Tonya Bailey Dog Group: Hound Size: 13-15 inches tall, 40-60 lbs Lifetime: 10-12 years Energy Level: Low Jacket: Low Jacket: Short and Rough Shedding: Moderate hypoallergenic: No history: Although the exact origins are not known for sure, Basset Hounds were probably descendants of St. Hubert Hound, an ancestor of today's Bloodhound. Basset Hounds is thought to have come up with a mutation in the St. Hubert Hound strain that produced short-legged dogs. This breed was the first popular in France, especially in royalty. After the French Revolution, however, they became hunting dogs for families and commoners. Basset Hound probably came to America in colonial times, but it wasn't until the early 20th.00am. Basset Hounds officially registered with the American Kennel Club (AKC) in 1885, but really began gaining popularity among Americans in the 1920s when Basset Hound appeared on the cover of Time magazine. Over the next few decades, the Basset Dog became celebrated and loved by many, and remains one of the most popular dog breeds today. Temperament: Basset Hounds is known to be obedient, easy to go temperament. They can get along with almost anyone, including children and other animals. Since they're not very forceful, Basset Hounds does great dogs for apartment-dwellers because they don't require a ton of exercise. Still, it is important for them to take time outdoors and take walks to prevent weight gain. These dogs can be stubborn during training, which is a common feature among dogs in dog group. They respond best with reward-based training and positive reinforcement. Like all dogs, Basset Hounds need to be socialized from an early age to ensure that they become a well-rounded dog during adulthood. Adulthood.
