But if you prefer to think outside the box, what is the easiest way to ensure that the gift you choose is sure to please? Make it personal. Monogramming something as simple as a set of beach towels or a cutting board instantly makes them feel more special. Or incorporate wedding date or location into a work of art- it's an easy way to create an heirloom that is sure to be appreciated for years to come. (Not to mention that if you're looking for a wedding gift for your soon-to-be spouse, going the custom route is by far the best move.) Going forward, the best personal wedding gifts. Courtesy of Unusual Goods This personal map will help the duo track all the special adventures that have just begun. The framed, vintage-inspired map is customized with the couple's name and wedding date. It also comes with 100 staples to help them mark everything from the wedding party to their honeymoon and all future travel to come. If the couple wrote their own vows, this is a gift that they will cherish forever. Choose from over 20 colors for the text and a variety of frame styles and sizes – it's a fully customized gift that will surely be hung on a place of honor in the home. When in doubt, give them a custom cutting board, a foolproof wedding gift that is sure to please. With this you can choose both size and material - there are marble, white oak and walnut options available. Add custom engraving with name and wedding date to create a beautiful cutting board that will certainly be displayed in the kitchen for years to come. Courtesy of unusual goods This personal take on Connect Four is the perfect option for the couple who always host the game night (or love to engage in some friendly competition with each other.) The wooden set has its name and wedding date, along with cute heart-shaped pieces. Here is another good example of personal meetings convenient. Not only is this a custom portrait of the happy couple, but it also serves as an alternative to a traditional guest book. Let wedding guests write down their thoughts and wishes for the bride and groom directly on the artwork, transforming this into a truly memorable and exhibitionable memorial. Courtesy of Uncommon Goods In memory of the oh-so-special moment of the first dance this personal pressure. With hand-drawn sketch of the couple, plus wedding date and place, this artwork has a nostalgic-inspired feel and is both whimsical and stylish. In addition, it comes framed and ready to hang. Courtesy of The Night Sky We love this as a thoughtful wedding gift to your soon-to-be spouse. Choose any special moment — the night of the wedding, the day you met, your first kiss — and the place where it all took place, and this brand creates a beautiful map of the location of the stars at that moment. You can even add custom text at the bottom (think a meaningful quote or lyrics) to make it even more special. Courtesy of Uncommon Goods Pick up this dining tray for a couple who love to host in style. The elongated tray comes complete with a family name and year, and conveniently has four stemmed wine glasses plus a wine bottle to make serving cocktails easier than ever. Bonus points if you pair it with their favorite bottle of Cabernet. Courtesy of Birthdate Candles Candles is a foolproof gift, always, but we are especially partial to these, which come in 365 unique options. True to the name, there is one for every day of the year, boasting not only a custom fragrance, but also detailing unique zodiac characteristics and personality traits on labelling. Get three and pack them up for the ultimate gift: one with the bride's birthday, one with the groom's, and one with their wedding date. A thoughtful wedding gift for the groom of the bee, these cuff buttons are made of wholegrain leather that is hand-stamped with a single initial. (Dig them with the initials, or do one with your first initial and one with his.) The stainless steel setting is beautifully paired with the leather, which comes in brown, dark brown and black. Courtesy of Superlative Trends A simple (and wallet-friendly) but thoughtful day-of-wedding gift, this keychain comes with a calendar where you can mark a special date, plus an additional tag with custom text. Choose between gold, silver or rose gold; there is also a small discount if you buy two, so be sure to get yourself a matching one. You get two of these unique poster prints in each order; give one to both sides of the couple to trace their family lineage. Each one comes with empty spaces for handwritten history, a thoughtful way to help the couple symbolically merge their families as they create their own. Everyone and everyone can always use some extra beach towels, especially when they are of extra plush, Egyptian cotton range. A set of different sizes makes a universal audience-pleasing wedding gift, and even more so when you customize them with the couple's new monogram. We love an unexpected take on a family portrait, and this certainly fits the bill, transforming a standard image into a beautiful work of art. Just submit a high-resolution photo, and then choose from a selection of amazing African in various printouts and colors. The end result? An all-but dull family photo that gives a beautiful and thoughtful gift. I scream, you scream, everyone screams for ice cream, which largely turns this frozen treat into such a fun gift idea. There are some wedding sets to choose from, but you can also make custom labels for some of the existing (very delicious flavors), or even create a personal flavor concoction. As any dog-obsessed person will tell you, it may be better to get gifts for your puppy than to get a gift for yourself. So if the bride and groom have Fido as their ring bearer, consider giving them this personal dog food. Each plan is tailored based on age, race, activity level, allergies and more. You can choose between fresh packed lunches or their innovative new freeze-dried UnKibble (which also comes with a personal serving scoop). Anyway, the convenience of right to the door delivery is sure to be appreciated. This simple (and utilitarian) monogrammed doormat is the perfect addition to any couple's new marital home. Add the monogrammed initials, a last name or address on the hand screen mat, which will make any entrance so much more inviting. Courtesy of Uncommon Goods Here is another personal cutting board option, this with a slightly more unique version. Handmade from solid cherry, it is laser engraved with a Venn diagram showcasing the bride and groom, and how they come together to become a new family. Get out of the water works. Courtesy of the Ring Concierge Groom who wants to get his bride a little extra something for your wedding day should consider this amazing 14-karat gold first bracelet. Simple and delicate, diamond-encrusted initial will pair beautifully with its engagement ring and new wedding bands. Anyone can always use a good set of coasters, so gift these personal, engraved with crossing arrows and initials and date of your choice. Sold in sets of four or eight, throw in a bottle of wine and some beautiful wine glasses, and you've got yourself a wonderful wedding gift. Gift.
