Years ago I heard a lot of complaints about how Google Docs just didn't measure up to Microsoft Word. My answer is always centered around the way that Google Docs can change the way we worked and students learned. Most people have bought in, but I still sometimes hear complaints about missing features. One is the addition of captions to photos- the main information texting skill in English language standards. Check out the GIF below to see how to use the Insert tool to accomplish this task. I note, as I noted on Twitter, that this process will lead to a decrease in the quality of the image. I think that's still normal for a student project. It's just, you know, maybe not for your doctoral research or your school yearbook. Yearbook.
