The rhino family contains some of the largest land animals in the world, including the northern white rhino, southern white rhino, black rhino, Indian rhinos, Javan rhinos and Sumatran rhinos. They are native to Africa and Asia. Rhinos are herbivores, which means they eat plants. In fact, they eat many plants - enough to maintain a body weight of three to five tons. Most are threatened, as they are hunted for their horn - which is made of keratin, the same substance as our own hair and fingernails. Their combined population is less than 30,000. Only two female northern white rhinos - and no males of the species - do not exist. Did you know? If you have more than one rhinocere, you can call the group rhinos, rhinos, or rhinos. They communicate using sounds too low for the human ear to hear. Scroll down for a downloadable PDF of this tutorial.
