One piece timeline after timeskip

Some people have wondered this same thing before, and have done a lot of research on this topic. Below I've compiled a few more popular ideas about getting through time in the One Piece universe. There's a similar question asked on Reddit: How much time has passed in the One Piece world? Redditor /u/jaydoubleyoutee replied: Time in East Blue is almost impossible to map out. The Grand Line is a little easier though. Loguetown, Reverse Mountain, and Whiskey Peak are the same day. They left Whiskey Peak on Monday. Then several days passed when they arrived at Little Garden so I guess it's been a week now. They were attacked by Wapol on day 8 and arrived at Drum on the 9th. Four days passed and they met him 2. Five days until they arrive in Alabasta. War broke out two days later. Luffy sleeps for 3 days. They left the next day, then arrived in Jaya the same day. They arrived in Skypiea the next morning and defeated Enel a day later. So it's been like a month at the moment. They then went to Longring Longland and stayed for four days. Three days later, they arrived at Water 7. The next day was Aqua Laguna. That night they raided Enies Hall until the next day. Luffy took a two-day break when Garp appeared. Sunny was built in three days and they left. A few days later, they went to Thriller Bark. They defeated Moriah at dawn the next day. They slept all day when Brook joined in. They left two days later. So all this is between three and four weeks. A few more days passed when they arrived in Saboady. Luffy was sent by Kuma and arrived at Amazon Lily the next day. He awoke from the mushrooms after a day and be friends with Hancock. Five days later, they arrived at Impel Down. The next day was war. Two weeks passed when Luffy woke up in Marineford. So about a month has passed since they left Thriller Bark when Luffy decided to train for 2 years. After the break, it's only three days. They arrived at Fishman Island and stayed for a day. They left and went to punk Hazard. The third day is now Dressrosa Day. One comment, coincidentally by the same redditor, on this question explains the 3-day post-timeskip: Day 1: Straw Hats to Saboady. To Fishman Island. Beat Hody and challenge Big Mom. Tea party for 4 days. It's going to take Pekoms and Tamago three days to get there. Day 2: Camie asks for holidays, so it can't be Day 1 because she was also off that day. Straw hats leave Fishman Island and ally with Law on Punk Hazard. Day 3: The law says on Day 2 that the newspaper in the morning will have the resignation of Doflamingo. They went to Dressrosa that day. Pekoms and Tamago are still on their trip to Big Mom. Another way that people tried to determine the amount of time was the lunar cycle that Oda described in the night scenes in the manga. Here's an excerpt from Wikia's One Piece on this issue: In One Piece, Oda depicts several moons it was discovered the progress of the stages of the moon with its own timeline of the plot and therefore it can be used as a judge for the number of days that have passed on their journey. However, from the first sighting in Syrup Village Arc (crescent waxing moon) to the start of the Amazon Lily arc (weakened crescent moon) will only be 21 days by this tutorial. Although due to certain conditions on one of the visible stages, it can be as much as 42 days. One point that needs to be made is that we know the characters are only 2 years old, the length of timeskip. So the time spent ahead of timeskip is definitely less than a year. Based on the information I've shared above, it's more likely to be just a few months. It definitely feels very strange when you consider how long we have been watching their journey, and I think Oda sensee agreed since he made this joke in SBS Volume 24: Q: It takes while time to pass in the manga, isn't it? Because it's a weekly thing. So, should we wait another two years for Luffy's birthday? A: No, no, no. He has a birthday every year, just like everyone else. It's just that, in Luffy's case, every year is his 17th birthday. Doesn't that make you jealous? English source Share Sea of Survival: Super Rookies Saga The Final Sea: The New World Saga A collection of important scenes from the first 1000 chapters of the series. Short-Term Focused Cover Page Serials More: Cover Page and Short-Term Focused Cover Page Serials Due to the nature of the One Piece manga as a weekly series, each individual chapter has its own title page to begin the weekly shonen jump section. While most manga artists use this space either to extend the length of the chapter with a page or to draw a one-off illustration, Oda will take the supporting characters and defeat the villain, and give them their own story loops, sometimes coincidentally with the happenings of Luffy and his crew at some point moment. Each of