On the Horde side, based on the information contained in the Wowhead Classic, there is one point to be made in the same way that the spot partner I use on a light fur farm located in the Darkshore, next to Auberdine, and the mob we are interested in is Moonkins. The drop rate for light feathers is approximately 37% for Horde, I recommend testing the Greater Plainstriders farming in Barrens. The drop-chance is about 36% for these light plumes, coupled with Fleeting Plainstriders, can prove valuable agricultural resources, as they are tied to quests in the area, and the extra gold from light feathers will not hurt. For this run I'm presenting in this article, I use level 12 Human Warlock, which also levels up to 13 during farming. The server is Earthshaker - EU. The Result Farm farmed Moonkins in the Dark Shore for 30 minutes, managed to kill 43 mobs, and the robbery I received was the following: 22 Silver in the trash/grey list 31 x small eggs 14 x light wool 1 x bear flesh (accidentally aggroed bear in space) 1 x Green BoE average gold light feather effect on my server, the current light fur goes for 30 silver per item, which will total 4 gold and 20 silver, if I sell at current price. For the purposes of this simulation, I will reduce the price to 15 funds per transaction, since other servers may have a higher price range or a much lower price range. Make sure to check your checks and see if the farm is lucrative for your server. So at a price of 15s/item, we will get: 2g 10s - for 30 minutes of farming (14 light feathers) 4g 20s - for one hour of farming (~28 light wool), tiny eggs, tiny eggs go for 1s 50c on my server, such a result for them 46 silver and 50 copper for purpose. This guide, since the price is not the same on every server, we assume a copper price of 75 per item, so this simulation will give us: 23s 25c - for 30 minutes of farming (31 small eggs) 46c 50c - for an hour of farming (62 small eggs), such as for an hour of farming, regardless of boe items, we will end up with: 14 x Light. - 4g 20s 31 x Small Eggs - 46s 50c Trash - 22s Total: 4g 88s 50c My per hour (price simulation) gold results, I'll show you what I get in my 30-minute farming session, which will include the price on my server along with the Green BoE entries I received. Soft fur - 4g 6s 31 x small eggs - 46s 19c 1 x Bear Meat - 8s 20c 1 x Fire Wand - 18s total: 4g 78s - only 30 minutes of farming at 12-13Conclusion levels, this is a great farm spot for gold, especially if your server is quite high for light plumage again. You will get more or you will get less depending on your server. However, it is still a great place to farm on your low-level character, because it will help you buy all the spells and most importantly, pick up the bag for even for farming along the way. Light wool is a semi-useful item for both priests and mags. As I plan to play a priest in Classic WoW, I want to be around a pile of light feathers with me all the time. I want to find the best area on the light wool farm and to be able to pile it on top of the leveling. Using light feathers as a liquid for Levitate and Slow Fall, 34 level priest skills and level 12 Mage skills, respectively. Both abilities slow down the speed of your character and allow you to reach unintended places, travel to places like Un'goro from Tanaris faster or escape enemies. Light feathers, as well as all the items in the auction house, have different prices, where players sell them. On the server I'm playing: They're selling about 10-20 silver pieces of 2.5-4 gold pile, of course, depending on the server economy and the time that's going to pass since the launch of the Classic.Stonetalon MountainsLevel 23-27Good around high density with a slightly reduced rate. A bloody rabbit in Charred Vale was found west of Sun Rock Retreat and south of Stonetalon. These harpies include ambush bloodfury, harpy, windcaller, storm witch, Roguefeather, Slayer and bosses with various names. There are several mobs scattered throughout the area, such as Embers, Basilisks and Chimeras, which do not leave light feathers. Harpy and the mob are all easy to kill, but beware of basilisks' crystallized ghetto abilities, which can interrupt their abilities. The area is paired with several quests found at Sun Rock Retreat and Stonetalon Peak for herds and allies respectively. As well as recalling Charred Vale, the recall for Mauren and Enraged Spirits for Alliance.As either the allies or the hornets are wary of seeking opponents in the area of passing to Desolace.Thousand NeedlesLevel 25-29.The rate drops higher, but more spread out can run out if killed quickly. Elder Cloud Serpents can be found in large groups around Windbreak Cavern, northeast of Freewind Post, killing elderly cloud snakes around Windbreak Cavern. Either way, you get about 1 light feather every 2-3 times. Regular cloud snakes throw lightning (150ish natural damage) and elderly Cloud Serpents cast lightning like Chain Lightning (200ish natural damage), as always: be careful to pull too much as well as lower than 100-150 health. About a thousand needles are mostly around. Regular and venomous cloud snakes are tigers and hyenas. Both mobs are easy to kill and can be doubled as well. At Freewind Post you can get alien egg quests where alien eggs can be found around. The Elders cloud snake, northeast of Freewind Post.As, wary allies seeking horde in the area, as well as horde that passes to Tanaris, generally on the main road. As Horde watched, the allies passed to Tanaris, generally on the main road. BarrensLevel 12-24.Ideal for good-round horn characters, low drop rate and bit spread away. With Plainstriders, Witchwing Harpies and Thunderhawks generally everywhere in the Barrens, the Thunderhawks are at a much higher level (20-24), with Plainstriders and Harpies at much lower levels (12-19). Around the Harpies intersection can be found in the northwestern corner of the Barrens, dry hills and Thunderhawks south of the Barrens, around Camp Taurajo and farther south, the Thunderhawks are quite spread out, so if you're going for purely light feathers, you'll have to stick with plainstriders and Harpies. There's no extra-hard mob, but beware of being dominated by Harpies.Basic, every quest in the Barrens net is good with the plainstriders or Thunderhawks cultivation, they are everywhere, and you can farm them on the way to the purpose-seeking Plainstrider Menace, especially those involved with the Plainstriders Chain Quest Harpy Raiders, specifically involving Witchwing Harpies and Cry of the Thunderhawks. Like Plainstriders in Barrens, Fleshrippers are scattered throughout West Falls, there are a lot of mobs mixing in and around Fleshrippers, nothing including fleshrippers is hard to kill in any way. Like the Barrens in general, all the quests in westfall mesh are good with raising Fleshrippers while they are everywhere, and you can farm them on the way to seek purpose, Westfall stew specifically associated with Fleshrippers.Edit: Here's a screenshot of the current AH price, including the gold I made of light wool that I raised for this thing.
