suguro asked the question both Rin and I feared. What was the blue light? In this darkness, it practically blinded me. I couldn't see what it was. Before Rin could say anything, I jumped too. Rin and I had just arrived at Shiemi when the light went out; blinded us, too. Moriyama was lucky we didn't trip over her. From the corner of my eye, I saw Rin shoot me with a grateful look. As we were talking, Shiemi began to resemble. Suddenly, he fired and called out to the familiar. Tears came to his eyes when he lifted his broken invocation circle. You can call him again with a magic circle, said Ryuji calmly. Where are your things? Shiemi went through her purse, but her forehead was torn. Some of it's gone. Maybe he fell while I was running? Running away from moths?, asked Rin. I hit my head and lost consciousness, Shiemi explained. But it looked like a big moth. A big moth? I was about to ask Shiemi to explain more details when I felt something in the bushes. Rin felt it too as I both strained up. Rhine unsheathed his wooden sword as a large shape jumped out of the bushes and met the blow. It took us all a moment, but eventually we recognized the figure as Shima. He looked around at all of us. What are you all doing here? Bon fought back. Shima looked at him all of a sudden. There were moths all over me, and then I... It's all in the fog. Yes, of course I do. You hate cockroaches, Ryuji remembered. Suddenly, both boys' phones started vibrating. Suguro took out his, then showed it to us. It's from Konekomaru. The message read: I found a flashlight. One person can't pass this test. Let's work --Konekomaru sent directions along with his message, and we could soon make the boys figure among the trees. Hey guys! He called us. Oh great! You brought Okumura, Moriyama and Faust! It's going to get even better. I turned the corner and suddenly understood what Konekomaru was talking about. It wasn't a paper lantern that we had to light up and bring back. It was a peg flashlight; a 2-metre high flashlight; a 2-metre high flashlight that attacks and eats people for fuel when it's on. It's definitely going to take more than one person to move this thing. After Konekomaru explained to the rest of the group, I circled the flashlight and examined it. If I could do that in any way. I'd have Yukiokami carry the lantern. My familiar is feared in the world of demons, so the lantern would do nothing to me or him. But that won't be possible. I went back to the group just to hear Konekomaru explain his plan to bring the flashlight back to base. As I listened to his plan, a smile came to my face. These kids were going to do excellent exorcists one day.---The first thing we did was put the lantern in a cart we found nearby. Then I sealed it, with the seals that were around it previously. Bon began chanting the sutra to keep him at bay. We lit the lantern and managed to keep it on, with Moriyama feeding him the chuchi we captured. However, due to the bright light of the lanterns, it attracted even more demonic moths, but it was my job, Shima and koneko to fight them. And in the end, The Rhine had the most horsepower, so he was the one who pulled the cart. Everything was going in the air until I came out of the trees to see a dilapidated bridge hanging over a murky river. We weren't going to cross the cart over the bridge to try and come up with a plan when I heard a screech behind me. Shima became pale everywhere, and he was stumbling all over his words. I looked at him in confusion, but then I looked back at the river. Well, what I thought was a river. It turned out to be a chasm full of writhing insects. I quickly pulled out of the edge. I may be an exorcist, but I still don't like cockroaches. I turned to the other one. Bon, still reciting his sutra, took Shima'k's shik'k and threw it into bugs that cause Shima to fade all over again. To my surprise, the cockroaches covered only one eight of the weapon; the chasm was quite superficial. Bon took a paper pad and a pencil out of his bag and wrote, I have an idea. Bon's idea was actually brilliant. Konekomaru, Shima and I crossed the bridge, while The Rhine was carrying the cart through the cockroach pit. Then he turned around and put Shiemi on his shoulders, while Bon removed the seal from the flashlight. Lantern would spring to life and come after Shiemi. Once he got to the opposite shore, Koneko would put the seal back on. Rin was now in the middle of the pit with Shiemi, and Ryuji was about to removed the seal. The flashlight came to life, and seeing Shiemi, it took off like a rocket. Rin ran as fast as he could to the other side. Both Shima and I were prepared in case something went wrong. Rhine and almost reached the other side, when the flashlight suddenly turned and began to turn directly at me! I've heard everyone's cries of surprise, but my exorcist skills have already begun. I quickly got out of the way, bumping into one of the supports on the bridge When the flashlight came after me again, I turned to the wagon. Konekomaru! Now! I shouted. When the flashlight jumped into the cart to get my breath back. Yuujin! Rin ran away and knelt next to me. Are you okay? The concern in his eyes was overwhelming. I put a hand on his shoulder. I'm fine, I promise. We were so caught up in our moment that we didn't notice when Bon came up behind us. What the hell he exclaimed. We both looked at him. Why the hell did he come after