During my study, I conducted a six-week clinical practice in different units of St Paul's Hospital. I was praised for my performance by the ward director and it transplanted the motivation to be a cancer nurse, as I believed the general practitioner would be the perfect place. During my clinical practice, I was responsible for up to 12 unimportant patients in the cancer unit, monitoring their vitality and treatment, as well as providing compassion and counseling. I work hand in hand with full-time staff, including emergency calls and weekends. I was praised by the ward director, Prof Jones for the improvement in emotions I brought patients to my care. I perform all my duties with the utmost diligence and accuracy, which is the fact that the director can attest. I have a desire to help people since my father spent 2 years in a coma during my teens, but clinical practice in oncology directs this particular desire, I believe General Medical, with its new $1.7m cancer ward, including a dynamic research department, will be the perfect place for me to grow and provide world-class care. When will it be a good time to schedule a call or interview for us to discuss the challenges you are facing at General Medical? J.
