Postal codes and postal codes are numeric codes that are used to facilitate postal delivery, and codes are used to specify a geographic region when a phone number is called. Instead of scrolling through a large, cumbersome phone book, you can easily find and check zip codes and code on the web. If you have an address or a partial address, you can find the zip code via USPS Zip Code Lookup, a tool on the U.S. Postal Service website. You can also search by city or state, or find all cities that are part of a specific zip code. The International Post Codes website, managed by Columbia University, has an extensive index of national and international zip codes, in addition to sending acronyms, policies, and best practices. You can also use different search engines to find postal codes. For example, if Google did a ZIP Code search by address, type what you know about the address to display a map of the location with its zip code. You can even enter something like South Laurel MD POSTcode to see all of them for this area (and to find links that show a complete list of ZIP Codes for this region). You can also enter a zip code to show the geographic location to which it belongs, as well as a map and other related Web results, such as .B cities that use this zip code. If you don't attach a zip code to the end of your search, Google may display unrelated information. For example, searching for 90210 displays information about the TV series, while 90210 POSTAL code displays postal code information. You can also find a zip code with DuckDuckGo. Enter a zip code, and DuckDuckGo returns a map, postal code location, weather, real estate, and other relevant web results. A postcode search on Bing brings back which city/locale affects them, maps and local attractions such as grocery stores, hotels and cinemas. When you enter a sub-address, Bing completes it for you and displays the zip code. Similar to a zip code, you can use a search engine to find a country code by searching for the city. To do the opposite and find out which part of the country has a pre-selection, simply enter the area code in the search engine. To find a code with Google, enter the name of the city and the you are looking for, followed by the words area code. You will usually find what you need. For international offers, look for an expression like the Kenyan call code, and you'll get an informative response with the numbers you need to make a call in this nation. Enter the city and state in a new Bing search, and you'll more than likely see Google-like results that show you the area code at the top of the results. The same applies to international call codes. Another way to find a preselection online is with tungsten tungsten describes itself as Computational Intelligence. This data-based search engine does not display any results as the others mentioned on this page, but with a little digging, you can find some unique information about cities and states that you might not find on another search engine. Using Yahoo to search for a dial-up is similar to using Google. Simply enter the city and state name followed by the area code, and you'll get an immediate result. Finding international codes isn't as easy at Yahoo as google, but you can still use Yahoo to find other websites that can give you that information. Quite a few websites specialize in the search for primaries, which a simple search engine query may not reveal. You can use these free resources to find almost any area code and/or country code in the world: Area Codes: Features Preselections from most of the United States, although other countries are also scattered here. BT Phone Book: Use this website to find country codes in the U.K.Country codes: This website asks you which country to call from and which country you call to assign the correct country code, area code, or both. LincMad: A ZIP Code card that provides a visual representation of u.s. and Canada.AllAreaCodes.com primaries: Similar to LincMad, you'll get a full U.S. and Canada pre-selection map, as well as links to region-specific primaries, pre-selection details (e.B.m. wireless or landline, network operators when they were introduced), search tools, and printable pre-selection lists. Thank you for letting us know! Tell us why! George Diebold/Getty Images The 578 code is one of the unassigned codes for the North American Numbering Plan, which includes the United States, Canada, certain Caribbean nations, and U.S. territories. Using a phone number with a code 578 is an attempt to obscure the source of a call. The NANP primaries were first used in the early 1950s, with 86 of a possible 152 primaries used. As the number of telephone users increased over the decades, additional primaries were over-planned to complement demand in higher-density regions of the continent. For example, the 917 primaries overlap with the 212 and 718 primaries in the New York City area to reflect the significant increase in phone users there. The area code 543 is not currently used in North America. The closest primaries to this one are 541 for Eugene, Oregon, and 551 for Newark, New Jersey. Primaries are controlled by the North American Numbering Plan (NANPA). What people usually call primaries are officially referred to as NPA codes. Each set of three digits (000-999) is theoretically a preselection, but at this point only 316 of these codes are used. In addition, some codes are stored as special markers of a species. For example, the 800 area code is used for toll-free calls where the for the call and not for the caller. Ugurhan Betin/Getty Images The country's 668 code is not a valid area code in the United States. However, it is a valid area code in Oujda, which is located northeast of Morocco. Calls received from the 668 area code can be traced to telemarketers, bill collectors, and surveyors. The area code 668 is used to obscure the valid phone number, which makes it impossible to locate the call or track the store that places the call. Phone calls and text messages received from this area code can be reported and added to the fake number list. Scam artists are also known to use invalid phone numbers. Area codes 520 and 928 are generally (but not exclusively) intended for all cities and municipalities that are not located in the Phoenix, Arizona metropolitan area. The largest city in Arizona in the 520 primary is Tucson. The largest city in Arizona in the 928 primary is Flagstaff. See a map of Arizona Area Codes. Note: These area codes apply only to landlines. Mobile phone codes are not restricted by geography. A person who lives in a house in a city can receive a wireless service with a different area code. Are phone calls to different primaries within Arizona considered long-distance calls? Yes and no! If you're in the 520 primary, calling another area code within Arizona isn't a local call. You must dial first 1 and then the area code and number. It is considered a long distance call. If you are in the 928 area code, calling a different area code is Arizonas not a local call. You must dial first 1 and then the area code and number. It is considered a long distance call. If you are in the 480, 602 or 623 primaries, call three primaries are considered to be local calls. These primaries are all in the Phoenix area. For example, dialing a phone number with a country code 623 from a telephone number with a country code 602 is a local call. You dial the number, including the area code, without first dialing 1. The call from one of these three area codes to 520 or 928 is a long distance call, and you must dial first 1 and then the area code and the number. Exception: If you call 928, where the phone number starts with either 252 or 501, e.B. 928-252-XXXX or 928-501-XXXX, it is a local call from the 480, 602 or 623 area codes. These primaries refer only to fixed-line ones. Mobile phone codes are not restricted by geography. A person who lives in a house in a city can receive a wireless service with a different area code.
