After a few years, I have concluded that we do not always wish that what is good does not bring us all our desires happy (see Emma 41:3 – 7). In fact, the immediate and sinude of all our desires will be the lowest and most direct path to the unhappy. Many hours I have spent listening to the supplasties of men and women convinced me that happiness are both very high on their own. As Prophet Joseph Smith (1805-44) told us, happiness is the purpose and the design of our existence. And he will be the end, if we follow the path that goes towards him. And this path has been selected by the teachings of Joseph Smith (Joseph Smith, 255 – 56) keeping in mind the excellence, good, loyalty, purity, and all the commandments of God. The more loyalty we maintain the commandments of God, the happiness we will normally have. Although men are, they may be happy (2 Ne. 2:25), that doesn't mean that our lives will be filled with happiness only, for him Need, that's an opposition in all things (2 Ne. 2:11). Happiness in a package is not given to us that we can just open and bissam. Anyone is happy 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Instead of thinking in terms of a day, we probably need to take away from happiness in a little bit of pieces, learn to acknowledge the elements of happiness but does not substitute with it. Poet Robert Berns (1759-96) wrote a great appreciation of happiness in these lines: but happiness is like the spread of the affin: you catch the flow'r, its bloom is shed; or the ice in the river Like Falls, a moment melts for white-never again; or like the Bolyals race, that can snag as you point to their place; or like the Bolyals race, that can snag of the storm. Happiness, is what delights us or gives us a feel. Normally it's only set up for a short time. The elder David A. McAe (1873 to 1970) then one of the twelve Apostles said: You may find this temporary pleasure, yes, but you cannot find happiness, you cannot find happiness, you cannot find happiness has only been found with the track hit this way, it is as narrow, though directly, which goes towards life's inimitable (in the conference report, October 1919, 180). We are ready to follow the worldly happiness every day that can bring us out of the way of happiness. But truth and long lasting happiness is the way of happiness, the words of the Prophet Joseph Smith, the virtue, the good, the loyalty, the purity, and the mainity of all the commandments of God (Teachings, 255-56). Ralph Waldo-Emanderson (1803-82) said, Good is a lasting victory, not fear of happiness but celebrated by peace, which is with joy or (characters, articles: second series [1844]). Obviously there is a great difference between feeling happy in their essential rights, as set out by their founding father. This concept was not introduced by them, however, as early philosophers like Aristotle, Plato, Skaret, John Locke, Aquinas, and happiness that is the most fundamental of all human searches. In the battle and peace of the Book of Tolstoy, the Russian writer learned his character pierre Bez. ukhov was created for happiness to the man, that happiness is created within him, in the satisfaction of simple human needs, and that all unhappiness addhesive is not born of the inimitable but from TheAdhikai (translators Lewis and Aylmer Maawada [1942], 1176). Most of the time we struggle for adhikai. We are not content with it and think that happiness comes from being more and more. We look for happiness but go in the wrong direction to find it. Story is told Hafed, a rich old Persian who owns more land and many production fields, gardens and had money in interest. He had a beautiful family and was first satisfied because he was rich, and rich because they were satisfied. An old pastor hafed Ali and told him that if he had a diamond the size of his thumb, he could buy a dozen forms like him. Ali Hafed said, Will you tell me where I can find diamonds? The priest told him, if you find a river that walks through white sand, between high mountains, in these white sands you will always find diamonds. He said, 'Ali ha fed, I will go . So he sold his farm, was interested that his money was collected, and left his family in charge of a neighbor, and away he went looking for diamonds, traveling through many land in Asia and Europe. After years of searching, his money was all spent, and he died in the chats and the dildar. Meanwhile, as the man who led Out of Ali Hafed's farm one day to drink his camel in the garden, and put his nose in the water to the animals, the farmer noticed a dynamic flash of light in the white sand of the river. In reach, he pulled out a black stone that includes a strange eye of light. Not long after that, the same old priest visited Ali Hafed's successor and found that there was a herd in the black stone. They reached out into the garden and lightened the discovery of the diamond ears of Rose Conda, the most precious diamond ears in the history of the ancient world. Ali hafed lives in the house and in his own box and anywhere in his own fields, rather than traveling in strange land he had finally encountered hunger and ruin, he had acres of diamonds (from the story of Paraparaprasad Russell H-Conwell, acres of diamonds [1960], 10 – 14). We just feel sorry for Hazrat Ali Hafed as we displaced his picture and far away from the far away and happily he thought he would find diamonds in the far away spot. But how often do we look with our families and friends in our own homes, in our own homes, in our own homes, in our own place of happiness or distance in time? The savior of the world taught us that inner peace which is a natural delight in our souls. The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: He will give me my security, not the world. Don't let your heart bother, don't fear it (John 14:27). Years ago, when we were living in Sao Paulo, Brazil, a new house was being built next to us. Work was paid to Workman for just a few cents an hour and worked in the evening from six to six mornings. But he singed And Wastlad throughout the day. Sometimes we wanted to hear it was much more! But I never had a heart To head them down. A few years ago I interviewed a relatively young man who was being called as the mission president. He had a very successful career as an investment consultant. Because he was a young family, I was concerned about how he would take care of them when he came back from the mission arena. He made it very clear that he was not interested in earning a large amount of money. He explained that he had worked for the very rich. For him, he did not seem happy or fulfilled, and