My connection with Lyman goes back more than 50 years when I loaded my first ammunition using the No. 310 Tong Tool. I soon added single-cavity molds for Colt 0.45 and .38 Special. I soon added a reload press and my first was Lyman All American. Lyman was a clear part of my shooting life especially with reloading dies and bullet molds. Lyman was not only the first company to give Elmer Keith bullets, but also the Ray Thompson Gas Check bullets of the 1950s. The oldest lyman reload manual was No. 32 published in 1936. I bought the first Lyman Manual No. 40 in 1955. We have all the subsequent manuals that bring us up to the latest, which is the 49th edition. The early textbooks were relatively small in size and spiral-bound, which allowed them to remain easily open on the loading bench. About four editions back Lyman went to a large soft cap format and I lost the convenience of staying manually open. With this 49th Edition Lyman offers reloaders two options, a softcover and a hardbound version. Whenever I have a choice I will always choose a hardcover over a softcover mainly for looks and duration, however, with this more recent Lyman manual hardcover version returns the convenience of being able to take it right to the reload bank and having it stays open to the desired information. [ILUSTRATION Lyman does not sell bullets or powders, so their manual covers reloading information for more powders and more marks of bullets jackets. They also do provides a large line of bullet molds so their bullet designs are also included in the reloading tables. In addition to all the excellent data reloading 49th edition also covers the basics in reloading, the basics of reloading, components, including descriptions and uses for all available powders. In addition to reloading information for both rifles and pistols there is a special section covering T/C Contender and Encore. There is also a section of specialty articles and one that really appealed to me is by Brian Pears and covers Handloading 1876 Winchester Replicas with extensive data on 0.40-60, .45-65, and .45-75. THE 49TH EDITION OF THE LYMAN RECHARGING MANUAL, $27.95 (SOFTCOVER), $39.95 (HARDCOVER), LYMAN PRODUCTS CORP., 475 SMITH STREET, MIDDLETOWN CT 06457, (860) 632-2020 WWW.LYMANPRODUCTS.COM.