you? I knew why. My strong demonic presence attracted him, all the more so because I am actually a woman; That's why he didn't go after the Rhine. But instead I said, I don't know? I think I smell good for demons? Suguro turned his eyes. Well, anyway, let's move on. We all stood up and prepared to move, when all of a sudden, two long trendles came out of the pit and wrapped around the Rhine, pulling it into the air. Rhine! I shouted, as he was suspended in the air. A giant moth exploded from the insect chasm. When he got up, I noticed that the seal next to the bridge was broken. I think I broke it when I hit the pole during the flashlight fight. We were all desperately looking for a way to free Rin when I heard him shout: I'm fine! I'll take care of it and I'll catch up! Go without me! With a quick look into his thoughts, I discovered that The Rhine was planning to use his flame to defeat the moth after everyone had left. It's okay, guys, I supported him. I'll stay and help, I'll move on. Instead of leaving, Suguro tore his forehead and gnawed his teeth. Bugger! I'll help you, he exclaimed. He took Shima's staff, took a seal, glued it to the end and threw it directly at the moth. He began chanting a sutra, causing the moth to spout in pain. He released The Rhine and collapsed to the ground. The staff fired back into Suguro's hand, and we all went into the woods. Thanks! Rin called Bon while I was running. I was just giving you your money back! he shouted back. You saved me, not sharing my ridiculous desire to defeat Satan, but by declaring it openly! We all slowed down when Konekomaru pointed out that the moth was no longer following us. Listen, I don't think you're stupid, he continued. But don't try to do it all by yourself! Don't forget you have friends! Rin was amazed by Ryuji's words. Everyone joined. Defeat Satan on his own, Koneko adds. Well said, Bon, Shima and Shiemi contributed, too. We're all here for you, Rin, I told him. Always. — —-Finally, we're back in camp. Shura was waiting for us; also in compensation were Izumo and Takara, along with the other two lanterns. I didn't even try to wrap my brain around how the two managed the lanterns on their own. Um, is that all of you? I came back to see that Shura was the one who spoke. So I guess no one gave up! Then who used the glass rocket? Suddenly I was aware of Yukio's absence. Suddenly, a figure exploded from the trees. Behemoth! I heard him scream. It was Amaimon! It's not going to be okay. Both The Rhine and I were frozen at the sight of Neuhaus' entrance to the room. Rin walked forward and said something when suddenly a huge shape burst out of the ceiling, hitting Rin in the head. The figure turned out to be Mephisto. What the hell is going on? Hiya! Good job, Pages!, he said. Everyone was staring at him, bet. You don't think I'd let a mid-level demon get in here, do you? With a moment of fingers, parts of the floor, walls and ceiling burst out, revealing several exorcists hidden underneath. If possible, the shock on everyone's face has multiplied. With a flowering of his arms Mephisto announced, that's right! The intensive study camp itself was the Exwire Certification Exam! The faculty went into hiding and noticed your performance. I'll determine who died after i.e. I look forward to my announcement of results tomorrow! And with that it disappeared.

-Later, we all stayed in the hospital wing. They were running diagnoses on all of us to make sure the ghoul did no serious harm. Rin was still trying to wrap his head around the whole situation. A surprise test. They completely fooled us! Konekomaru was nervous about whether he had passed or not. Both Bon and I offered him words of comfort, but he shook them. You're going to be fine! I could barely get up! You're going to be fine! I could barely get up! You're going to be fine! I could barely get up! You're going to be fine! We looked to see who talked. It was lzumo. Mr. Okumura told us to work together, she continued. An exwire must cooperate. Which means I totally failed. You're better than some, though, Bon crying, gestily at Takara and Shura in her disguise. Shura continued to play her game, and I stifled my laughter by pretending to cough. Because of the noise, Shiemi stirred up behind me and The Rhine. I'm sorry to wake you up, and apologized to Rin. Shiemi ruled out the apology: It's okay. I'm much better. What's everyone talking about? The exam, I answered. You beat us all, Konekomaru said. Suguro bowed his head in a show of respect: I don't like to think what would have happened without you. Thank you very much. Shiemi's face turned red in bright red when she became agitated by all the praise. Okumura, Faust, did you beat that vampire? Konekomaru turned his attention to Me and the Rhine. Oh, uh, i'm on it. I had Kasai distract him, and then I stabbed him with a sword, he finished The Rhine. We looked at each other and nodded. Everyone was complaining about how vague the description was when I heard a voice floating above the others. It was Kamiki. But he was sitting in silence. I realized I could hear his thoughts, two pages defeated a mid-level demon by himself? With just a sword and a familiar? Cannot! --That night, in my room. I was sitting at my desk with a large pile of papers stacked in front of me, still disguised. Who would have known that being the Knight Bow came with so many papers? Suddenly, my phone started vibrating. I