In order to have an efficient, low-working liquid fertilizer terminal, Tri-State Fertilizers included Total Fertilizer construction to build a terminal to meet its current needs and allow future expansion. What they needed a three-state fertilizer was conscious that in agricultural business time was the essence for their customers. To avoid any untimely use of it, Tri-State needed a liquid fertilizer facility that was self-service and available 24 hours a day. With the voluntary industry to reduce the cue of fertilizers, the products that were available throughout the year were for use as a side dressing. This meant storing ammonium tiosulphate through the cold winter in North Dakota. What we designed was tfc, created an extremely efficient automated system for the delivery of liquid fertilizers, which pulls the product out of one 2 million gallon tank and half a million gallon is warmed and isolated tank through insulated pipes to the double bay building for loading and into the customer's truck. The high-speed system can fully charge the truck in seven minutes. Isolated and thermal findings from pipelines shall ensure that the product can be delivered at any time of the year. The final 12-car capability unloading system to fill the tanks quickly as well. TFC creates design to build liquid and dry fertilizer facilities for customers in terms of their current needs with the possibility of expansion. TFC partners with Heartland Tank Companies, W Design and Associates, and Kahler Automation and other reliable industry operators to complete projects of fertilizer plants without propalith.
