Geographers use 5 themes of geography to study and learn about the world. They include: LocationPlaceHuman Environment InteractionMovementRegions When we want to learn about a particular country, city, region, etc., we use five themes of geography. For each of the five topics, tell students to ask themselves the following questions about a particular country or region: Place Where is the place (longitude, latitude, continent, hemispheres)? How far from home is it (air travel, distance in miles or kilometers)? Which countries are the country's neighbours? Location Describe location (size, shape). What is the climate (temperature, rainfall)? What physical characteristics are (mountains, rivers, deserts)? Describe the people who live there (nationalities, traditions, etc.). Human-environmental interaction How do people use land (farming, herd, mining, industry)? How did people change the earth? Where do most people live (near the river or coast, in the mountains)? Why do you think people have settled there (water, safety, food, natural beauty)? Movement How will you travel to a place (route, drive, fly, walk)? Does the country export goods to other locations? If so, who and where? Does the country import goods from other locations? If so, what and where? Why should people leave or move to the country (work, family, climate, war)? Regions What is the language(s) of people? What is the political division of the country (states, provinces, republics)? How does a country resemble any of its neighbours (traditions, language, climate)? Unit 1.
