I predict that European software will become the standard and may no longer be an extra cost option to unlock, but you will probably have to pay for old OBD 1 and motorcycle coverage accessible only with software subs that are valid on an internet basis. My guess is that soon without a current software subscription, you have a glorious code reader and can no longer do some special features or coding accessed by internet 06-15-2018, 01:29 pm Senior Member Participation Date: May 2008 Location: Wisconsin Diagnostic Tools: VERUS 15.4, Vantage, Vantage Ultra, Pass THRU PRO III, Smart Smoke, TPMS3, EECS750 Specialty: Engine, Electric, General Repair, Diagnostics, Some Hybrid, Gravy Work, Turd Polisher Post: 1,503 I think they have a contract to clear ultras for $2200 or something like that. This allows users to know in advance and make some decisions about upgrading the tool itself or sw. In addition, another case of early decommissioning platforms that are more than capable. A lot more. At this rate, the tools purchased this year will no longer be supported next year, no whatever you pay for them. Not all scanning tool companies can support the tool for at least 10 years or sell it. Or you will be forced to buy it back at full price without including updates. Or when the tool is first introduced, they need to tell you its planned expiration date, price accordingly and lower its price every year. The reputation of your business is not better than the cheapest items and services you sell. - Wheel 06-16-2018, 12:36 PM Banned Participation Date: November 2012 Diagnostic Tool: Solus Post: 2,942 Quote: I think they have a contract to clear ultras with $2200 buck or something like that. Now you know why. Reply with a quote I bought a practically new cyst pro for $1500 from a struggling store owner last July to replace my aging port cargo 08, and the Cyst Pro update will expire soon. I sold my cysts and paid $2200 for the new Solus Ultra with a one-year warranty if they were let go with pass-through Pro II J2534, and let me renew until 19.4 from my new Ultra to sweeten the deal to get closer to what I would get if I bought another cyst pro. Oh, I forgot to unlock Europe, maybe I'll have to give up my MT2500 for that, but I keep all the adapters, lol. Get: Who wants to buy a scanner that will become obsolete in a few years. Pay a software subscription and include the scanner lease they're hooking up battery maintenance agents and scanning cars 100 feet away with something cold inside an air-conditioned room. Once you get the Team Viewer mobile hotspot, you can set up a scanning tool to record the pages of pids, send out the driving of children and wives, look at the scanner and control it from your PC. I was already doing it from my smartphone, but the phone screen is too small to talk to the person driving the car. If the car is within the WIFI range of the store that uses the team viewer for that, it is an option for cheap cable scanners without Bluetooth VCI; in a few more years, VCI and mobile hotspots will be combined to foresee that the scanner does not need to be in or near the vehicle. The HDMI cablelf the Android scanner offers a smart view (screen mirroring) like a smartphone, to watch the scanner on a large screen TV. I wonder if it was going to say 18.4. I don't like to get the cat out of the bag so quickly. I believe that's right. In this information, the verdict of the last update is 18.4. I've called snaps to technical support in the past and confirmed that 18.4 will be the last of the verdict. I agree they may not have wanted to have this information there and they might delete it. So, since I posted this, there are some documents. Verus Of course, the price of legacy software update price should fall to rock bottom $300 price near the end of the decade, Snap Py will still be profiting from legacy Sh@t updates who want to access OBD1 with something a little newer than bricks with 9V batteries and small black and white displays, and occasionally want to complement the old with tools that don't work with older OBD2 vehicles, or have to scope something in Modis or Verus. January 20, 2017 The local track guy said he could update the regular sors to the last 1 15.2 version. He said he saved 15.2 files and saved them for $300. Obviously something interesting is happening here. Free shipping on orders under $500*. Through July 31, 2015, Snap-on is offering technicians up to $250 from the new list price. I couldn't find it anywhere on netgear's website. It meant our computer had no internet! I extracted the driver from the Setup utility of the Netgear Windows 7 driver and tried to install it manually using device manager. Of course, we can't work without the Internet, so we'll find drivers or go back to Windows 7. Netgear n600 wifi adapter window 10 driver.
