Chautauqua county jail phone number

Reader David writes with this excellent advice for phone anonymity: I needed to call someone on my cell phone, but I didn't want them to get my caller ID number. I know how to use *67 at home when I want to do this, but cell dialing is different - you don't get that double dial tone to let you know you're now restricting your number. With your phone, simply start the number you are calling with *67, as if the phone number starts with those three digits. The important thing to remember is that you will need to put the 1 before the area code, since the cells usually do not need the 1. For example, enter *6719175551212 before pressing the conversation button will take the receivers calling id to read restricted. On my phone, the caller ID activates a Private Call using this method. It seems like a smart way to keep your number to yourself when you want to avoid publicizing it to the world. Of course, this is probably also the biggest weapon of the stalkers permos. Please use only forever. With the exception of telephone directories in the District of Columbia, Chicago, and 14 states, which have been microfilmed, all pre-1976 phone directories are available only as paper copies, although The Library of Congress continues to convert all phone books before 1976 into a microfilm. These 14 states include Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas and California; Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida and Georgia; Hawaii, Iowa, Maryland and Pennsylvania. Readers request the phone book by filling out a call slip in the Local History and Genealogy Reading Room.
