It belongs to McNaughton Newspapers. [2] History The Daily Republic began as two newspapers - the Solano County Herald and the Solano Press. The County Herald was established in Benicia in November 1855. He moved to the town of Suisun with his first publication on October 2, 1858, with offices in a building on the south side of the town square. The Daily Republic was the first newspaper in the country to editorially support Abraham Lincoln as president. The Solano Press was founded in 1862. Seven years later, the Herald and the Press were consolidated and renamed Solano's Republicans. [3] The Republican is a fearless defender of the rights of the people, and is a welcome weekly visitor to almost every house in the upper part of Solano County, Solano County's 1879 history said. In the 1940s, the Solano Republican was housed at 607 Main St., Suisun City. The current house of the Daily Republic at 1250 Texas St. was built in 1940. In his first year as owner of the newspaper, Mcnaughton increased publication to five days a week, Monday to Friday, and renamed it The Daily Republic. Today, the newspaper publishes seven days a week. Property The Daily Republic had many owners until the beginning of the 20th century until 1919, when David A. Weir bought the newspaper. He owned the Republican of Solano for the next 31 years. Weir was born in Sterling, Colorado in 1889. After working at the Denver Post and the Chicago Tribune, he published articles in Nebraska, Oregon and Porterville before buying the Solano Republican. Weir was also instrumental in the creation of the local Lions Club, the American Legion Post 208 and the county mosquito abatement district. Weir retired from the edition on November 1, 1949 and sold the Republican to J. Clifton Toney. Toney operated the newspaper until 1960, when it was sold to the McNaughton family. Since the early 1960s, the newspaper has been owned by the McNaughtons, a family with roots in journalism dating back to the 1920s. F.F. McNaughton, grandfather of current CEO Foy McNaughton, is a graduate of Columbia University's first master's program in journalism. He then worked for a newspaper in New York A few years later, he returned to his home state of Indiana to buy a small paper from Bicknel. After making it a success, he bought the Pekin Daily Times in Pekin, Illinois. This The flagship paper. His son, Dean McNaughton, joined the family business in the late 1940s. Dean McNaughton set out for California in 1960 and bought Republican Solano. In 1965, the McNaughtons purchased the Mountain Democrat from Placerville. In 1967, they bought The Davis Enterprise. Foy McNaughton joined the family business in 1973. His first job was in the composition room at the Mountain Democrat. Later that year, he moved into the press room of The Davis Enterprise. For the next six years, he worked in all areas of publishing until 1979, when he was appointed publisher of The Davis Enterprise. He assumed his current title as President and CEO of Mcnaughton Newspapers in 1986. He became editor of the Daily Republic in 1995, a role he has been in since November 2017. Foy McNaughton's son, T. Burt McNaughton, was appointed co-editor in early 2013. In addition to the Daily Republic, the family publishes The Davis Enterprise, the Mountain Democrat, the Winters Express in El Dorado Hills, Village Life in Cameron Park and Folsom, and the Georgetown Gazette in Georgetown, California.
