Yard was last amended: on October 15, 2019 by Don Vandervort, HomeTips © 1997 to 2020 One yard equals three feet. This also equates to 36 inches or about 92 centimeters. The easiest way to measure a measurement is with a rule or scale. Football fields are measured in yards, with a length of 100 yards. Many items sold in bulk are sold by the court, including fabric, gravel and rope. When trying to measure a yard without a ruler, a good way to determine this length is by remembering the distance from the tip of the nose to the fingers on an outstretched hand is equivalent to near a yard. The equivalent of 100 yards, which is the length of a football field from the goal line to the goal line, is about 300 feet. A yard is the same as 3 feet. Since 36 inches make up a yard, 100 yards is 3600 inches. Thumbs, feet and courts are the usual U.S. length units derived from the Imperial Measurement System. This system is used primarily in the United States. The metric system uses units such as millimetre, centimeter and meter to measure length. The equivalent of 100 meters in the metric system is 91.44 meters because a yard is equal to 0.9144 meters. Marvel Entertainment (MVL) and its superhero stable were not up to scratch for Big Board traders, who sanctioned the company's action after its disappointing results and anemic forecasts on Wednesday. For the third quarter ended September 30, Marvel's sales fell to $81.1 million from $135.2 million a year ago. The owner of the Fantastic Four, Spider-Man and X-Men brands earned $23.4 million, or 23 cents per share, compared to $34.4 million, or 30 cents per share, last year. Marvel will project 2005 sales of $385 million to $395 million and a profit of $1.02 to $1.07, both ahead of its previous forecast, but the company's outlook for 2006 was more horror show than action movie. Next year, Marvel expects to gain 37 cents to 52 cents per share with a top line of 270 $300 million, both of which are well below Wall Street consensus estimates. The company said the prediction reflects a difficult year for both toys and licenses. Tab analysts were expecting a profit of 30 cents and revenue of $100.3 million for the third quarter. Thomson First Call has consensus estimates for 2005 of $1.08 per share in earnings and $388 million in revenue. For 2006, the average target for analyst analysts $1.13 per share and revenue of $415.5 million. Marvel shares plunged $3.70, or 20.5 percent, to a 52-week low of $14.34. The volume was 10 times higher than the daily average for the last three months. Marvel also said its board approved an additional $250 million share repurchase authorization. The company has secured a line of credit of $150 million from HSBC, of which $125 million will be available, as well as its operating cash, for share repurchases. The buyback will provide a very attractive long-term return on investment as we go beyond 2006, said Marvel. The optimism comes from the fact that in 2007, Marvel will release Spider-Man and Fantastic Four sequels, while in 2008, it will launch its own film slate. The company said in September that it would fund the production of up to 10 films based on characters from its comics. Paramount, a unit of Viacom (VIA) - Get Report, will distribute the films. The first theatrical release is scheduled for the summer of 2008, the company said at the time. Marvel will have complete creative control and greater profit potential than it has had with previous licensing agreements. In the past, Marvel has licensed Sony Pictures, 20th Century Fox and New Line Cinema, among others. The 2006 outlook factors in the expected nominal contributions of the feature films X-Men 3, Ghost Rider and The Punisher 2, modest initial entry of the animated projects Avengers 1 and the Fantastic Four television series in Europe, and no help from the limited partnership Spider-Man. Partnership.
