Despite being one of the smallest states, Hawaii has many options for aspiring and current practical nurses, including competitive salaries that are on par with many larger states, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. A report from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services notes that the island will be short about 300 LPNs by 2025, meaning practical nurses with the right training should see decent employment opportunities, especially on the island of Oahu, where the number of employees LPNs has historically been the highest, according to the Hawaii State Center for Nursing. The following guide provides a detailed look at the practical nursing landscape in Hawaii, helps prospective students explore LPN programs, and offers step-by-step information on how to apply for licensure in the state. Explore LPN Degree Programs The Road to Employment: LPN LicensureFor working and practicing as a nurse of any kind in the United States, a government-issuing license is an absolute requirement. Because licensure is handled at the state level - specifically by the Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs in Hawaii - the requirements may be slightly different from other states. Take a look at the details of how LPN licensure is handled in Hawaii.Basic Eligibility for LPNs in Hawaii Must Be at least 18 years of age Must be a U.S. citizen, national, or otherwise permitted to work in the U.S. Registry to take national Council Licensure Examination-Practical Nurse (NCLEX-PN) LPN Training in HawaiiTraining for LPN takes place through programs approved by the Hawaii Board of Nursing , in community colleges, undergraduate schools and universities. There are currently fourteen approved programs on the Hawaii Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs list of nursing schools that offer associates, bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing. LPNs are required to complete a program in practical nursing, which can be done in about a year. This includes classroom and clinical education, and qualifies candidates to sit for the NCLEX-PN exam. By passing the exam, LPNs are licensed to practice in Hawaii.Hawaii also has special provisions for granting licenses to practical nurses who have already completed the licensing process in another state, for those who have been trained outside the country, and for members of the military who have practiced as LPNs. Candidates who have previously been granted an LPN license may not have to take the NCLEX-PN exam. Additional requirements for LPN Licensure in Hawaii Pay a non-refundable $40 application fee Provide a valid Social Security Number Pass National Council Licensure Exam-Practical Nurse Exam (NCLEX-PN) within two years of registration to take exam LPNs, who are licensed in another state must apply for licensure upon approval in Hawaii, which requires a non-refundable $40 application fee Maintenance LPN Licensure in HIMost States requires LPNs to be periodically relicensed. In Hawaii, LPN licenses are valid for two years and expire on June 30, 2017. Once a license has expired, LPNs are no longer legally permitted to practice and must apply to have their licenses restored within two years. Once this two-year period has expired, the State of Hawaii requires that LPNs be resumed and pass NCLEX-PN for licensure reinstatement. As part of the license renewal process, LPNs in Hawaii must show that they have completed one of several continuing training activities. Some options include: National or recertification 30 contact hours of CE Complete a Board approved refresher course Complete at least two semester credits of post-licensure nursing practice training at an accredited school For more information on acceptable CE learning activities, including new opportunities from July 21, 2017, visit Hawaii's Board of Nursing.LPN Salary: Hawaii vs. NationalSalaries for LPNs varies from region to region, both in the United States and within individual states. This is often correlated with the relative supply and demand of newly licensed practical nurses, a factor that shapes up quite positively for Hawaii, where the increase in employment opportunities for LPNs is expected to be much greater than the national average of 16 percent for the next decade. Here's what the data looks like for LPN wages and employment in the state. Ad AccreditedSchoolsOnline.org is an advertising-supported site. Explore LPN Degree Programs [Chart]Top Paying Metropolitan Areas [Chart]LPN Employment Outlook in HIAccording for the latest BLS data, Hawaii ranks in the lowest category for per-capita employment of LPNs, with between 678 - 799 LPNs per 100,000 people across the state. That's among the nine lowest states, according to the National Center for Health Workforce Analysis, and well below the U.S. average of 225 per 1,000. The jobs forecast in Hawaii shows that demand for LPNs is likely to surpass the supply of newly licensed LPNs by 2025. This deficit is expected to be in the range of 200. Demand for LPNs is likely to vary from region to region in the state, but there are expected to be job openings across the board for LPNs in Hawaii over the next decade.
