Edit Share Jedi OrderGalactic Republic Mace Windu's lightsaber was a weapon wielded by the eponymous Jedi Master during his career. It was unique among jedi because it produced an amethyst blade when activated, rather than more often green or blue. Windu wielded his lightsaber in numerous skirmishes and battles across the galaxy during notable events such as the Yinchorri Uprising and the Clone Wars. These conflicts saw blades used in battlefronts such as Yinchorr, Ryloth, Dantooine, Boz Pity, Coruscant, Malastare and others. 19 BBY, the lightsaber was lost when it was left out of the window of the Supreme Chancellor Palpatine's office before his death. In BBY 18, Duros salvagers recovered it and gave it to Senator Sano Sauro. The first lightsaber [edit source] as the Jedi launch, Windu could see the shatterpoints with force, allowing him to glimpse the future of a short vision. During this vision, Windu could see the lightsaber he would eventually build. This was cause for concern for the Jedi Council because Windu was unable to build a weapon resembling a lightsaber he saw in his vision. At the age of fourteen, Windu demanded a real challenge so he could find the parts needed to create a lightsaber. At his request, the council sent him to the planet Hurikane alone. Upon his arrival, he chased away the natives, but was easily able to get the upper hand with force. At one point, he caused one of the natives to smash, but was able to painstakingly reconstruct the individual. As a result, the native introduced him to the amethyst-colored lightsaber crystal, which he used to finally build a lightsaber he had seen in his visions for the future. Second lightsaber [edit source] Windu wielding his second lightsaber on Geonosis. Sometime before BBY 22, Windu created a second lightsaber, acknowledging his position as a senior Jedi Council member. It was built to the highest standards, emphasizing accuracy and quality. The weapon included an electrum finish reserved only for senior council members, as well as a signature amethyst crystal for his earlier weapon. His second lightsaber served him throughout the galaxy covering the clone of Wars, until his death at the hands of Supreme Chancellor Palpatine at 19 BBY – which was the Dark Lord of Sith Darth Darth Sidious. Lightsaber plummeted from a shattered window in the Chancellor's office after Windu's hand was severed by Anakin Skywalker, with its owner shortly after. The following year, Duros sold a broken lightsaber, which he claimed once belonged to Master Windu, Senator Sano Sauro. Although the claim has never been verified, Senator Sauro displayed a lightsaber issue in his office. Throughout the Star Wars universe, it is Jedi Master Mace Windu's lightsaber that stands apart in its amazing and unique purple. But why is that because of actual fiction? Believe it or not, the possible origins were revealed on the pages of the Star Wars Tales comic series. According to Jedi ud: lightsaber is an extension of the Jedi's own self and connects to the force, powered by an almost living crystal kyber. Most Jedi sabers have blades that are blue or green (some are yellow), while Sith lightsabers have blood in red. Some fans may know the real-life reason why Windu's saber is purple: Mace Windu actor Samuel L. Jackson simply demanded purple paint for his sword from Star Wars creator George Lucas, which he allowed. However, the actual reason for the narrative was unknown. When Dark Horse Comics Star Wars Tales released their 13th issue as a collection of short stories all focused on Windu, they undertook to ensure the origin of the purple lightsaber. Although this origin is not canonical, there is no actual canon origin yet, making this story the closest possible insight. Start now with the title Stones, a short story from Star Wars Tales featuring Master Windu tells his time as a young 14-year-old on his first solo mission. Because he had not yet created his own lightsaber, the Jedi Council thought he might be afraid to build such a powerful and personal weapon. However, Windu just wanted the challenge of finding unique crystals. For this reason, Jedi Master Yoda sent Mace to the planet Hurikane, had Windu come into contact with large creatures made of stone. To perceive them as hostile, Mace wastes no time fighting them with force to achieve victory. However, he soon realizes that she misrepreserly his opponents. They weren't hostile he first thought they were. Acknowledging his mistake and taking responsibility for his mibe, the young Windu determined to work to repair the damage done using the power to heal the beings he was hurt. Windu shares that he learned that there's more to being a Jedi than just being a great soldier, which he certainly was. Being a Jedi is also done, self-playful, and humble. On that day, Mace became a true Jedi despite already having the title. To repair his rounds of work, the stone creatures gave him a gift. Of course, Mace Windu's purple lightsaber was already unique and incredibly cool apart from reading this story from Star Wars Tales. However, the knowledge that the unique crystals came as a result of such a powerful turning point in Windu's Jedi path makes the lightsaber truly epic. Of course, the story could be part of the official Star Wars history, but without an official alternative, why not accept it as such until fans are down otherwise? The story, of course, guarantees credibility as part of the Star Wars schedule. In any case, Mace Windu's unique lightsaber is definitely one of the most epic weapons in the Star Wars universe, one of the most epic Jedi ever.
