

I'm not robot

Continue

Og mandino scrolls 3

Augustine Og Mandino was a man who lived a very interesting life. He is best known for his bestselling The World's Greatest Seller one of the self-help classics. The book is not a manual to become one of the leading sellers, but rather an inspiring tool to motivate yourself to succeed. The 10 principles of the Mandino scroll are easy and life-changing. Parchment 1 – Today I start a new life. Parchment 2 - I will greet this day with love in my heart. Parchment 3 - I will persist until I succeed. Parchment 4 – I am nature's greatest miracle. Parchment 5 - I will live this day as if it were my last. Parchment 6 - Today I will be master of my emotions. Parchment 7 - I'll laugh at the world. (Keep perspective) Parchment 8 - Today I will multiply my value a hundred times. Parchment 9 - I'm going to act now, I'm going to act now, I'm going to act now. Parchment 10 - I will pray for guidance. I will persist until I succeed. Every day I will be tested by life as the bull that is chipper in the fighting arena with bravery and willingness to attack despite the sting of the blade. If I persist, if I keep attacking, I will succeed. A great analogy to remember and share with others. So much wisdom on this scroll and it fits so perfectly into my life now. Never give up and try again until I succeed. One step in the moment, a blow to the blade against the mighty oak and even the greatest task will be fulfilled. I'm not a sheep waiting to be poked by my shepherd. I'm a lion and I refuse to talk, to walk, to sleep with the sheep. The slaughterhouse of failure is not my destiny. Every step I take, I'm going to keep moving forward, to greener pastures. With every failure there is my chance of success. I'll never know when that's going to happen until I take the next step and then another. I never give up while refining my way of thinking and expressing myself positively. I'll see each challenge as an opportunity, riding out of the storm, developing the skills to win. I'm encouraged to try again even if i'm tired, lost and feeling like giving up. Never allowing the day to end in failure. When others rest, I'll keep going. Nor allow success to blur my vision and fall into complacency. I will meet every day with the same enthusiasm and persistence to make the day the best day of my life. I will persist and I will win *From The Marked Scroll III, Og Mandino, the greatest seller in the world. The Marked Scroll III will persist until I succeed. In the East young bulls are tested for the fighting arena in a certain way. Each is taken to the ring and allowed to attack a chipper who pierces them with a spear. The bravery of each bull is then carefully classified according to the number of times it demonstrates its willingness to attack, despite the bite of the blade. Blade. I will reog-nize that every day I am tested by life in a similar way. If I persist, if I keep trying, if I keep attacking, I'll succeed. I will persist until I succeed. I have not been delivered to this world in defeat, nor the course of failure in my veins. I'm not a sheep waiting to be poked by my shepherd. I'm a lion and I refuse to talk, to walk, to sleep with the sheep. I will not listen to those who weep and complain, for their disease is contagious. Let them join the sheep. The slaughterhouse of failure is not my destiny. I will persist until I succeed. The prizes of life are at the end of each journey, not near the beginning; and I am not given to know how many steps are needed to achieve my goal. Failure I can still find in the thousandth step, but success lurks behind the next bend in the road. I'll never know how close you are unless I turn the corner. I'll always take one more step. If this isn't successful, I'm going to get another one, and one more. In fact, one step at a time is not very difficult. I will persist until I succeed. From now on, I will regard each day's effort as just a blow from my blade against a mighty oak tree. The first blow may not cause a tremor in the wood, neither the second, nor the third. Every scam, by itself, can be insignificant, and it doesn't seem to have any consequences. However, from childish blows the oak will eventually tum-ble. Then it will be with my efforts today. I'll be compared to the raindrop that washes the mountain; the ant that devours a tiger; the star that illuminates the earth; the slave who builds a pyramid. I will build my castle one brick at a time, for I know that small, repeated attempts will complete any undertaking. I will persist until I succeed. I will never consider defeat and remove from my vocabulary words and phrases such as leaving, cannot, unable, impossible, out of ques-tion, unlikely, failure, unviable, hopeless and retreat; for they are the words of fools. I'll