Tyrese Gibson claims that Paul Walker continues to influence the Fast and Furious franchise (Universal Image).Tyrese Gibson left open about continuing the Fast and Furious franchise without Paul Walker, who played Brian O'Connor throughout the series, and died in a car accident on November 30, 2013, at the age of 40. At the time, Walker was in the middle of filming Furious 7, which was then rewritten as the actor's brothers filled in as stand-ins. Read more: The release of Fast and Furious 9, which was pushed back to 2021 due to the coronavirus outbreak, proved to be the highest grossing film of the entire franchise, with the sequel Fate of the Furious due in April 2017, and F9 also scheduled for release on April 2, 2021. 2 Tires and Paul Walker during the world premiere of Fast 2 Furious - arriving at the Universal Amphitheater in Universal City, California. Gibson recently told Maxim that despite his death, Walker continued to influence the franchise. People will say Paul isn't in it, so why are you guys continuing? This is why I continue my change of heart to say that we should do this for Paul. But the biggest decision came from Paul's family and the stories they give us blessings. The last film Paul made was 7, and what Paul's father, mother, and brothers were able to see at the premiere of [Fate of the Furious] sends a message that they are fully supporting us every step of the way. Gibson was shocked at how much he enjoyed working with Sena. We just expected him to be aggressive. He is the nicest man ever. Democratic lawmakers are moving to accuse gop colleague Rep. Mo Brooks of inciting a mob that hit Capitol Hill last week. The speaker of the House of Representatives said he was deeply concerned about Trump's goal of inciting violence, while the opposition leader in question, Alexei Navalny, said this weekend that he would return to Russia after recovering from neurotic poisoning in Germany. Mr. Navalni announced in a defiant social media post on Wednesday that he was returning home, a day after Russian authorities offered to jail him over his seven-year-old conviction. The opposition leader said there was never any question of whether I would return or not. In fact, I Leave. I ended up in Germany ... For one reason alone, they (the Russian authorities) tried to kill me. The Russian Investigative Committee launched a fraud case against Mr. Nabalni, alleging that he made millions of dollars in donations from anti-corruption foundations. And this week, the state's prison service applied Mr Navalny's suspended sentence in a 2014 embezzlement conviction that converted into a real jail term. The service said he failed to comply with suspended sentencing conditions by refusing to return to Moscow at the end of December while he was still recovering from his addiction. Ms. Navalni, 44, revealed her fears for her life, saying that politically motivated Sen. Alexandria Okashio-Cortez (D-N.Y.) was speaking about her traumatic experience in the Capitol building in the deadly Chintrump riots last week. The New York lawmaker took to Instagram to comment on what he described as a shocking week for many after a mob of President Trump's supporters stormed the Capitol building in a riot that left five people dead. She referred to a close encounter she had had at the time of the riots, which she said could not provide further details for security reasons. I told him that a pretty shocking incident happened to me. I don't know if I can reveal the full details of that incident due to security concerns, but I can tell you that I had a very close encounter where I thought I was going to die. ... I didn't know if I would live until the end of the day. And not only in the general sense, but also in a very specific sense. Okacio Cortez said it was no overdeterm to say that many members of the House of Representatives were nearly assassinated in the riots, and lawmakers were very lucky to see what happened within a certain minute. Okasio Cortez added, however, that many of us almost narrowly escaped death. She also explained that she was frightened after moving to a safe place with other lawmakers. What happened to North Korea's leader Kim Jong? Sister? Oh Kyung-seop, an analyst at the Seoul Institute for Untonies, said rumors that Kim Yeon-kyung is his brother's successor could be dangerous because it raises the issue of holding power and health inside North Korea. That's why Kim Jong-un is slowing his rise to power, he said. His lawyers said he is receiving death threats and 'would just like to get home to his family' and Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell is pleased for Democrats' efforts to impeach President Trump for a second time, and he believes this move would make it easier for Republicans to remove Trump from the party. McConnell said he believes Trump committed an impeachment crime and wants to see specific accounts of his impeachment