Swim leggings are set to be for any woman who wants to spend long days in the sun and surf without getting burned. These swim tights are great for snorkelers, surfers and water skiers as well, protecting you from rashes, jellyfish deletions, and any other irritants in the water. Most feature the UPF 50+, which means that more than 98 percent of the sun's harmful rays are blocked. These leggings are most often quickly dry, and because they feature high concentrations of either spandex or elastane, they offer mild to moderate compression that not only supports your muscles during higher strength water sports, but also makes your legs and swag look much sculpted. The main bonus for anyone who is a little shy about their inner thighs, or the bottom, the more minimal swimsuit. Now is the time to shop, because the quantities of swimwear shrink closer we get to the summer, and don't forget to grab some great hiking sandals as well, which can get you from the cliff side to the surf side even on the diciest trails. Christine Giordano What's your favorite water workout? Circles? Sup? Surfing? You know who could make them all that much better? Couple swim leggings. Seriously, swim leggings (or swim tights) are a complete thing and they're the perfect addition to your water sports wardrobe. They provide extensive coverage during water exercise and are designed to help you navigate through H2O as a pro. Most are also made with sun-protected fabric, so you don't have to worry about harmful rays while you work out in the ocean, lake, or outdoor pool. The rule number one when choosing from a pair of swim tights is to avoid fabrics that absorb water like cotton. Instead, stick to fabrics, for example, a mixture of Spandex and either polyester or nylon. Swim or surf leggings are basically leggings that are made of standard materials for swimwear, explains Schatzki Brown, designer and founder of the swimsuit brand Using the same material that you could use for a swimsuit or a rash guard, a guardian, a basically getting water friendly, but you can also use them for out-of-water activities like hot yoga or running. Another huge factor in swim leggings is upf protection, otherwise known as ultraviolet protection factor. It protects your skin from the sun's harmful UV rays, which is essential when you're outdoors! Basically, the good swim leggings are moisture-absorbing, quickly dries, have a UPF of 50+, and allow for a four-way stretch, meaning the fabric stretches and recovers both the cross and the longitudinal grains, Brown says. The best swim leggings or swim tights can do everything in advance and look good while doing so. Among those who make the cut are 12 pairs of swim leggings below.