avoid despair, but if this disease of the mind infects me, then I'll work in despair. I will work and resist. I will ignore the obstacles at my feet and keep my eyes on the goals above my head, for I know that where the dry desert ends, the green grass grows. I will persist until I succeed. I'll remember the old law of averages and bend it for my own good. I will persist with the knowledge that every failure in the sale will increase my chance of success in the next attempt. Every no I hear will bring me closer to the sound of yes. Every frown I know only prepares me for the smile to come. Every misfortune you find will carry in it the seed of good luck of tomorrow. I must have the night to enjoy the day. I must fail many times to succeed only once. I will persist until I succeed. I'm going to try, try and try again. Each that I will consider as a mere deviation from my goal and a challenge challenge my profession. I will persist and de-arm my abilities as the sailor develops his, learning to come out of the wrath of every storm. I will persist until I succeed. From now on, I will learn and apply another secret of those who stand out in my work. When every day is over, it's not a success or a failure, I'll try to get another sale. When my thoughts wave to my weary body home, I will resist the temptation to leave. I'm going to try again. I'll make one more attempt to close with the victory, and if that fails, I'll do another. I will never allow one day to end a failure. So I will plant the seed of tomorrow's success and gain an unsurpassed advantage over those who cease their work at a prescribed time. When others cease their struggle, then mine will begin, and my harvest will be full. I will persist until I succeed. Nor will I allow yesterday's success to shake me in today's complacency, for this is the great basis of failure. I will forget the events of the day that is gone, good or bad, and greet the new sun with confidence that this will be the best day of my life. As long as there's breath in me, I'll persist for a long time. For now I know one of the greatest successful prin-ciples; if I persist enough I'll win. I will persist. I'm going to win. by Og Mandino [original source here] Augustine Og Mandino was a man who lived a very interesting life. He is best known for his bestselling The World's Greatest Seller one of the self-help classics. The book is not a manual to become one of the leading sellers, but rather an inspiring tool to motivate yourself to succeed. The 10 principles of the Mandino scroll are easy and life-changing: Parchment 1 – Today I start a new life. Parchment 2 - I will greet this day with love in my heart. Parchment 3 - I will persist until I succeed. Parchment 4 – I am nature's greatest miracle. Parchment 5 - I will live this day as if it were my last. Parchment 6 - Today I will be master of my emotions. Parchment 7 - I'll laugh at the world. (Keep perspective) Parchment 8 - Today I will multiply my value a hundred times. Parchment 9 - I'm going to act now, I'm going to act now, I'm going to act now. Parchment 10 - I will pray for guidance. I will persist until I succeed. Every day I will be tested by life as the bull that is chipper in the fighting arena with bravery and willingness to attack despite the sting of the blade. If I persist, if I keep attacking, I will succeed. A great analogy to remember and share with others. So much wisdom on this scroll and it fits so perfectly into my life now. Never give up and try again until I succeed. One step in the moment, a blow to the blade against the mighty oak and even the greatest task will be fulfilled. I'm not a sheep hoping not to be pushed Pastor. I'm a lion and I refuse to talk, to walk, to sleep with the sheep. The slaughterhouse of failure is not my destiny. Every step I take, I'm going to keep moving forward, to greener pastures. With every failure there is my chance of success. I'll never know when that's going to happen until I take the next step and then another. I never give up while refining my way of thinking and expressing myself positively. I'll see each challenge as an opportunity, riding out of the storm, developing the skills to win. I'm encouraged to try again even if i'm tired, lost and feeling like giving up. Never allowing the day to end in failure. When others rest, I'll keep going. Nor allow success to blur my vision and fall into complacency. I will meet every day with the same enthusiasm and persistence to make the day the best day of my life. I will persist and I will win *From The Marked Scroll III, Og Mandino, the greatest seller in the world. The Marked Scroll III will persist until I succeed. In the East young bulls are tested for the fighting arena in a certain way. Each is taken to the ring and allowed to attack a chipper who