Mahoning county court marriage records

The Ohio Attorney General's Bureau of Criminal Investigation maintains an extensive criminal fingerprint database. County residents can request an identification inquiry to find existing criminal records in Mahoning County and the rest of the state. With this service, you need the subject's fingerprint.

Records of people currently imprisoned in county jails can be obtained from the Mahoning County Sheriff's Office. It provides an inmate search tool that members of the public can use to find recently active inmates. The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Corrections also provides access to an online database that displays data from offenders kept in correctional inmate facilities across the state. Members of the public can perform searches by name, county, zip code, or known criminal number. Compliance with state laws that may require police reports, access to some arrest records, and court records may be restricted to authorized applicants only. Requests may be made by the victim's crime, a witness of the insurance carrier or legal representative, or by the victim. Requests for juvenile information require permission from the presiding judge of the Juvenile Court. Court Records Mahoning County is home to several courts, including the General Court of Appeals, the County Court, and the City Court. Members of the public can use the court's eAccess service to search civil, criminal and family records online. You can search by case status, case type, or party type. MAHONING COUNTY, Ohio -- General County Information The name of Mahoning County comes from the Native American word for salt lick. It was formed in 1846 when the large counties of Columbiana and Trumbull were reorganized into several smaller counties. Today, Columbiana County forms the southern border of Mahoning, and Trumbull County forms the northern border of Mahoning. Portage County in the northwest and Stark County in the southwest surround Ohio County, which borders Mahoning. The eastern border of Mahoning County consists of the Pennsylvania counties of Lawrence and Mercer. Youngstown, a county seat, is the only major city, with six small towns, seven villages and 14 villages. Mahoning County's economy is struggling and the population has declined in recent years due to the loss of manufacturing jobs. While some industries remain in Youngstown, much of the county is rural.