put out by House Democrats, the New York Times reported. House Democrats filed an impeachment clause against Trump on Monday, charging the insurgents with their investigations before and during last week's deadly riots on Capitol Hill when Trump supporters broke past security and forced their way into the halls of Congress.The House is scheduled to vote Wednesday on impeachment. Liz Cheney of Wyoming and two Republican Congresswoman Adam Kinzinger of Illinois have already announced they will support impeachment. The White House expects up to a few Republicans to leave. Meanwhile, Congressman Kevin McCarthy has been known to ask his Republican colleagues if he should ask Trump to leave office after the violence. McCash said he would support the president's condemnation of the riots and decided not to urge fellow Republicans to oppose impeachment, despite personal opposition from the California congressman. The january 6 violence on Capitol Hill ended in five deaths and bipartisanly during a rally in front of the White House the day before, when he bipartisanly urged supporters to make Trump's recommendation. I told my supporters at the rally that I knew that everyone here would soon march to the Capitol building to hear your voice peacefully and patriotically, but he warned me that if he didn't fight like hell, he wouldn't have a country an more. On Tuesday, Trump denied responsibility for inciting violence. They analyzed my speech and my words and the last paragraph, my last sentence. And everyone on the tee thought it was completely appropriate, the president told reporters. Diese Promis waren früher international erfolgreich und wurden bereits von vielen vergessen. As the Boston Globe reports, Presley had two reasons to fear when Mr. Trump's supporters stormed out. Last week's Capitol building: She puts her at high risk for alopecia, an autoimmune disorder COVID-19, and she has long been a target of Trump backers with a member squad of progressives. Because of the latter death threats, Presley and her team conducted regular safety drills over the years to make plans when the attackers began entering the Capitol, and Pressley's chief of staff, Sarah Groh, told Globe.Pressley, Pressley's husband and staff found gas masks and began looking for special panic buttons around the office. But, all the panic buttons in this my office were ripped -- the whole unit, he told the Globe. The staff had previously used it in the same office, so they couldn't figure out what happened to the button. Eventually, Presley, along with other lawmakers and others, was moved to another security thread, where she and other Democrats began planning articles of impeachment against Trump. But she had to leave one of them behind when she found herself surrounded by treasonous, white supremacist, anti-masked lawmakers who initially instigated the mob.> The second realized the safe room of a violent white supremacist mob, and included treasonous, white supremacist, anti-white supremacist, anti-white lawmakers who incited the mob in the first place. She died at 1:31 a.m. at a federal prison .m, Indiana. A federal judge in Indiana suspended her execution Monday night, citing ample evidence that Ms. Montgomery's current mental state is so divorced from reality that she cannot reasonably understand the grounds for the government's execution. Montgomery was the first woman sentenced to death in federal custody since 1953 and the 11th federal inmate sentenced to death in 17 years when President Trump was sentenced to death in July. The failed administration's longing bloody desire was on full display tonight, Mongolia's attorney Kelly Henry said in a statement. Everyone involved in Lisa Montgomery's execution should feel ashamed. A separate federal judge in Washington, D..C., announced a stay Tuesday on two federal executions scheduled for Thursday, citing positive COVID-19 tests for inmates, Corey Johnson and Dustin Hicks. The three death penalties came before President-elect Joe Biden, an opponent of the federal death penalty, was declared next week, the Associated Press reported. The delay in this week's scheduled run since Biden's inauguration next Tuesday will probably mean that they won't happen during any time soon, or ever. Montgomery was convicted in 2003 of murdering 23-year-old Bobby Joe Steennett and kidnapping an unborn child. Her lawyers say she was mentally ill after being the subject of years of sexual torture. Henry said in an interview with the AP Tuesday morning that Montgomery was taken to Terre Haute Prison Monday night, saying she doesn't think she has any rational understanding of what's going on. After the Bureau of Prisons robbed Montgomery of his glasses in October, Concerned that she would kill herself, she could not do needle points or her other coping mechanisms, Henry said. theweek.com more stories about The Democrats realizing they're in danger?
