It serves about 1,300 students from general education and vocational training programs within the Dover School District. Connected by road to Dover Middle School, the campus borders the Bellamy River. An alternative school is across the street from the school, where students can usually attend classes at both schools. History The original location of Dover High School in 1851 was on Chestnut Street and served students north of the Cocheco River until 1869, when the School System in Dover was consolidated. The second iteration of Dover High School was designed by Alvah T. Ramsdell in 1905 and built adjacent to the Dover Public Library on Locust Street. In 1928, it was expanded to accommodate more students. This supplement was largely to support mechanical and manual arts programs. CTC continued dhs tradition of creating commercial school options for students. In 2005, DHS became the New Hampshire School of Excellence. In July 2016, an $87 million project was launched to build a new high school technical campus and career adjacent to the existing complex, which had been built more than 50 years earlier. In December 2018, a cell phone video emerged on social media, resulting in two students singing a song to the tune of Jingle Bells with text altered for the Ku Klux Klan. Among other changes, the chorus of Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells, Jingle all the way was replaced by the KKK, KKK, Let's kill all the blacks, in reference to Lynching. Administrators announced a program called DREAM to support diversity and community. The teacher was allowed to return to class the following year after training, prompting protests from the NAACP, citing the fact that the teacher never publicly apologized for the incident.
