They're having a good sell on their release items at the moment, but I can't find anywhere clearly stating in that return policy, especially for release items. Thanks in advance! Last spring I bought a coat at the Eddie Bauer store, which was on warrant for $12 or $14... something like that. This is my work sweatthat I wear there when I get cold, so it hasn't been very helpful at all. Last week, I tried to close the zipper and realized that the zipper is broken. I haven't had my receipt since it's been five or six months. I heard Eddie Bauer has a great return policy, but how would it apply to a release item... especially when I no longer have the receipt and the item is no longer transported? Did they just return me the lowest selling price of the cardigan (probably just a few dollars), or let me choose a different one? Thanks for any advice. They have an excellent return/exchange policy, even without receipt. We exchanged an 8-month item without a receipt. There is a # on one of the labels on the clothes that they punch there computer and the last price comes up. You'll probably get the last price he sold. Another great thing is that if you buy something from one of the stores of any establishment, you can return/exchange the item in any store or non-outlet. We love Eddie Bauer Thank you! Next time I go to the mall, I'm taking her with me. WINTER SALE! Up to 60% discount rewards on your purchases.