looked at the caller ID; It was Yukio. What was Yukio doing, calling me after midnight? Hello? I brought my phone to my ear. Yuujin? Yukio's voice was guiet, but breathless over the phone. I sat more straight on the chair. He seemed panicked. Yukio? What's going on? Yuujin, I want you to get Rin out of our room right now. I don't have time to explain, but I just want you to get him out of there. I was already out of my chair before I had even finished his sentence. On her, I whispered guickly in her phone before she hung up and slipped it in her pocket. I stuck my head in the lobby and looked both ways. The corridor was dark and I didn't hear anything out of the ordinary, so I ran quietly down the hall. To my surprise, the boys' door was unlocked. I shook my head to clear my head. Now was not the time to think of something like that. Not wanting to wake him up, I took him carefully along with the pillow and blanket and took him back to my room. Thank God for the power of demons. Wanting to be ready, I pulled out my two normal weapons and slipped them into my waistband. Then I knelt down and waited. Rin remained asleep as I listened closely for any activity in the lobby. That's when I heard him. The weak steps that descend down the hall and stop right in front of the Okumura door. I was listening so carefully to what was going on outside that I didn't hear Rin wake up. Y-Yuujin? What am I doing here?, he said, disoriented from I put my finger on my lip and made him shut up. You were asleep, so I carried you here, I explained. Yukio called me and told me to get you out of there. He didn't tell me what was going on, but I guess it was bad. My head and Rin's were suddenly masturbating when I heard the sound of gunshots twisted through the building. It must be Yukio! Rin exclaimed. He was coming from the stairs, but we stopped when we heard another explosion above us. The roof, Rhine should hit Yukio and sent him flying over the roof. Neuhaus stood behind me. He shot in front of me and opened the roof door. I bit back a cry like a huge should hit Yukio and sent him flying over the roof. Neuhaus stood behind the ghoul; You must have called him. I knew he was no good! Thinking guickly, Rin threw his sword into Naberius, where he integrated into the demon's side. wet. He must have had a concussion. Yukio? Are you okay? I tried to get him to answer me. He murmured something I couldn't discern. What am I supposed to do? I leaned closer to him. Th-circle, breathed. The pieces clicked in my head as soon as he said it. I turned to see Rin trapped in the grip of the naberius. I moved quickly forward and slipped my hand through the large invocation circle in the middle of the roof. The ghul disappeared instantly. Neuhaus's gaze turned to me. His gaze was filled with hatred, but it was enough to distract him for a moment. When he returned, he looked in shock to see Rin's sword at his neck. What are you? Rin was growling. Neuhaus! The cry came from behind me. Yukio stood weakly, but leaned against the wall. For your own good, stop! You're going to die of blood loss! That's when I noticed Neuhaus' arm; it was wet with blood. You must have had invocation circles on your arm like mine. I'm... Neuhaus spoke softly. ... a Blue Night survivor! Everyone's shock was evident when Neuhaus raised his eve pate to discover a portion of mutilated skin where the eve should have been. Satan possessed me for only a few moments, he continued. But I lost this eve, and my family, who tried to save me. He used my hands to kill them. I felt the pain as if it had been mine. I can never forgive Satan or any demon, much less the son of Satan! that's what I'm going to do for you. Even if it costs me my life! And with the hand of a vampire shot from his arm, directly into The Intestine of Rin. Rhine! both Yukio and I exclaimed. However, instead of falling, The Rhine just looked at Neuhaus, the blood dripping from the sides of his mouth. Feel better now? he asked. What was Rin doing? If that's not enough, he continued, wrapping his sword. I'm used to stuff like that, so I'll take it all you can. But don't involve anyone else in this! Neuhaus was just looking at the Rhine. You think that solves the problem? Others will follow, so be prepared! And with that he left. Yukio and I were immediately with the Rhine. Why did you do that?! Yukio punished. It's okay, I'm healing. Rin lifted his shirt to show that there was no wound, only a blood stain where he had been. I've always healed guickly, Said Rin, mockingly. And now I really am a monster! Rin, I put a hand on his shoulder. Rhine! His name was said again, this time over the roof. It was Shiemi. What was he doing here? I was kind of miffed by her presence, but I did giggle to myself when she forced Rin to lie down so that she could heal him. I connected to Yukio's thoughts. Rin could always do what I couldn't. I can't beat him... I smiled affectionately at my two brothers. But I still had a bad feeling in · You're all promoted to Exwires! Congratulations! Mephisto waved his arms into the air while confetti was raining. Everyone applauded as Mephisto claimed he was taking us out for monjayaki to celebrate. I was excited, but I was still worried. What did my stomach. Neuhaus mean by others? I didn't know at the time; all I knew was that I would do my best to protect the Rhine; regardless of what this entails. See this in the Show more app