these stories, officially known as Short-Term Focused Cover Page Serials (短期集中表紙連載, Tanki Shūchō Hyōshi Rensai?), or Cover Stories for a short time, lasts from 20 to 40 consecutive sections, only interrupted by the title pages. Each episode is a panel, with annot captions covering the title of the loop (given by Oda himself) and a description of what happens in the image. After each round has run its course, there is a set of normal chapter title pages introducing each member of the Straw Hat crew, and then a new story loop is introduced. Starting just before the ninth cover plot, a new segment called Where They Are Now begins, catching up with other characters from a specific loop and their current daily life before the specific story connects to the full-cover loop. While these Cover Stories (as fans call them) are part of the canon manga story, only three have appeared so far in the anime: Buggy's Crew: After the Battle! (episodes 46-47), Diary of Koby-Meppo (episodes 68-69) and Straw Hat's Separation Serial (episodes 453-456). However, it is not often encounters caused by mini bows appear in the anime without any explanation, including the recruitment of Jango Jango Marines. Therefore, additional materials are the only viable option. Unlike non-manga material in many other shows, most One Piece subs take place in story loops independent of the main storyline, and have little to no influence on the next canon story. These loops also often include lighter fares than Oda's work, which contains more comedy, the presence of child characters and less in a dramatic way. Currently, the anime has twelve non-manga story parts: Warship Island Arc (also known as Apis Arc), located between the East Blue saga and Alabasta. The Straw Hat Pirates try to help a mysterious girl named Apis and a Thousand Years named Ryuji, while resisting the inistodost Erik and the Marine Corps after the dragon. Post-Alabasta Arc: a series of character-centered episodes that take place right after the Alabasta Arc. Goat Island Arc: After the arc above, the Straw Hat meets an old man and his goat who is said to have a large treasure, but the Marine is after his treasure too. Ruluka Island Arc: After the upper arc, the Straw Hat passes through an island under the control of a ruthless former pirate and an old man trying to unlock the secrets of a space-time warp called Rainbow Mist. However, things start to get complicated when Luffy and the others are trapped in Rainbow Mist. G-8 Arc: Come after the end of the sky island saga. Instead of splashing into the sea, Going Merry is trapped in the closed and strongly forsgought waters of a Marine base, where the crew must disperse to survive before attempting to retake their ship and escape. Ocean's Dream Arc: follow the Long Ring Long Land arc and before the crew arrives at The Water Seven. The crew lost their memory and had to get it back before they could continue. Notably here it is the only non-manga storyline to date that is based on a One Piece video game (Ocean's Dream, released for Sony PlayStation in 2003). Foxy's Return Arc: soon after Ocean's Dream Arc is a short two-episode sub arc describing what became of the defeated Foxy and its crew following the Davy Back Fight. After the end of the loop, there is a short transition to the meeting with Aokiji, which is handled differently in the manga. Ice Hunter Arc (also known as Lovely Land Arc): after the Enies Lobby arc, Sunny falls into a dangerous trap on an ice island. Ambushed by the world's greatest prize money hunters, the evil Accino Family, Jolly Roger of straw hats are captured and they team up with the Phoenix Pirates, who are also victims of the Accinos, to retrieve it. Spa Island Arc: after thriller bark arc, the crew lands on Spa Island, an island dedicated to relaxation. However, once they meet a pair of sisters searching for their father's dream, a series of events turn the relaxing island into an island of destruction. The final episode of this bow is about Brook and how he adapts to the crew. Little East Blue Arc: before Strong World (probably after Thriller Bark Arc), Straw Hat Pirates arrive at Little East Blue Island, where they will fight against Largo and his pirates. Z's Ambition Arc: after the Fish-Man Island Arc, Straw Hat Pirates meets Lily Enstomach and fights Momonga to free her father. Then Shuzo of neo marines tries to kill him and Luffy fights him. Caesar Retrieval Arc: After the dangerous punk arc, a mysterious person manages to get on board the sunny thousand and kidnapped Caesar Clown out of the Straw Hat Pirates, who are on their way However, the recently formed Heart Pirates and Straw Hat Pirates will need to bring Caesar back, to complete the plan to take down both Donquixote Doflamingo and Kaido. Silver Mine Arc: D. Luffy and Bartolomeo monkeys are kidnapped by