he seemed to deal with getting more. That the inner peace that is mentioned by the savior is present until we are associated with things or what we want , we are . At a time when we both use unmarried and greedy and acquiring goods, Moses' advice is more needed than ever: so your neighbour's wife, neither his slave, nor his slave, nor his slave, nor his slave, nor his son, nor his baby was born without eyes. It was normal in all other respects except to have nothing to do with the eyes or socket above the nose. This mother has said to them bitterly, Why should it be for me? Instead he said, The Lord really believe that this child has been given. Thinking that the LORD raised our house, knowing how special love and care this child would need, is very humble and comfortable. We are grateful for this special child, and the blessings that will come into our house. A little prince in the story, Fox was more understanding than he knew when he said, now here's my secret; a very simple secret; it's only with the heart that he can see correctly. What is necessary is hidden from the eye (Translated by Beclère de Saint-Esoperi, Little Prince, Catherine Woodes [1943], 70). The odesi of happiness is at the heart's side. Such a journey is on the stones that come out with unselfishness, wisdom, anger and faith . Enemies of development and fulfillness are such things as self-doubt, a poor self-image, self-resin, bitterness, and frustration. By the simple faith and humility space for these enemies, we can move faster in our search for happiness. Happiness is a price, as President Spaner W. Qambal (1895-1985) said: 'What is the price of happiness?' The simplicity of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Like a mariner without stars, like a compass less traveler, he is the person who walks with life without any plans. Guaranteed supreme happiness, the belief of a successful life and the ever-foregoing life came to the hereafter Those who intend to live their lives in complete harmony with the Gospel of Jesus Christ — and then constantly follow the course they set (Miracle of Forgiveness [1969], 259). Selfish pride and happiness do not go together . Naifi's brother Jacob told us that we must come deeper into humility. ... The words of Dana and Aqal will be hidden . Always — Yes, the joy that is ready for the saints (2 Ne: 42 – 43). The Lord, while talking through King Benjamin, reminded us: I want you to consider the blessed and happy kingdom of those who maintain the commandments of God. For behold, they are blessed in all things worldly and spiritual. And if they remain faithful to the end, they have received in Paradise, that they will thus live with God in a state of ever-over joy (Suburban 2:41). Many people talk about enjoying the rights of consumers on these days who are free, perfect, and now, at low cost, with no flaws, and instant service. The problem is that many of us try to make it happy rather than create it. Shexper eunaded a philosophy as you like it to be able: I am a real labourer: I have devoured it, which I wear. No one hates, jealousy is not a person's joy; other men are well pleased (Act 3, Scene 2, Lines 65 - 67). What we eat will make us self-help, but will help our neighbour and give back a little bit. For example, if you provide a nuclear energy-reader to the re-operator, then three one truck fuel energy, it will return the energy of four or maybe five of fuel a truck. Happiness, such as the breader, add the re-active and the data as we divide with others. I realize that many of us are not rich. A poor man said, I know that money is not everything. For example, i don't have. And another observed, even how books about it can be happy without the value of money, I can bear. (Both references are from The Son of Bean, you who have to know who is [1979], 185.) However, the best objection able to have money relationships for happiness. Solid an unknown writer. Hinrick Absen (1828 – 1906) reminded us: money can buy lots of things, but not colonel. It does get food, but there is no appetite. Medicine, but not health; Knowers, but not health; Knowers, but not peace or happiness. An unknown poet wrote: Words of praise for success, in other people's ways of doing the same, is just the best you can do with every task and every project you've been talking about. It's quiet when your speech is painful, when your neighbor's own side. It's deafness when disaster comes. It's patience when the hours are long. It is found in laughter and song. It is in quiet time of prayer, in joy and frustration. In all and less of life, we find what we call success. In the saman, our search for happiness mostly depends on the degree of authenticity we get, we get a degree of authenticity we get, we get a degree of unselfishness, the value and quality we have provided, and the inner peace that we enjoy. We also have some external sources of happiness, including loved ones and friends who have a smile and a lot about it. Our fates are bound by the general interest and empathy relationships for a host of others, personally unknown to us, inside and without the church. Some of us may be detovarads for peace and happiness through this path . With all my heart I try to start the process of clearing you any problem so that you enjoy a calm and peaceful conscience. When we repent of our sins, the Lord has promised, I, lord, do not remember them (D&C 58:42). I can suggest more essential in the ongoing struggle to live happily every hour, every day, every month, and every year of our lives. The golden path to happiness is an unloved one of love — the kind of love that is some measure of concern and interest and charity for every living soul. Love is a direct way for the joy that will improve and bless our lives and the lives of others. This means that you show love to your enemies, bless those who hate you, and pray for those who hate you will fulfill the most command to love God and enjoy his love. You will grow above the sick winds, which on top of it, defeat yourself, and be bitter. You promise that your entire bodies will be filled with light, and you will have no darkness. And the body that is full of light has a comperiaandita (D&C 88:67). Although we are the ones that our lives will always be filled with happiness, because everything is opposed (2 Ne. 2:11). We need to learn to find happiness in a little bit of pieces and treasure it. The Savior taught us that inner peace which is natural joy in our souls . The treasure house of happiness is open to those who live in the purity and simplicity of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Simplicity.
