By Shelley Frost Craigslist, an online classified ad site is divided into different city areas. Users place ads in categories including Services, For Sale, Jobs, Housing, Community and Personal. Basic knowledge of Craigslist allows users to safely communicate with each other. Craigslist divides its photos into different categories. Anyone can post an ad with or without a Craigslist account. When creating an account, you can easily access all your posts to review or remove them. Without an account, you receive an email after posting with links to change the ad. Click the Post to Classified link at the top left corner of each page on the Craigslist website to create an ad. Fill in the template fields, including Placement title, Placement body, and additional details such as Price and Condition. The ad may take a few minutes to appear in the category on the select city's Craigslist page. If you're interested in browsing the Craigslist ad, select the closest city on the right side of the Craigslist page. The main page of your city's page shows the ad organized under main categories. Subcategories appear below to help you find the specific items you want. The For Sale section includes categories such as Antiques, Appliances, Books, Furniture and Jewelry. Click on the desired category to see a list of ad posted from latest to oldest. You have the option to sort that ad by price instead of chronological order. You can also see the ads from the selected category represented as expandable information bubbles on a map based on the buyer's location. On Craigslist, all negotiations and transactions happen directly between the buyer and the seller. An interested seller contacts the person with any questions, then can eventually commit to buying an item and making arrangements to comply with. Read all the ad details before responding. Each Craigslist ad features an answer button in the upper-left corner. Click the Reply button to show all the contact methods provided by the poster. Craigslist offers a service that masks the seller's email address so it appears as a Craigslist email address and any mail sent to the address, Craigslist automatically sends to the vendor's personal email address. Users choose whether they want their actual email addresses or the Craigslist version to show when they create the ad. Since you are communicating with strangers on Craigslist, take precautions to protect your identity when querying an ad. Plan to meet in a public place, like a busy parking lot. In neighborhoods are encouraging police stations Craigslist users to meet outside the station for deals. Take someone with you or tell another person where you're going. If the situation looks suspicious, trust your instincts and leave. Never wire or pay money for something before meeting with the person. Each item on this page was compiled by an ELLE Decor editor. We may commission on some of the items you choose to purchase. The service was launched in the mid-1990s and has since grown to cover every continent. But what exactly is Craigslist, and how does it work? In 1995, San Francisco resident Craig Newmark created an online hub intended to inform visitors of local events. Soon, individuals began using Craig's small platform to buy jobs, services, items and post more, ultimately requiring the use of a server. During a housing shortage in San Francisco, individuals began posting ads for apartment rents in and around the city. In response, Craig wrote software that can automatically add email posts to a website: craigslist.org. Finally, in 1999, Craig was able to devote himself to Craigslist full-time. Craigslist functions as an online classified forum, but it also allows for community discussions, job placements, service ads and more. Visitors can post their own photos, apply for gigs, or take advantage of transactions they are interested in. A quick look at the Craigslist homepage shows a variety of sections. Some of the key sections you'll find include: Community: This section is for opportunities and trends happening in your community, including classes, lost and found items, political forums, and local news. There's also a unique section called Rants & Raves, where posters can share whatever thoughts and feelings they have. Services: Here's where you find people and organizations offering services, such as auto repair, website design or dog walking. Housing: Use this to find or advertise an apartment for rent. You can also find property listings in your area, whether you want to buy, sell, rent or trade. Work: Work placements are very common on Craigslist. You can find lists for biting any field, including Education, Real Real Accounting, Security, and Media.For Sale: If you're looking for an item on the cheapest, this is where you'll find it. One of the most widely used areas of Craigslist, these photos are posted by individuals who sell anything from furniture to collectible figures. Discussion forums: Craigslist has forums to discuss pretty much everything under the sun, such as tech products, religion, celebrities and politics. You can use the Forests category under the For Sale section to ask specific items you want, or browse lists of other people's requests. Craig Newmark was once asked to include sponsored ad on its website but declined the offer. Instead, Craigslist focuses on only a few revenue streams, including: Fees for job placements: There's a fee for placing a job placement in major U.S. cities, and that ranges from $7 to $75 depending on the location. Fee for apartment placements: Individuals posting an apartment listing in Boston, Chicago and New York are charged $5 per placement. Other placement fees: Craigslist also charges fees for other posts, mostly depending on the region. You can find a full list on the Craigslist posting fees page. Follow these instructions to set up the Craigslist Marketplace and start using. You can follow the exact same steps to find other posts like gigs, housing, and more. Go to the Craigslist homepage. If you have your location services on, Craigslist will pull up the largest community homepage closest to your area. Use the search bar on the left to manually search for listings, or browse subcategories under the For Sale section. Each listing is different, with different levels of detail. Each ad will have a map of the general location for an item, plus a description. You can query an item by selecting Reply in the upper-left corner of the page. You get options for replying directly by email or using the email provider of your choice. Craigslist allows posters to mask their email address to keep their personal information private. The email you see and use will be directed to the poster's email account on file. You can use voice search to find an item, service, or gig on Craigslist. By Siri, Alexa, or Google Assistant, Craigslist says near me to be directed to your local Craigslist page. You can also use voice commands to search for items or services. For example, you might ask to see puppies on Craigslist to see a list of cities and their puppy listings. You can use Craigslist forums to participate in or start conversations about pretty much anything, from classical music to the latest iPhone. Under this section, you can select a forum to use the search bar at the top of the page. After choosing a forum, you'll see a list of all the threads and discussions relates to a specific topic or search term. If you see something that interests you, select the blue hyperlink hyperlink to see the response in more detail. To reply to a post in the forum, you'll need to sign up for a Craigslist account. You can e put together a new thread to start a new discussion or comment on others by replying. You can also assess or flag an individual's response if it is inappropriate. The forums are a great place to learn, discuss, and find friends. Just like any other online activity, it's important to stay safe. If you're selling a product, service, or a gig on Craigslist, here are some security tips to keep in mind: Don't add all of your contact information: Keep your contact information to the minimum, just enough for buyers or those interested in your post to reach out. Accept cash only for monetary transactions: Don't accept checks or money transfers for your product or service. Many scams occurred for buyers using these methods. Always invite buyers to a safe place: If you don't have a place of business and you're an individual selling an item, meet the buyer in a public place. Never invite buyers to your home. For buyers on Craigslist, it's best to always: Ask questions: If you're unsure about an item or service you're interested in, make sure you ask questions. You can also request more photos, past transactional information, and other details. Don't even send money: Never send money to a seller until you see the item or know exactly what you're buying. It's a great way to get scammed. scammed.
