From Bulbapedia, the community-driven encyclopedia Pokémon. Eevee (Japanese: イーブイ Eievui) is a Normal-type Pokémon introduced in Generation I. It evolved into one of eight different Pokémon through various methods: Eevee has the gigantamax form. Eevee is the game mascot and starter of Pokémon in Pokémon: Let's Go, Eevee!, as well as for the main characters Pokémon XD: Gale of Darkness and Pokémon Conquest. This was the earliest Pokémon and the first Pokémon in Pokémon in Pokémon Yellow, although Professor Oak originally intended to give it to players. Biology Eevee is a pokémon four times the mammal with its main brown plumage. The bushy tip of the tail and the large furry collar are creamy. It has short and slender legs with three small toes and pink claw pads on each leg. Eevee has brown eyes, long pointed ears with a dark brown interior, and a small black nose. Eevee is rarely found in the wild and is mostly found only in towns and cities. However, it is said to have an irregularly shaped genetic structure that is easily influenced by its environment. This allows it to adapt to various habitats by developing. Eevee is the only known Pokémon capable of using the exclusive Z-Move Extreme Evoboost. In Pokémon: Let's Go, Eevee! players begin with a special Eevee known as Partner Eevee. Eevee's partner has purple eyes and a lighter fur color. This design element is likely taken from anime, which applies similar properties ranging from Pokémon the Series: Ruby and Sapphire. Eevee's partners have higher basic statistics and access to movements that Eevee does not normally do. Eevee's partner is the only Pokémon capable of doing Bouncy Bubble, Buzzy Buzz, Sizzly Slide, Glitzy Glow, Baddy Bad, Sappy Seed, Freezy Frost, Sparkly Swirl, and Power Partner is the only Pokémon Sword and Shield, this trait was unique and was not found in other women's Eevee. In Pokémon Sword and Shield and then Pokémon GO update, a unique tail pattern is present in all female Eevee as a true gender difference. As Gigantamax Eevee, it has become bigger and smoother. The fur collar becomes longer with some triangular feathers pointing straight up. The right ear has three red clouds around it like a circle. As the fur becomes smoother and luxurious, every enemy caught in it will lose the strength to fight because it is captivated by its presence. Due to Gigantamaxing, Eevee becomes more cheerful and rambunctious, wants to play with his opponents and often accidentally destroys by its size. [1] Gigantamax Eevee is the only known Pokémon capable of using the exclusive G-Max Move All Wounds. Language name Eevee also contains only two unique characters, less than any other English Pokémon Eevee was designed by Motofumi Fujiwara. [2] Eevee has the most branched evolution, with a total of eight. Eevee has the most evolved form of Pokémon and is the only Pokémon that has more than three evolved forms. A fan-made term to describe the evolution of Eevee, Eeveelutions, was made official after being used in the strategy guide for Pokémon Red and Blue, Eevee is called Eon, the ending of all evolved forms of Eevee. In Generation I, Eevee was the only Pokémon to have branched evolution. It's impossible for Eevee to evolve into Espeon and Umbreon in Pokémon FireRed and LeafGreen because the game doesn't have a time system. It was also impossible for him to evolve into Leafeon and Glaceon in Pokémon HeartGold and SoulSilver because neither Johto nor Kanto owned Moss Rock or Ice Rock. Although Eevee can be acquired before the Pokémon League in Pokémon Black 2 and White 2, it cannot develop into Leafeon or Glaceon until after entering the Hall of Fame. This is because Twist Mountain and Pinwheel Forest were inaccessible before then. Eevee is the only previously existing Pokémon to receive evolution in Generation VI, although many accept Mega Evolutions. Four evolved forms of Eevee evolved through abnormal means in the Pokémon Ranger, all forms of Eevee that evolved to the third generation can be captured; However, Eevee is completely un accomplished. This was changed in Pokémon Ranger: Shadows of Almia. Despite the fact that May, Gary, and Sakura each have a growing Eevee, Eevee never seemed to thrive on screen in the anime until Last Call – First Round!, when Ursula developed her two Eevee into Flareon and Vaporeon during the Contest appeal, more than thirteen years into anime. As a species, Levee has appeared in the most mainstream team of characters in the anime, with Mei, Serena, Lana, and Chloe each having one. This also makes Levee the only Pokemon species in the anime owned by more than two different main characters. Levee has more signature moves than any other Pokémon, for a total of nine. Eevee is the only previously existing Pokémon to receive gender differences after Generation IV. Origin In the 2018 artbook, EVs, Motofumi Fujiwara reveals that Eevee was inspired by the vague childhood memories of unknown creatures he encountered in the forest. Although not based on different animals, Fujiwara mentions that Eevee reminds him of a furry cat Dog-like creatures.
