I'm not sure since the device for the knot is the same. Any guidance would be appreciated. February 24, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Toggator - Sure, he can earn it, but he already has the knot and the device so he doesn't get extra billing to show. He could get another CS device pin to put on the knot, but it's not meant to be done. February 27, 2016 - Jon Norris found in the notes on this page (www.meritbadge.org/wiki/index.php/Denali_Award)that as of 2007 there is no longer a knot for the Varsity Denali Award. Was there ever an official knot? I can't find an overview of it, even discontinued. Thanks. JonFeb 27, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Jon - There are two recognition elements for Denali - a medal and a certificate. It has only been around since 2001 and has not had a square knot emblem. March 04, 2016 - Scouts Joe@Jon - the biggest reason the Denali Prize doesn't have a knot recognition is that the Varsity program doesn't have its own advancement system. The Varsity program uses the Boy Scout program for its advancement, making Eagle the highest ranking. Traditionally knot recognitions are reserved for the highest ranking of each family (AOL, Eagle, Summit). Also Denali awarded annually is too low. Varsity is operated almost exclusively in LDS units, and outside of Utah, Idaho and Texas there are very few running Varsity devices. BSA has a minimum requirement of how many are awarded per year to guarantee producing a price. March 08, 2016 - David RobertsAs a cubmaster I got a square knot for the award of light I earned. It seems to be different from any other row of bright square knots I've seen. The green part of the knot is on top of the red part of the knot. Why? And does it have any special value, meaning or interest? Thanks. Scouts DavidMar 15, 2016 - Anonymous@David Roberts there was a flaw in the production. You can use that knot if you want, or you can use the one shown on this page. I don't know if the bug knot is worth more (that is, on eBay). May 27, 2016 - Scouts ScottCan you get the Scout Leader's Training Award twice, once as scout leader and again as scout leader? Or is it once and done? May 28, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Scott - Yes, it can be earned several times. A knot is worn with metal pin devices attached for each application where it was earned. Jun 08, 2016 - JodiPlease update Venturing to Summit.Jun 21, 2016 - Steven Van De Wal, AACCPlease update requirements and link:www.scouting.org/filestore/commissioner/pdf/Awards_and_Recognition/Commissioner_Award_of_Excellence_in_Unit_Service_Progress_Record.pdfMy thanks. August 10, 2016 - Jason ChenI was never a Cub or Boy Scout; But my son started as Tiger and he is a Scout (6h Now. I've been the treasure treasure. Cub Scout for 4 years and continue to volunteer as secretary of our squad. Can I use the Arrow of Light square knot since we went through Scouting together all these years (and years to come)? August 10, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Jason - No, Arrow of Light is only earned by a Webelos scout, not by adult volunteers. But I expect you have met almost all the scout leader's training award requirements now. September 04, 2016 - Brian Brackins: I am in my third year of being a DEN leader with CUB scouts..... can 2 of these years apply against Scouter's Training Award s.55 in new Guide to Awards and Insignia Book ... do I qualify for the Scouts training award knot? Sep 04, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Brian - Yes, 2 of your years can be counted. To see if you qualify for the price, please read the requirements - it's more than just being registered as a cave leader. September 10, 2016 - Nick Thesen: I'm not a wake-up call yet with the Order of the Arrow, but why is there only one spool knot for this recognition. If I received the award other than a triangle pin, I know I be happy to have the award with my other achievements like Eagle Scout.Sep 10, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Nick - You can contact the national OA committee for why the question, but I expect you will be told that there is already a special frame, pin, and dingle for alert recognition and a patch is not required. September 19, 2016 - Gen O'ConnellI a scout earns the Hornaday badge, not the medals, can he wear the square knot? September 19, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Gen - No Oct 11, 2016 - GeorgeTo all OA Founders Award recipients: I always try to be in official uniform, and see my best even when I'm out camping. The youth at my cottage recognized me with the Founders Award a few years ago, and that's my most cherished award. Unfortunately the pocket band easily snaps on backpack straps, etc. Don't I use this award, or am I trying to convince the National to award a square knot for our field uniform? Any thoughts on this? Oct 11, 2016 - HendricksM24 would only take off the price when doing backpacking, hiking or any activity outside. If I'm in uniform (most camping trips I don't wear my uniform) I strip all the pins and allotments of that are not sewn on. October 11, 2016 - AnonymousGeorge, several volunteers over the years have tried to get the National to produce a knot for that achievement. They won't do it, and probably never will, since the founder's awards recipients (myself included) have hanging emblem. If it didn't come with a dangle, it could happen. Also, if you need more founding tapes, send $5 per price to Stephanie Jordan on National.Oct 12, 2016 - GeorgeHendricksM24, I started taking mine off too, even if it hurts me. Thanks for the info Anonymous! I appreciate it! I hear what you're saying, but I can bother you. No matter. Silver Beaver etc. has a medal and knot so why the knot founders? Founders? 