We have enjoyed welcoming some of our elementary school students, who, through our approved waiver, participated in something that very few students in our area were able to experience, in-person classroom instruction. They endured the demands of masks and social distancing to be together on campus. It was a pleasure to be a witness. Unfortunately, the data of the larger community is such that we temporarily return to our elementary program with all the server instruction program with all need to make a number of important things to do. In the past week, the governor has announced that some counties may once again put home that, and the number of positive cases in our local Apple Valley community has continued to rise. While county records have been delayed for almost a week, and do not yet reflect cases of Thanksgiving week, positive case numbers have spiked since we requested our waiver. We've also been in direct contact with our local hospital, Providence St. Joseph (formerly St. Mary's), unlike county records, updating hospital records and keeping up to date. This is in line with the increase in the number of communities. Based on these data points, we consulted with the San Bernardino County Health Department and our county schools office this afternoon. When we first informed our county schools office this afternoon. When we first informed our county schools office this afternoon. When we first informed our county schools office this afternoon. When we first informed our county schools office this afternoon. members of this community, we make the difficult decision to temporarily move back to distance learning for all elementary students on Wednesday. May 2. We will continue to monitor the data and as soon as the positive case numbers decrease, we will reopen as our waiver allows for these starts and stops based on data from our local community. We understand that the High Desert community distributes a lot of resources. The people of Adelanto, Hesperia, Victorville and Apple Valley are a community that shares access to many essential services. Hospitals, gas stations, grocery stores and even Costco are all places our High Desert community needs to share. It is for this reason, despite our success in in-person learning, that AVUSD must work with our local community and support our regional efforts to slow down the spread ofCovid-19. We will definitely miss the in-person smiles and success our students experienced as we head this holiday season. We remain committed to continuing to provide the premier education program in our community, albeit online for most students. Although this pandemic continues to make our we will certainly continues to make our we will certainly continue to modernising our community on 18 December 2015. We have enjoyed welcoming some of our primary school students who, through our approved exception, participated in something that very few students in our area were able to experience by teaching personally in the classroom. They tolerated the requirements of face covering and social clothing so they could be in school together. It was a pleasure to see it. Unfortunately, the data from the General Assembly is such that our elementary school program will need to temporarily return to a fully distant teaching program starting Wednesday, December 2. At the moment, our small, stable groups of students with exceptional needs continue to participate in person. As noted in our 20th year, we were in the same position as the European Commission. In the past week, the governor announced that some counties could re-place a home in the stay order, and the number of positive cases in our local Apple Valley community has continued to increase. While county records have been delayed by nearly a week, and still don't reflect cases in our Thanksgiving week. positive case numbers have increased since we requested our waiver. We've also been in direct contact with our local hospital, Providence St. Joseph (formerly St. Mary's), unlike county records, the hospital records are up to date and up to date. This is in line with the growing number of communities. Based on these data points, we've been consulting with the San Bernardino County Health Department and our county school office this afternoon. When we first informed our community of the request for initial and subsequent approval, we also indicated that we were potentially experiencing times when we would start and complete our personal/hybrid learning model. As members of this community, we make the difficult decision to temporarily return distance learning to all primary school students on Wednesday, December 2. We will reopen because our exception allows for these starting and interrupting moments based on our local community data. We understand that the Upper Desert community distributes a lot of resources. The people of Adelanto, Victorville and Apple Valley are a community should share. It is for this reason, despite our success in in-person learning, that AVUSD must work with our local community and support our regional efforts to limit the spread of Covid-19. We will definitely miss smiles personally and the success our students experienced when we headed this holiday season. We remain committed to continuing to provide the best educational program in our community, albeit online for most students. While this pandemic continues to change our plans, we will ensure that we continue to updating our community on December 18, how we plan to continue the 2020/2021 school year. s have to stay home and call our office: Fever (100.4 or higher) ChillsCoughAir breathing or difficulty Fatigue breathingMusteneum or body painSled headacheNew loss of taste or smellSore throatOverload or runnyness or vomiting Diarrhoea As well as if your student has been exposed to covid positive, case even if they don't have any symptoms, they also stay home, and we ask you to contact our office.
