Minecraft realms lag reddit

Hello. Therefore, I have been with Realms for about a month, and since day 1, everyone who plays, of all different devices experiences very bad delay. The block delay, which is where a block is extracted or placed and then instantly reappears/disappears is a constant. Atypically there is a 2-3 second delay between action and response, such as opening a door, chest, attacking an enemy, etc. People have been killed by mobs that freeze instead around them, then speed up to catch up with the server, kill them in the process. I wonder, for those who have played alone, or with a group of friends, if Realms has always been so bad, or if it's just my luck? I also have another friend who has his own kingdom, and he and his friends are very badly delayed sometimes. Our internet speeds are fairly fast, and it seems that the more people join, the more delay is introduced. I have about 60.0 down, 30.0 up on speedtest, wiring, on PC. I wonder if there's anything we can do to reduce the delay, or if this is just a problem in Mojangs. Thanks.Page 2Posted byu/[deleted] 2 years ago 8 comments One of my friends had a realms free trial, so we all started playing on it. We were planning to buy it once the cycle is completed, but it is so slow that its limit cannot be played. There's no point in updating if it's going to be like this. Does anyone have a solution? Thank youPage 2 6 comments Title, every time I join my realm it takes 10 or more seconds for the terrain to load, then once it does, another 10 seconds to my inventory, then kicks me either by saying Offline or Internal Exception: Java.io.IOException: An existing connection was forced by force by the remote host The other players in my realm have not experienced thisUPDATE: I tried to log in to the realm without optifine just to see if it was the cause, and the delay stopped instantly, and did not continue when I tried to use optifine againPage 2 9 comments My maximum realm of 10 players (about 100 ppl on the invitation list, never more than 3-8ppl at a time) has been having an incredibly bad delay. I have players from Belgium to Australia to DC and sure, there has been a bit of a delay at times, but it has never been as bad as the last one has been..... at least 2 weeks or moreSo there is no consistency with the number of players in, which is at, time of day, locations of these players, or even their activities. We honestly can't understand it. Most, if not all, are adults and are as reliable as they can be when it comes to us just having a realm to play and do our own thing without trying to screw ppl anymore. Has anyone been experiencing anything similar? My kingdom has begun to lay more than the and I can't pin down why. There are 6 people, including me and the world, it's only about 77mb, but as of last night there's a noticeable delay, enough to do something like an alk fish farm no longer works. Is there anything I can do to fix or it's just a Mojang thing that I can't do anything about. Page 2 10 comments So I've set up a realm server of 10 people for my friends. We've been in this for a week and I'm being a little ambitious with what I want to do. You just wanted to know if there's anything that could cause a bad delay? I've made a sheep farm for wool (about 50 sheep) and I want to make a semi-automatic cow farm, but I don't know how much the kingdoms can handle. I probably think too much that I and my friends made a kingdom a while ago and over time it became progressively slower I assume it's because we lived decently far away and had our own red stone constructions, like single-tick farms and sorting systems running at the same time. I wondered if I had made a new kingdom, it would be less slow if we all lived closer and had fewer red stone constructions. Or it would be just as slow as there would be more red stone in closer proximity to each other. Thank you in Hello advanced to all. I've been having an extremely unbearable delay in Bedrock Edition Realms lately - and it's literally impossible to play the game. The blocks take about two minutes (or more) to break, the pieces do not load and the mobs move extremely erratically and I cannot interact with them. However, I can see other players moving very well. This happens very often, and it seems to be random in terms of when you want to break down and when you want to work. It will work for a lot of time, and then it will break again for a lot of time. It's literally impossible to play. Other people don't have this problem - but my internet connection is stable and I play games with 19-21 ping. We all live in the UK, so it has nothing to do with regional environments. If you're looking for somewhere else to stay, you'll find it's a great place to stay. He's probably on my side, but I can't figure out why. UPDATE - Randomly started working at this time. I'm not sure why it started working now of all time, but I waited a few hours. I hope it'll break again soon. I have no solution to offer but to wait and pray. Thank you all for your answers! Page 2 10 comments Anyone else's realm has been very slow since this base update came out because mine has and the players who play have been too. Anyone knows the cause of this. I have a kingdom on the rock with some of my friends. but it's super laggy. Minecraft is never slow for me and if you play any other world, it's perfectly fine. The most annoying part is that my pig farms don't work because of this, does anyone know what I can do to fix some of this?
