This Minecraft tutorial explains how to farm using a hoe with screenshots and step-by-step instructions. Minecraft allows you to plant and grow your own garden of wheat, carrots and potatoes by farming in the game. When you farm, you need water and a hoe. To speed up the growth process, you can use a bone meal. Here's a look at how to farm. Materials needed for the farm The following items should be farmed in Minecraft: Hoe first, you need a hoe to prepare the soil during farming. You can use one of these was: then an item in the plant, you need something to plant. These are the types of items you can plant in Minecraft: TIP: seeds are harvested into wheat. All other items are harvested to themselves. To speed up the growth process, you can use the following as fertilizer: how to farm in creative and survival mode 1. Find water first land, you need to find areas of land that have water. Next, you need to choose a hoe in the hot bar. This example uses a wooden hoe to prepare land on farmland. Next, place a pointer (plus sign) on the block next to the water. The block is highlighted in the game window. 2. Use Houe Game controls depend on the version of Minecraft: For Java editions (PC/Mac), right-click the block. For pocket version (PE), tap the block. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the LT button on the Xbox controller. For PS3 and PS4, press the L2 button on the PS controller. For Wii U, press the ZL button on the gamepad. For nintendo switches, press the ZL button on the controller. For the Windows 10 edition, right-click the block. For the educational version, right-click the block. It prepares the ground and opens the soil for planting by turning it into farmland. With the hoe of the block you want to farm, they look brown (because the grass has been removed). The block begins to get wet from the water and turns darker brown. 3. Plant the item and then select the item to plant in the hotbar. This can be either carrots, potatoes or seeds. In this example, we plant seeds. The game controls that plant seeds depend on the version of Minecraft: for the Java edition (PC/Mac), right-click on the block. For pocket version (PE), tap the block. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the LT button on the Xbox controller. For PS3 and PS4, press the L2 button on the PS controller. For Wii U, press the ZL button on the gamepad. For nintendo switches, press the ZL button on the controller. For the Windows 10 edition, right-click the block. For the educational version, right-click the block. After you plant your seeds in each of the blocks of soil, you need to start seeing the plants grow. They start out as very small plants and over time, your plants grow to full size on their own. 4. FertilizationBone meal You can speed up the growth process by using a bone meal on plants. To use a bone meal, select it in the hot bar. The game controls that use bone meal depend on the version of Minecraft: for the Java version (PC/Mac), right-click on the plant. For pocket version (PE), tap the plant. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the LT button on the Xbox controller. For PS3 and PS4, press the L2 button on the PS controller. For Wii U, press the ZL button on the gamepad. For nintendo switches, press the ZL button on the controller. For the Windows 10 edition, right-click on the plant. For the educational version, right-click on the plant. With a bone meal, you can see green stars appearing on top of plants and fertilizing plants. You need to use a couple of bone meals in each section of the plant. To harvest crops, you need to destroy plants. The game controls you harvest depend on the version of Minecraft: for the Java edition (PC/Mac), left-click on the plant. For pocket version (PE), tap to hold it. For PS3 and PS4, press the R2 button on the PS controller. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the RT button on your Xbox controller. For the Windows 10 edition, left-click on the plant. For a Wii U, press the ZR button on the gamepad. For Nintendo Switch, press the ZR button on the controller. For the educational version, left-click on the plant. After breaking the plant, you need to see your crops floating on the ground. In this example, wheat was harvested. Be sure to pick up the item before it disappears. Congratulations, you just learned how to farm in Minecraft. Video Watch this video to show you how to build a greenhouse in Minecraft. I subscribed to other intermediate tutorials that have been playing my survival games for a while and I have accumulated so much. I have about five double breasts with various supplies separated to them. After collecting the acacia trees, I decided to build a shed (because I like red trees). In my shed, I kept seeds (not including edibles, including pumpkins and melons), plants, natural materials (snowballs, lily pads, grass), was, shears, axes and other tools used in agriculture and animals. With an internal dimension of 4 by 3, the blocks were placed in five rectangles at 6 to create the wall. The basic height is 3 blocks high, not including the half space left from the slab roof. Supplies I used: Acacia planks (walls and tables) Acacia wooden slabs (roofs and overhangs) birch boards (floors) wooden door glass windows double chest craft block clay (smelted and then made into pots) Flowers (decoration) cobblestones (road to the front door of the house) This indicative im going to show you how to make a wheat farm! then dig outBlock and fill it with water. Now, take in all the blocks of grass in the square (too surrounding ones) and now just plant the wheat on the dirt you've homeed. Now just wait, your wheat will grow quickly! (This also works with beetroot, carrots and potatoes) If the description is confusing, look at the photos and they are very useful! Minecraft's Windows 10 version is different from the regular PC version of the game, so your traditional seeds won't work. This is because the Windows 10 edition is actually the Minecraft Pocket Edition (also known as the Bedlock Edition) as seen on mobile. That is, different seeds are needed to get the right results. If you're new to the world of Minecraft PE seeds, let's first explain how to use these neat codes. All you need to generate a new world is to click New in the main menu and you will see a window where you can name the new game and enter the seed code. All that's left is to press the Generate World button to explore the environment you find.
