It turned out to be a great device, with two SATA 3Gbps drive compartments, RAID hardware and a simple setup. With RAID 1 in place, it keeps the backup data safe from a hard drive failure that can destroy backups in a single external drive situation. Now Sans has released TR2UT-B, which is essentially similar to MobileSTOR MS2UTN, except for its non-tools. You can disassemble it to pieces, install drives, connect it via USB 2.0 or eSATA, and RAID it without the need for a screwdriver. It does this not by avoiding screws in general, but solely by turning on the thumb screws to keep the unit closed and ensuring the hard drives. Otherwise, MobileSTOR is considered in April and TR2UT-B are very similar. These include OS-independent RAID equipment including JBOD, RAID 0 and RAID 1 for, in appropriate order, standard access to two drives, fast 1-volume access and secure redundant data. Continued... I had an amazing experience where I stayed up late with the owners, drank wine and exchanged stories. And I had strange visits, such as the time when I watched a cat walk around a table full of food - and the owner did nothing. So I was a little apprehensive when my husband Don told me that he had booked a night in bed and breakfast during a trip we took last year to see his family in Iowa. To make things weirder, he chose Heavenly Habitat in Madison County, a church that the owners renovated into a hotel. The potential for embarrassment seemed very high. It turned out that our night in Heavenly Habitat was one of the highlights of our four-day trip. That's because the owner, Steve, has done a few things right that all BCB owners should keep in mind: Privacy: No one likes in your host's face. We arrived on a rainy Thursday night, eding pizza and beer, which we picked up at the local Casey (Iowan equivalent 7-11). We are tired, hungry and not in the mood for chatter. Steve greeted us in our wing of the church, showed us where the silverware and napkins were, and then left us alone without feeling the need for chatter. Bliss. Appropriate decor: The last time we visited Don's family in Iowa, we stayed at the BCB, where the whole room - no lie - was covered in flowers. We say flowers on wallpaper, flowers on the veil, flowers on the carpet. Looks like it exploded. Heavenly Habitat had several themes going on in its decor: Madison County Bridges in the living room; Roosters in the kitchen; church objects, such as the pew, here and and But he never felt over the top or disgusted. Space to spread: When Steve and his wife bought the church, they took half - the chapel - as their own to live. The entire second half, including the scholarship room, is available for guests. So we had our own kitchen, living room and bedroom. The hotel has only two rooms and we were the only ones there that night. It was nice to have some space without feeling like we were invading someone's house. Glorious breakfast: It doesn't have to be a fantasy. But one of the pleasures of relaxing in bed and having breakfast with someone else is to make your eggs - and when it's done right, you can stay full until noon. Optimistic, informative host: We didn't plan on going to John Wayne Winterset's birthplace, but Steve talked us into it - and we found it a worthwhile stop. He also made sure we had maps to find the bridges of Madison County. We appreciated Steve's optimistic attitude as well - a stark contrast to the BCB managers we met in Sedona once, who told us how much they hated running the hotel. Heavenly Habitat wasn't perfect. There was no Wi-Fi, for example (although the owner said they would add it in the future). But I felt we got a very good deal as our room was only $80 (Monday to Thursday; the price rises to $100 on weekends), especially when I saw our next hotel, the rather gloomy Days Inn in Atlantic, Iowa. What do you think? What makes the BCB perfect? - written by Chris Gray Faust Faust