the Silver Pirates Alliance, and must escape a large fortress on a giant silver mine. Marine Rookie Arc: Sanji retrieval team ran out of food, forcing them to sneak into the Marine base on Fron Island to steal their food supplies. Cidre Guild Arc: After being targeted by the Cidre Guild, Straw Hats docked on a nearby island where they repaired and replenished Thousand Sunny. There, Luffy meets Boa Hancock and they attack back against the society, freeing the island from their control. After the encounter with Hancock and the guild's failure, straw hats learn about the Pirate Festival. TV Specials The first four TV specials and the first summary are hour-long specials that are broadcast over the course of the series instead of a regular episode. TV Specials years onwards are two hours long and broadcast outside the tv schedule. The 'Episode Of special (following from films 8 and 9) is part of a series that re-escies the story loops from the manga with new animations. Recaps TV Specials Adventure in the Ocean's Navel (broadcast after episode 52): Straw Hats meet a city in the middle of a whirlpool, called the Ocean's Navel, which is being destroyed by giant monsters. These monsters are said to protect a treasure capable of besting the desire, but in the process of defeating these guardians, the crew eventually unleashes another evil. Open the door on the big seal A Father's Huge, HUGE Dream! (broadcast after episode 149): The crew encountered 3 children and 2 adults, pretending to be family. As it turns out, the greatest knows the location of a large treasure discovered by his late father, and they are fleeing from a pirate with a dangerous ability. Protect! The Last Great Performance (broadcast after episode 174): This was the final performance of a great actor and playwright, but some actors suddenly gave up. Fortunately, straw hats offer to take their place. However, the actors who quit turned out to be more than just a coincidence when they met a Marine with a grudge against the playwright. The Detective Memoirs of Chief Straw Hat Luffy (broadcast after episode 253): In an alternative reality world that took place in 19th-century Japan, Luffy acted as a member of the secret police. This is made up of two adventures. For the first time, Buggy caused trouble in town. In the second, a mysterious girl named Vivi appears. This special contains a number of cameos from the characters throughout the entire series. As of episode 424 there are currently seven episodes in this special. Episode of Nami: Tears of a Navigator: the Bonds of Friend (aired after episode 560): The Arlong Park Arc was reinstioned and re-animated into a shorter special. More. of Luffy. Adventure in Hand Island (broadcast after episode 578): The Straw Hat Pirates arrive on a New World island, Hand Island, where they fight against Major General Bilić to liberate the island from its typism. Also included are re-imaginings of a re-animated Romance Dawn Arc. Merry: The Tale of One More Friend episode (aired after episode 608): A special episode documenting straw hat crew's first ship Going Merry was recreated with brand new animation. The plot includes a shortened version of the Water 7 and Enies Lobby loops, from Luffy and Usopp's war and Robin's disappearance to the crew's battle against CP9 to bring Robin back, and the crew's final farewell to the ship. 3D2Y: Overcoming the Death of Acel Luffy's Vow to his Friends (broadcast after episode 658) : The special took place for two years before straw hats reunited on Sabaody. Luffy is currently training rusukaina to get stronger to take on the new world. Episodes of Sabo: Bond of Three Brothers - A Miraculous Reunion and an Inherited Will (aired after episode 705): Specifically describing Sabo's childhood with Luffy and Ace, the Marineford war and his reunion with Luffy in Dressrosa from Sabo's perspective. Adventure of Nebulandia (broadcast after episode 722): Straw Hats face Foxy again in the New World and are caught up in a Marine conspiracy to destroy them. Heart Of Gold (aired after episode 749): Straw Hat meets a girl named Olga and travels with her to Alchemi to pursue Pure Gold, but is pursued by the Marines and treasure hunter Mad Treasure. Episodes of East Blue: Luffy and His 4 Crewmates' Big Adventure: A recap of the East Blue Saga, from the beginning until the crew entered the Grand Line. Episode of Sky Island: A summary of Sky Island Saga. Crossover The characters of the series (mostly crew protagonists) sometimes cross with other brands, and vice versa. These cross overs are considered un canon to the main series, however the characters remember their past encounters with the same cross group. Here's a list of crossovers thus far: References Français Polski Русский 中文 Community content is available under CC-BY-SA unless otherwise noted. Note.
