It is the only daily newspaper serving Macomb County, making Michigan's largest county by population with only one daily newspaper. It is owned by Digital First Media. Macomb Daily is co-owner of the Oakland Press and (Royal Oak) Daily Tribune, both in Oakland County, (Southgate) News-Herald and The Voice in northern Macomb and St. Clair counties. As a result of their co-owning, staff writers from these newspapers often appear in the Macomb Daily, and employees of Macomb Daily writers appear in the same newspapers instead. Macomb Daily was formed as a result of the merger of Mt. Clemens Monitor Leader, South Macomb News and The Tri City Progress in 1964. Panax Newspapers owner of the newly merged paper until owner John McGoff got into legal trouble accepting money from the South African government. Macomb Daily was part of Global Communication and later SEM Newspapers in the late 1970s. Macomb Daily operated Monday through Saturday and quickly rose from 38,000 to 56,000 newspapers a day. Macomb Daily was one of the first newspapers to automate its circulation on computers. The paper has a large fleet of 20 vans that date back to 1977, with Ford Macomb Daily Blue with white stripes. In 1982, Macomb Daily decided to make The Community News edition of TMC at the southern end and Advisor at the northern end of the county. Macomb Daily hired a new editorial and business center at 100 Macomb Daily Lane on the banks of the Clinton River in Mt. Clemens, just outside the city center, in 1994. In 2013, the newspaper moved to 19176 Hall Rd. in Clinton Township. Operations Newspaper was previously based on Mount Clemens. In popular culture, The Macomb Daily is a newspaper that appears at the end of the current policy teaser for MJR Theaters, a regional cinema chain.