28, 2016 - RonQuestion: A bunch of many years ago, I received the Scoutmasters award of merit, white knot on tan background. I just read that it was discontinued in 1987. I'll go around 1999. Am I wearing something I shouldn't, or couldn't really wear? I know that the new one is the Gold on Blue/On founders award, only carry it when I wear my OA frame. The little ties get lost to light, and that's most important. 31. ok Jack@t. The Scoutmaster Award of Merit was originally presented by NESa from the 1970s and was incredibly exclusive. Only a limited quota was allocated by a couple of scoutmasters nationwide each year. This award was discontinued in 1987 only in the sense that the quota was lifted to recognize all scoutmasters who performed at a certain level. The old quota SAoM and 1988-2010 SAoM both use the white knot on the tan. You're wearing the right knot, and you can earn the new ULAoM if you're still a scout master and wear both knots. November 05, 2016 - MikeBack in 1967, I got a certificate of heroism to swim out beyond the surf, and rescue a young girl swept out of the undertow. I was just looking this site for something else and noticed that the Heroism Award section of this site indicates that the Heroism Award was discontinued, and further that ... Today, the former holders of Heroism certificates as well as current scouts, explorers or scouts are honored with the current medal. What medal is being talked about here? I do not want to receive anything I am not entitled to, but what does this current Medal? November 06, 2016 - Scouts Paul@Mike - That text refers to the Heroism Medal (which is discontinued). If someone was previously presented with a BSA certificate of heroism, he could receive the medal. MARCH 10, 2017 - JOHN R CARRILLO I LIKES THIS PAGE VERY MUCH BECAUSE OF ALL THE INFORMATION ABOUT THE KNOT PRICES I WANTED TO KNOW AND HOW TO EARN THEM. DO YOU WANT TO KNOW IF THERE IS A BOOKLET ON THESE KNOT PRICES? THIS IS GREAT TO KNOW ABOUT ALL OF THEM I'VE BEEN ON THIS COUNCIL FOR SEVEN YEARS AND ONLY GOT TWO KNOTS SINCE I WAS HERE. BUT AGAIN THANKS FOR THE INFORMATION. DIN IN SCOUTING & SERVICES, JOHN CARRILLOPIKES PEAK COUNCIL 06FOUNTAIN, CO.Jul 29, 2018 - Warrington B. HowdenI in the early 1950s was now arrow of light badge presented to Cub Scouts as the highest rank, but I think was just called Webelos. Can a current adult leader who fits this description carry the Arrow of Light Knot? August 02, 2018 - Can the expired heroism knot still be worn by a scout who received it when they were scouts? Back in 80â€s I got a certificate, medal and knot to save a boy who drowned in a lake. I plan to return to scout with my grandson and wonder if I would be able to still tie the knot as an adult scout? August 06, 2018 @ 12:00pm Yukon Jack@ Warrington. Short answer is no. This question was asked a few years ago in this thread. The arrow of light knots represents only the arrow of Light. It is not retroactive to the older Webelos rank which, while the highest at the time is not considered the predecessor of the Arrow of Light.@ Brandon. Absolutely! Knots never expire and you got an award that was so recognized with a knot. However, the Heroism Award was discontinued in 2011 to the biggest problem you will encounter is finding the knot patch itself. I wish you good luck in that work (you need it ... try eBay). Jan 08, 2019 - Beau@ Brandon. I think you'll be able to find the knot for your uniform as the Heroism Award has been reinstated. The Boy Scouts of America has reinstated the Heroism Award, filling a gap between the Honor Medal, presented to try to save a life with â€œconsiderable risk of self& and the Medal of Merit, which honors the Scouting service but does not require a life-saving endeavor. The Heroism Award was first presented in 1977 and discontinued at the end of 2012. The official reinstatement came after a vote by the national executive board in February 2018. The councils nominate their members using this application and submit proper documentation to the National Court of Honor for final approval. Heroism Award recipients â€â€ receive a red square knot on a white background and a medal with a red-white-red ribbon that says â€œFor Heroism.â€ 21 May 2019 - Dennis KisonVar there ever a dark blue square knot on khaki twill known as skippers award knot? August 17, 2019 - Joel BlackHa's BSA considered developing a square knot to recognize scouts/scouts who are veterans of active duty or reservists of the U.S. military? September 02, 2019 - Yukon Jack@ Dennis Kison. Yes, it was. Skipper's Key knot was one if the first 8 in 1946, but was reported discontinued in October 1947. The skipper's key then used the same square knot (still used today) as all other key awards. Skipper's Key knot was a dark blue on white rope with khaki background (very similar to Silver Beaver) and the image on the internet is fake. I would appreciate your help with this subma. Thanks, Jan 07, 2021 - Yukon Jack@ Nancy MerrimanMy There are many locally authorized knots that are not available to all BSA scouts and scouts, but that the BSA has allowed local councils to allocate. He could be one of them. Can you be more specific in the description? A square knot can be described with the two rope colors (e.g. green on white for Scouter's Key), the background color (e.g. khaki for Scouter's Key, Scouter's Training Award, or Eagle Scout), and border color. Some ropes have two (Pack Trainer) or three (Eagle Scout, Hornaday) colors. Some backgrounds have two (Silver/ Summit Award, Meany Award) or three (Venturing/Sea Scout Leadership Award, Boyce Award, etc.). Try to be as detailed as possible. But with only the colors you described, it doesn't sound like any National BSA knot. There are about a dozen national knots from BSA history that are not included on this site, but none have both black and green together.
