4th of july borders free

1/12 Suzanne Tucker/ShutterstockFrom watching fireworks to barbecue parties, Independence Day is the perfect holiday to spend outdoors. This year, take advantage of that time off work to spend quality time with the people in your life. Whether you're camping in the backyard with the kids, having a family water balloon fight or just whipping up some star-studded recipes, here's our favourite idea for an unforgettable July 4th. 2/ 12 Taste of HomeFor a fun starry snack to make with the whole family, try making this star appear. Simply cut your favorite cereal treats into patriotic shapes— then cover with melted chocolate and a sprinkling of red, white and blue. 3/12 Monkey Business Pictures/Shutterstock Secrets to the perfect picnic? You will need good company, the right amount of festive activities and, of course, a star-studded menu. It may seem daunting to plan, but we have your back. Check out our ultimate guide to planning a picnic. 4/12 Olya Detry/ShutterstockLooking for ways to occupy children and recycle tin cans that you open while preparing baked beans cooking? Try making red, white and blue candle holders out of cans! Just poke a hole in the side, then let your child paint on some lines and put a tea light in it. Once dark, their little luminaries will glow like jack-o-lanterns in July. Here is an acrylic paint kit to help you get started. 5/12 Mr.Suchat/ShutterstockIf the weather is warm, a fun and refreshing water balloon fight can add excitement to your holiday. Just invest in some red, white and blue balloons! Bonus: Additional water balloons can double as drink coolers with this genius hack. 6/12 oliveromg/ShutterstockWe can't think of a better way to end the day than with a night under the stars. You don't have to drive to the campsite to throw a tent and start a campfire. Instead, set up a site in your backyard—we have a guide here. Once the tents are set up, you can share your stories around the campfire, learn constellations and snack on our favorite camping recipes. 8/12 Brent Hofacker/ShutterstockIf you're looking for unique activities to entertain children and adults, test this Southern tradition. Make a stack of brown turtles and get ready for an exciting race. Using a wooden cornhole road (with holes covered, of course), put candy on a toy car or bean bag and ask your guests to place their bets on the winner. You can decide on a gift — and who can eat a turtle 9 / 12 Barbara Kalbfleisch / Shutterstock Can't find anything patriotic to wear on the 4th? No problem! You can make your own red-white-and-blue outfit and keep the family busy at the same time. (And if you don't have extra white clothes lying around, try a dying tie of a few pillow boxes. Or, you know, cupcakes.) 10/12 Samuel Scranton/ShutterstockSimplification, but but love s'more. (In fact, we love them so much, we came up with a fun twist on the timeless combination). But if you've prepared a fire, there's no reason to jump straight into dessert: We've got a delicious campfire recipe that will give you something else to bake over an open fire. 11/12 Joshua Resnick/ShutterstockIt wouldn't have been the 4th without some delicious food, fresh from the grill. Its smoky taste doesn't have to end in burgers and hot dogs. Here are some insane roasting recipes you should try. 12 / 12 Taste of HomeOn a normal day, a good ol chocolate chip will work — but not today! Check out this patriotic cake recipe perfect for July 4th if you lack inspiration. With such funny ideas, you won't be able to stop at one batch. Unsupported Video Screening In my office, we fly the American flag every day, as do many people across the country. But since this is the weekend of July 4th, everyone will actually be breaking the flag, which is great. It is time to step back, put your worries aside, and relax with your family and friends. So this is what you and your family are hoping for on The Fourth of July. TAGS4th of JulyAmerican flagholiday If you are bored today and need motivation, blast this on your speakers :) Makin' Money by A-Trak & Dillon Francis: (Thx to head up, Kyle!) Jay likes to talk about money, collect coins, blast hip-hop, and hang out with his three beautiful boys. You can check out all his online projects on jmoney.biz. Thank you for reading the blog! Turn on the grill and bring out all the red, white, and blue you can get —it's officially America's birthday! There is so much to celebrate during the 4th of July, first and foremost being the independence of our hard-earned nation. This patriotic occasion also marks a much-needed holiday from work to relax with family and friends, the chance to show off some good old American pride with patriotic quotes (and brushing off proper American flag etiquette), and time to (hopefully!) absorb some Vitamin D outdoors. But no matter how you spend this year's long-awaited summer event, you may (unfortunately) find yourself in need of a last-minute need on the holiday itself. Perhaps the items on your grocery store shopping list somehow fall through the cracks, and you're now missing out on key ingredients for your roast barbecue side dish. Maybe you even tried your hand at some just July 4th to decorate your house, but a hot glue gun is impossible to track. Alternatively, you may have squeezed the last few drops of your sunscreen bottle and need supplies before you hit the pool. Whatever the case, as with every federal holiday, it's always a game in which nearby shops and supermarkets will be accessible, if you need to do a quick task. However, fear not—you will not be left completely in the dust this year. This year, get ready to party in the U.S. this July 4th with everything you need, thanks to places like Target, Kroger, Walmart, and more. Don't see some of your local favorites in the list? Check back here for more store updates as the holidays get closer. (Also, this is the restaurant that opens on July 4th). The day ended with fireworks, of course. This ancient fishing town in Rhode Island was dubbed America's Most Patriotic Town because of its history. During the American Revolutionary War, the British Navy invaded Bristol twice, and every year the city celebrates its history. The party kicks off on Flag Day, June 14, with outdoor concerts, derby races, firefighter musters, July 4 balls and the Drum Corps & Bugle Show. Then on July 4, there's the Civic, Military and Fire Brigade parade. Indianapolis claimed second only to Washington, D.C. in the number of war memorials and takes honorary veterans seriously. Attractions include the Army and Sailors Monument, which serves as the city's epicenter, the Indiana World War Memorial and its Temple Hall, the Congressional Medal of Honor, the World War II Memorial, and the Veterans Memorial Plaza. The American Legion Mall, which runs between two city blocks, is flanked by the headquarters of the National American Legion. Every July 4, downtown Indianapolis attracts visitors to see fireworks and pick up food trucks and vendors and tailgating. Running June 28 to July 4, the festival celebrates American history and education in Philadelphia. Free events run in Center City, the Historic District, several neighborhoods and valley forge. Every day one or more Philadelphia museums will be open to all for free. The festival concludes with a non-stop 12-hour anniversary and celebration on July 4. This year's Wawa Welcome America theme is Welcoming the World With Love. Colonial Williamsburg is a living history museum in Virginia that pulls out all the stops to celebrate the Fourth of July. New this year is an exhibition called Resolved, An American Experiment, which was influenced by Hamilton and Schoolhouse Rock, and visitors to be part of the story when Virginia says yes to independence. There is also the opportunity to dress up in handmade colonial costumes and interact with interpreters who play real people who contributed significantly to the American story in 18th-century Williamsburg. Try axe throwing, ox wagon rides, or looking for a hidden treasure. The site claims to be the site of the country's first Public Independence Day celebrations. Every July 4th, Old Salem celebrates with live activities, historic Moravian traditions and patriotic music, plus Naturalization Ceremonies, be kind cooking, puppet shows, pharmacist tours, organ music and garden tours. Seward was nicknamed America's Fourth of July City because of its small-town celebrations dating back to 1868. While the city has only 6,000 residents, the event can attract more than 40,000 attendees. All-day festivities include a grand parade, vintage car shows, live entertainment at the Seward Bandshell and a giant fireworks display at Plum Creek Park. © Copyright . All rights reserved.
