Children participate in various activities every day, including art, music, creative movement, dramatic games, math, science, block games, group conversations, and outdoor games. Our qualified teachers combined this diverse curriculum through a healthy balance of learning that guide the child's start and teacher, which develops the child's physical, social, language, and creative skills. and by Understanding, and respect, we provide a positive, safe and foster environment for learning. Our program supports our community. Children learn about our community through field-trips and community events. We believe that children learn best when parents and teachers work with each other and support each other, so, we encourage active parental involvement. The Park District is encouraged by the following Young Children's Education National Association (LAAC), which has encouraged children to actively engage in learning, to experience a variety of development-appropriate activities and materials, and to follow their own interests in the context of life in the community and the world. The development of children can be divided into four parts: social and emotional development, physical development, cognitive development, and language development. These four types are closely related and often overlap. One area affects development and is affected by development in all sectors.