pierces them with a spear. The bravery of each bull is then carefully classified according to the number of times it demonstrates its willingness to attack, despite the bite of the blade. From now on I will regli-nize that every day I am tested by life in a similar way. If I persist, if I keep trying, if I keep attacking, I'll succeed. I will persist until I succeed. I have not been delivered to this world in defeat, nor the course of failure in my veins. I'm not a sheep waiting to be poked by my shepherd. I'm a lion and I refuse to talk, to walk, to sleep with the sheep. I will not listen to those who weep and complain, for their disease is contagious. Let them join the sheep. The slaughterhouse of failure is not my destiny. I will persist until I succeed. The prizes of life are at the end of each journey, not near the beginning; and I am not given to know how many steps are needed to achieve my goal. Failure I can still find in the thousandth step, but success lurks behind the next bend in the road. I'll never know how close you are unless I turn the corner. I'll always take one more step. If this isn't successful, I'm going to get another one, and one more. In fact, one step at a time is not very difficult. I will persist until I succeed. From now on, I will regard each day's effort as just a blow from my blade against a mighty oak tree. The first blow may not cause a tremor in the wood, neither the second, nor the third. Every scam, by itself, can be insignificant, and it doesn't seem to have any consequences. However, from childish blows the oak will eventually tum-ble. Then it will be with my of today. I'll be compared to the raindrop that washes the mountain; the ant that devours devours tiger; the star that illuminates the earth; the slave who builds a pyramid. I will build my castle one brick at a time, for I know that small, repeated attempts will complete any undertaking. I will persist until I succeed. I will never consider defeat and remove from my vocabulary words and phrases such as leaving, cannot, unable, impossible, out of ques-tion, unlikely, failure, unviable, hopeless and retreat; for they are the words of fools. I'll avoid despair, but if this disease of the mind infects me, then I'll work in despair. I will work and resist. I will ignore the obstacles at my feet and keep my eyes on the goals above my head, for I know that where the dry desert ends, the green grass grows. I will persist until I succeed. I'll remember the old law of averages and bend it for my own good. I will persist with the knowledge that every failure in the sale will increase my chance of success in the next attempt. Every no I hear will bring me closer to the sound of yes. Every frown I know only prepares me for the smile to come. Every misfortune you find will carry in it the seed of good luck of tomorrow. I must have the night to enjoy the day. I must fail many times to succeed only once. I will persist until I succeed. I'm going to try, try and try again. Every obstacle I will consider as a mere deviation from my goal and a challenge to my profession. I will persist and de-arm my abilities as the sailor develops his, learning to come out of the wrath of every storm. I will persist until I succeed. From now on, I will learn and apply another secret of those who stand out in my work. When every day is over, it's not a success or a failure, I'll try to get another sale. When my thoughts wave to my weary body home, I will resist the temptation to leave. I'm going to try again. I'll make one more attempt to close with the victory, and if that fails, I'll do another. I will never allow one day to end a failure. So I will plant the seed of tomorrow's success and gain an unsurpassed advantage over those who cease their work at a prescribed time. When others cease their struggle, then mine will begin, and my harvest will be full. I will persist until I succeed. Nor will I allow yesterday's success to shake me in today's complacency, for this is the great basis of failure. I will forget the events of the day that is gone, good or bad, and greet the new sun with confidence that this will be the best day of my life. As long as there's breath in me, I'll persist for a long time. For now I know one of the greatest successful prin-ciples; if I persist enough I'll win. I will persist. I'm going to win. by Og Mandino [original source here] here]

66894651528.pdf , 14866711751.pdf , manualidades papel de seda para niños , bluedriver_bluetooth_professional_obdii_scan_tool_compatibility.pdf , driver brother dcp t300 windows 7 , core java interview programs pdf , arctic_tundra_natural_resources.pdf , dream cricket app apk , 14321331993.pdf , humanistic theory of personality psychology definition , free windows 8 pro activation key 64 bit , 19195735522.pdf ,