Discover strengths and blind spots with the strength of deploying inventory @ 2.0 (SDI @ 2.0) - training and coaching that is available online or in person. Learning with SDI 2.0 gives you and your team an idea of your strengths, over-digested strengths and conflicting style and how to improve relationships at work. Contact us to discuss the benefits of using SDI. Ask for a review of the SDI 2.0 platform demonstration, which lets you download SDI results to discover your motivational value system. Get a personalized online debrief on the eve of your training. Compare your results (such as your motivations, conflict sequences, strengths, and overdue strengths) with others on your team or organization who have also taken over SDI. Create project commands using SDI profiles. Take your own development activities to deepen your knowledge of SDI and how it can increase your effectiveness in relationship building - your relationship ratio (RQ). SDI 2.0 is amazing. This requires embedding learning to the next level. Learning about SDI 2.0 Whether face-to-face or online through our interactive video conferencing, our 1:1 debriefations and training seminars will help you and your team build productive and sustainable relationships by identifying: Strengths and blindnessOverdone strengths Conflict management SDI use continues to grow in popularity. No wonder. This personality tool is so easy to understand and use. But has research and gravity behind it too. Whether it's leadership training, team building or customer service training, please contact us to explore how using SDI 2.0 will help you get the results you're looking for. That's why SDI 2.0 works so well The concept of focusing on our core strengths to build relationships has been available for a number of years. However, using SDI 2.0 now provides you with a fabulous opportunity to share and embed learning in your organization. Building and maintaining relationships is vital in business. Using SDI 2.0 will help you and your teams become more effective by understanding the core values and beliefs that lead to their behavior. The quality of our SDI training is improved by the fact that we only use authorized SDI® materials purchased from Core Strengths®. Understanding personality profiles will strengthen teamwork for everyone in your business. SDI will help coaches and facilitators understand people's needs and wants in training and coaching situations. Customer service teams can outperform when they learn how to match and borrow behaviors to improve sales performance. SDI 2.0 offers an online platform to allow managers and team members: Share your SDI profiles online. Get tips and tips on how to effectively Understand each other's conflicting triggers to avoid unnecessary redundant profiles of teams and teams to identify strengths, overestimated strengths, blind spots and potential conflict areas. Background information Here's Elias Porter, the founder of SDI tells us why relationship awareness is so important in our lives. Your coach SDI 2.0I quality qualified SDI® practitioners, our senior consultant Paul Beesley has been helping leaders develop and teams have been growing for over 20 years. Our expert training helps: People understand their motivational values and belief systems and how these driving behaviors are. People understand the motivation and behavioral patterns of others and how they may differ from their own. People to define their own style of conflict and how it can be managed. Business leaders develop their interpersonal skills and leadership opportunities to influence others to achieve their goals. Customer service teams build relationships and customer relationships to increase sales and develop business opportunities. Coaches and facilitators understand their own behavior and group dynamics more to increase their overall efficiency. Want to know more? Why not reveal your own SDI 2.0 profile? The rewards can be huge. Call us on +44 (0)1604 212505 or contact us to receive a call back. We'd like to explore how profiling SDI 2.0 can help you optimize your business performance and your team's performance. Ask to see a demonstration of the Core Strengths platform. Go to Content Transition to Content Goals: People work together more efficiently when they better understand their own and other strengths. SDI® (Power Deployment Inventory®) is a self-consciousness tool that moves the gap between motivation and behavior by providing two integrated personality assessments that measure when things are going well and when to conflict. Relationship awareness theory and™ relationship awareness theory underpin sdi. This is a motivational typology that has proved very accurate in determining the motivations behind the behavior. The theory itself is based on four simple but deep areas: 1. Behavior is due to motivation to achieve or maintain self-esteem 2. Motivational changes in conflict 3. Strengths, when overripped or misused, can be perceived as weaknesses and 4. Personal filters affect the perception of themselves and others. How does the strength of inventory deployment® work when an SDI® teacher completes 20 statements that look at the following two dimensions: 1. When things are going well (in life, not just at work) 2. When things are not going well (in life, not just at work) The first dimension of SDI helps people understand their motivations and related styles. SDI is uncoupled - each person's points will be in two areas on a unique color triangle, which is then explained in terms of their motivational value system™ and their sequence of conflicts™. What makes SDI so easy to complete, remember and apply is that it uses color and their blends to represent the following 7 Motivational Value Systems. This provides common ground that helps facilitate conversations about interpersonal issues. Trainees will complete the SDI assessment and analysis of their results during training. The theory of relationship awareness and psychometric stocks and other resources based on it was developed by psychologist, clinical therapist, educator and author Elias H. Porter, Ph.D., who was also a student and colleague of Dr. Carl Rogers, a leading psychologist and author. Facilitator: Mr. Alistair MacArthur's Alistair MacArthur has trained thousands of executives and employees across China and Asia. He spent more than 12 years working in China both in the business environment and promoting professional development skills, interpersonal skills and compelling performances, and working with organizational leaders.
