It is one of the band's classic songs and its original version appeared on the album Animal Song in 1990 as the seventh title. Like most of Soda Stereo's lyrics, the lyrics of this song can have several performances, but it is believed that it is about a person who embarks on a new challenge (leaving behind a couple), a challenge of uncertain outcome. Parts like I float on the river, I'm wrapped in the current, Man in the water, refer to throwing themselves into this challenge. Musical Structure The original version begins with sound effects that mimic the sea, then the drums begin to sound; then it is joined by the keyboard, a guitar sound and the bass that stands out begins, then when the chorus starts the electric guitar joins. In the latter parts, voices that are agitated and a ship adrift are repeated several times. Versions One year after the release of the single, the live version appears on the Gran Rex as the first track from the album Rex mix. It is only in the last part that the drums sound differently while making the song a little more shaken. The performance tours of Dynamo and Sueo stereo would continue to be played. Then, in 1997, the song was performed in the farewell mini-shower called The Last Concert, and was released on the album The Last Concert A as a Third Track. In this version, when the song begins Cerati says Aqua, sometimes under the surface ... sometimes upstairs, eh! And that's when the keyboards start to sound, then the bass. Interestingly, Cerati does not pronounce the words they are so attractive ... ». Unlike the original, after when he says everyone will scream the man in the water ... The battery doesn't start ringing; but the keyboards sound for a while and that's when the drums start. It ends up similar to the version in the Big Rex. As a soloist, Cerati played him on Bocanada's tour between September 1999 and June 2000. Ten years later, he performed again on the band's return tour entitled Mr. Verus Volver; but more rocky, perhaps one of the best interpretations of this subject. This version appeared the following year on the album Gira you will see me return CD1, as the fifth track. Track Listing 7-inch promotional vinyl record N.o Tympuit Duration 1. The lights of the coast are beacons of the past. Everything will go back to what it was. And when I jump bridge and give myself up to know ... The new shapes grow are so attractive that I want to rest from everything yesterday. And I float along the river, I'm wrapped in the current. The man in the water! (Voices that tremble) The man in the water! (Boat adrift) And I float on the river resting in the current. The man in the water! (Voices that tremble) The man in the water! (Boat adrift) Dawn I open my eyes, I'll go with these waves Not so worried Everyone will scream ... The man in the water! Water!
