Ecuadoria HospitalSan Juan de Dios HospitalGeographyLocationEcuadorServicesHistoryOpened1565Closed1974LinksListsHospitals ecuador San Juan de Dios Hospital was a hospital in Quito, Ecuador. It was the first hospital to be established in the city, open since 1565 in 1974. It has been designated a UNESCO Heritage Site. Since 1998, the building that maintained the hospital has served as the Quito City Museum and maintains a small permanent collection related to the hospital's history. History In 1565, Philip II of Spain ordered the construction of a hospital, 31 years after the founder of Quito. In particular, the king ordered that Ecuadorian or Spanish-born people who lived around the hospital be treated, but in particular the army, which was protected in his colony, was to receive a favour from the hospital. [1] The original name, the Holy Mercy Hospital of our Lord Jesus Christ[1], was run by the Dominican Brotherhood from the Brotherhood of Charity and Mercy from its founder until 1705. [2] In 1693, the Dominicans established the Medical Chairman of San Juan de Dios to study how scientific methods developed in Europe can be combined with traditional medical practices in Ecuador. [1] In 1706, the hospital administration was transferred to the Bethlehem brothers, who continued to study Dominicans. Two of the hospital's pioneering researchers were Luis Chusig and Pedro Leiva. Chusig, an Ecuadorian native who had to change his name to Eugenio Espejo to study medicine, discovered that many diseases were caused by microorganisms long before Pasteur's discoveries. Dr. Pedro Leiva revealed that the cure for malaria was in the bark of the cinchona tree. [1] The Bethlehem brothers ran the hospital until 1830, when the state took over the administration. The Ecuadorian government, with the support of the charity's sisters, ran the hospital until it closed. [2] The hospital also served as a hospice, maternity and children's centre, also breastfeeding sexually transmitted diseases and skin diseases. Patients were treated by herbalists, shamans, nurses, doctors, barbershops, blood letters, sisters of charity, nurses, technicians, social workers and monks. [1] The hospital had a nursing home located in the oldest civilian building in Quito. [3] San Juan de Dios Hospital closed its doors in 1974 after 409 years of continuous service. The buildings designated as a UNESCO heritage site[1] became the City Museum in 1998. As part of its permanent builds, the museum houses the historical records of the hospital. The 31-year-old - whose full name is Juan de Dios Prados Lopez - came through Real Betis' youth system and made his La Liga debut against Real Madrid in February 2007. He scored his first senior goal the following season in a 3-1 away win over Atletico Madrid and was heavily linked with a move to Liverpool at the time. After four years with Betis, the midfielder headed to Belgium, where he spent the season with Westerlo, before returning to Spain and joining second-tier Ponferradía. In 2014 Juande headed abroad again, this time to Italy and Serie B side Spezia, for whom he made almost 60 appearances in three seasons. After showcasing his talents in several European competitions, Alicante's man is confident he can succeed in Hyundai's A-League. I haven't seen many A-League games, he admitted, but it doesn't matter if it's a tough physical league like Serie B in Italy or more technical than the Spanish leagues, I can adapt my game to both styles. I like to play for the team and try to bring balance to the middle of the midfield. Juande harries Samuel Eto'o in Spain. I spoke to a lot of other Spanish players who have played in the A-League and they all talked about it very much so it was an easy decision. Now that I'm here, I can see that the atmosphere is really good and my teammates and staff are very good people. I'm really glad I'm here. As for what to expect as a new recruit, Glory Football Director Jacob Burns feels he brings a lot to the table. Juande has everything you want from a midfielder, he said. He has a great passing lane, he can act as a playmaker and also go into the box and I'm sure he'll prove to be an excellent addition to the team again. Prosecutors accuse Juan de Dios Usuga and his brother Dairo Antonio of jointly leading the Urabenos gang. Police say Juan de Dios Usuga, 44, was shot dead as officers tried to arrest him at his farm in Choco province. A police officer was killed in a 30-minute firefight. Security forces are continuing their search for Dairo Antonio Usuga. According to police, the informant said Juan de Dios Usuga was celebrating New Year's Eve at his farm in Casa Verde, northwestern Choco province. They sent a special operations team to the area, which moved in in the early hours of Sunday morning local time. According to security forces, Usuga and his bodyguards opened fire and shot a police officer as they jumped out of a helicopter. They said Usuga died in exchange of gun fire. Three suspected gang members were injured and arrested. Ten arrest warrants had been issued for Usuga's arrest for alleged crimes such as murder, forced disappearances and forced displacment. According to prosecutors, the Usugan brothers control a 500-confirmed criminal gang called Los Urabenos, according to the northern Colombian region where they have their roots. Dairo Antonio is also believed to have been on the farm but managed to escape from police. Los Urabenos is one of the groups the Colombian government calls Bacrim, short for bandas criminales (criminal gangs). President Juan Manuel Santos says the gangs pose a serious threat to Colombia's security and have made the fight against Bacrim one of his government's priorities.
