So, before you run out the door. We've put together some tips to make your trip to the Department of Public Safety a little less agony. Just Don't Go - Is it online Did you know the Texas DPS offers certain services online? You can: Renew an expired driver's license or identification card. Replace your lost or stolen driver's license or identification card. Change your address to your driver's license or identification card. If you need one of these services, try to do it online first. Come HERE. See how it works: Cut in line, legally in certain DPS locations, you can electronically queue through a service called Get In Line Online. GILO allows: Apply for the first driver's license, student permission or ID. Clarify a written test or computer test (if you're worried about the test, try a practical test). Renew an expired driver's license or identification card. Replace your lost or stolen driver's license or identification card. Change your address to your driver's license or identification card. Just schedule an appointment online. The DPS will send you an SMS about the time of your appointment. Go to work, attend classes, run errands, or watch a movie before the approved meeting time. Get In Line Online is not offered everywhere. Find out if your DPS location offers it HERE. See how it works: Avoid haste If online help isn't available for your DPS office or you have a complex transaction, the best option is to avoid certain times and days: Avoid Mondays and Fridays. Overall, Mondays and Fridays tend to be busier than other days. Avoid lunch. Many optimistic people brave DPS at lunch thinking they are punching across the line quickly. They are usually not. Avoid the day before or after the holiday. DPS is not open on holidays. All of these customers do not receive serviced spills on other days.
