The first time I heard Numb was in 'Gaffy', one of the Warcraft 3 Usage maps. The map was created in the early days when warcraft 3 usemaps were activated, so the map wasn't very complete, but the fun itself was well equipped and I remember it as the beginning of the ice-off form of usemaps. The 'Gabbing' was 'Dormant', which impressed strongly because of the synergy between the urgency of avoiding dogs and the intense notes of the song. So I remember when the pop songs didn't spread well in Korea, but I didn't know English and just learned about them from the lyrics I heard by ear, and I was very happy to find 'Numb' somehow. It was a great song, but I couldn't find it at the time, but I plugged it in as soon as I heard it, so I found and listened to all the other songs from <Crusin>Linkin Park and became a fan of them. Unfortunately, 'Linkin Park' has become uncertain since the 2017 'Chester Bennington' vocal committed suicide due to depression, so it's unclear if we'll find someone to replace Chester Bennington's tone, but it's great if we can recover from adversity as one of the best bands in the world. It is one of the band's best-known and praised songs. This song was later combined with Jay-Z's encore song and released under the title Numb/Encore included on the album Collision Course (2004).
