Af full form in marathi

Can be able to use on accounts as long as Using it in the most laid-back or even humorous situations and conversations. It may be wise to avoid using as much as possible when writing an email to your boss, a text message to your grandmother, or a Twitter reply to a loyal customer or customer. You get the idea. In some strange way, though, using this acronym online is at least a little more polite than writing as a full f-bomb, in the same way that people have been using 'WTF' (what f*) for years and are now using CTFU. It's up to you when it's or it's not advisable to use it according to the conversation and who you're speaking online or via text message. While slightly older acronyms like LOL are less and new to be used, more obscure people like the Air Force seem to be popping up more often, most importantly having fun with them and not taking them too seriously.
