In the previous chapter, Bray-Curtis ordination was explained, and newly developed multivariate techniques were mentioned. Core Component Analysis (PCA), Correspondence Analysis (CA), Discriminatory Analysis (DA) and Non-Vector Multidimens can be used to analyze data without explanatory variables, while canonical correspondence analysis (CCA) and redundancy analysis (RDA) use both reciprocal and explanatory variables. In this chapter we present the PCA and RDA, and the next chapter of CA and CCA are discussed. The main component of the analysis is the Explanatory Variable Canonical Analysis of The Linger Distance Chord Distance These keywords were added by the machine, not by the authors. This process is experimental and keywords can be updated as the learning algorithm improves. This is a preview of the content of the subscription, log in to check access. You can't show a preview.
